

Nixon to Spell Energy Moves Tonight

(Combined Wire Dispatches) WASHINGTON — President Nixon will go on nationwide television tonight to announce "some pretty strong, tough actions" to cope with growing fuel shortages, including a possible ban on Sunday gasoline sales and rationing of home heating oil.

Nixon announced his plan for a brief address to the nation midway through an hour-long meeting Saturday with White House energy chief John A. Love and domestic counselor Melvin R. Laird. The speech will begin at 7 p.m. EST.

Reliable sources indicated that among the restrictions Nixon had decided to impose were Sunday closings of gasoline stations to discourage weekend driving, and mandatory rationing of heating oil for homes and businesses.

He was not expected to order rationing or a heavy new tax on gasoline, but sources said he might also act to shorten business hours at shopping centers and to make mandatory the 50 mile-per-hour speed limit he asked motorists to observe voluntarily nearly two weeks ago.

The sources said Saturday the aim was to reduce consumption of home heating oil in residences by 15 per cent, in commercial buildings by 25 per cent and in industry by 10 per cent.

But these sources said Nixon would not impose any direct rationing of gasoline or other fuels to the consumer and would not announce any new fuel taxes or price increases.

Such measures remain under consideration within the administration but have not yet been proposed to the President, the sources said.

They said Nixon was expected to take the following steps:

● Urge petroleum refineries to reduce their production of gasoline and increase their production of home heating oil, diesel and jet fuel and residual oil, the heavy fuel used by industry and power plants.

● Direct gasoline stations to close on Sundays.

● Cut back the distribution of home heating oil.

● Impose lower speed limits on interstate highways built with federal aid and ask the states to reduce speed limits as well; the President was expected to propose speed limits of 50 miles per hour for passenger cars and 55 miles per hour for trucks and buses, taking into account their different characteristics.

● Nixon was expected to sign into law the mandatory petroleum allocation bill passed by Congress, requiring him to submit a comprehensive program for allocating, at the wholesale level, all petroleum fuels.

At present, propane gas, home heating oil, diesel and jet fuel are allocated, while gasoline and residual oils are not.

● Nixon was expected to urge voluntary reduction of nonscheduled aircraft flights such as private flying, corporation flying and air-taxi service, as a bid to reduce the use of jet fuel. Scheduled airlines have already begun reducing their flights.

Administration sources said other measures were under consideration for early action but had not been decided, as of Saturday.

They said the President might proceed soon to impose mandatory allocation of residual oil, the fuel facing the most immediate problems.

An Interior Department study predicted that residual fuel supplies would become critically short as early as Dec. 3 unless corrective action is taken.

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton told newsmen last Wednesday that shortages of residual oil, if allowed to develop, could cause widespread electrical brownouts or even a series of blackouts, particularly in New England or the Middle Atlantic states.

The administration also may ask for voluntary reductions in decorative lighting, including Christmas lighting and commercial advertisement lighting except for signs needed to identify business establishments.

But it had not been decided Saturday whether this appeal would be made directly by the President or by his top energy advisor.

It also remained uncertain whether Nixon would renew his appeal to Congress to authorize increased oil production from the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve in California. This move has encountered some resistance in Congress even though the Pentagon has had to tap U.S. domestic production for its own needs to replace petroleum which it usually purchases abroad.

All of these measures were discussed by a Cabinet-level Emergency Energy Action Group last Wednesday, and Nixon met with Love and Laird on Saturday morning to make his decisions.

In a brief session for photographers with Love and Laird in his White House Oval Office, Nixon said public cooperation could prevent any real suffering, "but everybody is going to have to do some sacrificing in order to handle the energy crisis."

Area Fuel Outlook ... Crunch on the Way

By CARL GRAHAM

KINGSTON — The fuel oil crunch isn't here yet, but it's on the way. This sums up the feelings of most retail suppliers contacted by the Freeman about the availability of oil for home heating. Most report that aided by stretch of mild weather, they have had no troubles so far in keeping up with demand, but predict that shortages will begin showing up by December or January. Most have already been subjected to some form of rationing or allocation but the shortage hasn't been passed along to customers yet, they report.

Arthur Motzkin, president of Kingston Oil Supply, calls conservation the key to the situation. "The more we can conserve today the longer we can go into the freeze period (when shortages could cause bursting of pipes or serious illness) before shortages are felt," he said.

Motzkin reported that most of his customers have been complying with suggested conservation measures and his company has prepared a brochure that lists various measures that can stretch fuel oil supplies (and lower fuel bills), including regular checkups of burners and boilers, storm windows and weatherstripping, keeping doors and windows tightly shut and fireplaces flues closed when not in use, and lowering thermostat settings.

Motzkin said that President Nixon's estimates of savings from lower thermostats (to 68 degrees) settings might have been misleading. "He said most homes are kept around 74 degrees but it's been my experience that it's more like 72 degrees, so the savings won't be as great as anticipated," others haven't said yet what he said. However, any saving in a situation like this is worthwhile.

WALTER DAVENPORT SONS INC. of High Falls said that Kingston Oil Supply is still receiving shipments based on 1972 allocations but increased demand since last year in effect has caused a slight pinch, but "We will take care of our customers."

A spokesman for C. M. CLAY'S SONS of Highland, feels the President's call for conservation has had the opposite effect. His firm has received numerous calls from customers worried about the shortage, people who want their tanks filled immediately to the very top. The firm, like most others, normally makes deliveries based on "degree days," a combination of time and temperature that determines refill runs, and tries to talk customers out of special small deliveries. Unlike several other firms, it has not instituted a premium charge for such special deliveries.

The spokesman said that Clay had been cut back about 30 per cent in its supply. "If we don't get back what they cut by January or February, we'll run out," he predicted.

He feels that reports from New York City telling of oil tanker unloadings and asking in effect "What shortage?" have done consumers a disservice. "People still don't realize there is a shortage or that it is going to last," he said. "Those tankers were probably unloading some of the last oil to go out before the Arabs put an embargo on shipments."

AUSTIN R. NEWCOMBE AND CO. also has received numerous calls from customers wanting to stock up. The firm charges a premium for deliveries of less than 150 gallons.

"One of our four suppliers cut our December quota by 10 per cent," a spokesman said. "The Union to Ask GM Delay on Cutback

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors will halt production of intermediate and full-sized cars for one week at 16 plants as economic conditions and the threat of gasoline rationing send new car sales skidding downward.

GM's decision drew a blast Saturday night from Irving Bluestone, vice-president of the United Auto Workers.

Bluestone said he'll ask the corporation to reconsider, and at least delay, its plans. He said cutting back before Christmas instead of after the New Year would be costly to workers without a year's seniority.

GM's announcement that it was cutting 79,000 cars from its December production schedule was the first wholesale cutback since the 1970 recession. During the one week in February of 1970, GM closed 16 plants and idled 107,500 workers.

The world's largest automakers will not resume production until Jan. 2. Sales of new cars have been down in each of the five 10-day selling periods since the 1974 models were introduced in September. The intermediates and full-sized cars have suffered the most with small cars and luxury models still selling at record levels.

The automakers are already shifting facilities from building cars to the more popular small models. But even the rush toward small cars may be tapering off as prospective buyers await the outcome of talk about gasoline rationing and curtailing driving privileges, one analyst said.

New car sales this year, including imports, will reach a record 11.9 million to climax a three-year continued upward surge.

Automotive executives had predicted sales in 1974 might drop as low as 11.1 million units with production never quite Sprint.

Renewed Talk of Conflict As Israelis, Arabs Meet

address the conference said in Israel, Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said there was still chance of renewed war battle should continue until the because "the Arabs are very objectives of our nation are stubborn and think they are realized."

The Israeli military command charged that Egyptian troops on the West Bank of the canal committed five cease-fire violations, including light weapons fire and attempts at grabbing more territory. One Israeli soldier was slightly wounded.

On the Cairo-Suez highway, Egyptian-Israeli military officials met for the third consecutive day at Kilometer 101 and failed again to agree on the withdrawal of troops along the East cease-fire.

The road talks, which are showing some signs of progress, will be reconvened today and are expected to be resumed daily. "Apparently many problems have not reached solution," said the Israeli national radio.

At the conference in the Algerian capital, Arab League Secretary-General Mahmoud Riad of Egypt warned the Israelis:

"We are meeting here to mobilize Arab efforts for the battle."

The chances of battle are increasing because the last few days have proved that Israel insists on aggression and expansion and the United States continues to back Israel aggression."

Algerian Foreign Minister Abdel Aziz Bouteflika, chairman of the conference, said, "We are not approaching a settlement. We think that the

If the Egyptian-Israeli talks on the troop withdrawals are successful, it would make possible a Middle East peace conference in December.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli government officials said Israel might be willing to attend an opening session of the peace conference in mid-December, but would be unable to begin substantive negotiations until after the national elections Dec. 31. The Egyptians have demanded an immediate conference.

At the United Nations, a spokesman said the United States is conducting the main consultations on setting up the conference but so far nothing has been decided.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said U.S. insistence on holding the bargaining by mid-December would prompt his government to consider the matter formally for the first time.

Officials on both sides have warned that new fighting could break out if the withdrawal issue is not settled—the final and most crucial phase of the U.S.-sponsored Middle East cease-fire accord.

Conference sources said the mood of the meetings had improved in the last two days to a "businesslike and constructive" atmosphere. The two opposing negotiators and their aides pored over maps and drank numerous cups of American and Turkish coffee and mango juice.

Albert Blames Nixon Policy Errors for Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has tried to distort history and blame Congress for energy shortages "deeply rooted" in his own policy, House Speaker Carl Albert said Saturday.

In a 22-page statement, Albert said that Congress already had given Nixon most of the emergency powers he requested Nov. 7 or the legislation he wanted already was in the works. The President accused Congress of ignoring persistent warnings — beginning two years ago — about impending energy shortages.

"The administration had endangered the safety and future of America through its five years of non-policy and bad policy in the energy area and the nation is going to pay a high price for administration failures," Albert said. "Every cold winter day will be a reminder of the administration's errors.

"President Nixon has chosen once again not to be candid with the American people — not about the magnitude of the crisis we are facing; not about the origins of and responsibility for the crisis; and not about the ease with which the problems we are facing will be solved."

Albert said it will be hard for the Democratic majority in Congress to work with Nixon

"because we will have to try to look past the bitterness he is engendering when he attempts to rewrite the history of the energy crisis, so as to make it appear that the Congress is responsible for our energy shortages when, in reality, the burden of responsibility for negligence and lack of foresight truly lies far more heavily on the administration."

The AFL-CIO agreed in a letter to Chairman Harley O.

Staggers, whose House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce is working on a bill giving Nixon broad emergency energy powers. The Senate passed a similar bill earlier this week.

"We believe the Congress has not been derelict in its duty," the AFL-CIO said Saturday. "Rather, we believe the President waited dangerously late to restore faith in government than to enact a comprehensive system of public financing of federal elections."

Albert, looking at the steps Nixon took recently to attack energy problems, had these criticisms:

—The President asked the Atomic Energy Commission to speed licensing of nuclear power plants. "If the number of plants were increased four-fold in the next five years — which is simply not possible — the amount of power generated would still be insignificant."

—Nixon wanted to get power plants to switch from oil to coal, but "coal itself is in very short supply."

—Nixon asked for slower highway speeds, but "it is far too little and far too late."

—The President has said he will carry out a mandatory allocation program on fuels, but "Congress ... gave our unwilling President the authority to deal with the problems and pleaded with him time and again to use it."

President's Support Is Sought On Sweeping Vote Reform Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a letter, Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., asked Nixon to endorse a bill coming before the Senate next week which would ban private contributions in presidential and congressional elections and provide tax dollars to fund those campaigns.

The sponsors fear Nixon will veto it. "There are few steps that can better signify to the public our collective determination to reform our electoral processes and to restore faith in government than to enact a comprehensive system of public financing of federal elections," wrote Schweiker, part of a bipartisan coalition which claims the support of 51 senators.

The proposal, sponsored by Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, Pa., and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., is to be offered Wednesday as an amendment to a bill to raise the $465 billion ceiling on the national debt. Expiration of the existing ceiling Nov. 30 would hamper government financial operations and make the bill difficult to veto.

The debt ceiling bill has passed the House so the fate of the reforms, if the Senate approves, would rest with a conference committee.

Nixon opposed public financing of campaigns prior to 1972 but his attitude may have changed. Several months ago he urged Congress to create a commission to consider that and other reform ideas.

Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, said he would urge a veto if Congress attached the Scott-Kennedy rider to the debt ceiling bill. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz also condemned that method of legislating and hinted at a veto

Legal Study on Impeachment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four Washington lawyers published a legal study Saturday isolating 28 specific "indictable common crimes" for which they said President Nixon could be impeached.

The 169-page volume, entitled "Bribery, and Other High Crimes and Misdemeanors," seeks to link Watergate and related events to violations of law such events may represent and to answer the contention that Nixon cannot be impeached because he has violated no crime.

Union meanwhile made public a handbook listing 17 things that citizens can do to bring about impeachment proceedings, including making speeches and writing to congressmen. The ACLU argued its case for impeachment by citing six offenses which it said could be substantiated.

The other book was published "as a patriotic venture, a public educational venture," said William Dobrovir, 40, a Harvard Law School graduate and one of the four members of a public interest law firm which produced the study. Their work was financed by millionaire Stewart Mott, heir to one of the founders of General Motors and underwriter of a number of liberal causes.

Greenwich Says No for Xerox Headquarters

Nutmeg State Door Closed

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Contending that major developments should be built closer to urban centers, the Greenwich Planning and Zoning Commission has turned down a proposal by the Xerox Cor. to build a new $20 million corporate headquarters here.

The rejection by the five-member commission was unanimous.

"We are disappointed that the commission has rejected the only positive solution offered in 24 years for the inappropriately zoned acreage," Xerox Chairman C. Peter McCullough said in a statement following the vote.

The company wanted to build on 104 rural acres near the New York State line. Xerox at one point submitted a $250,000 zoning study that urged creation of a new zoning classification for low-density executive offices.

The company wanted the area declared an "airport impact zone" because of its proximity to the Westchester County, N.Y., airport.

McCullough said Xerox thought the proposal "would be in the best interest of the people of Greenwich."

Xerox bought the land more than two years ago for $4.5 million. At a public hearing in September, McCullough said he thought the company could sell the property at a profit if its request was rejected.

A company spokesman said that Xerox hasn't decided whether to sell.

The land, a combination of woods and fields, presently is zoned four acres per residence. The commission said roads in the area were inadequate for the traffic that executive offices would generate and that air pollution levels in the area already had increased because of the airport.

Under the British system, he can call for a ballot any time he chooses.

Inflation has sent prices of just about everything soaring. Unrest is disrupting the coal, power, automobile and other key industries. Workers' leaders are challenging the authority of the state.

In addition, the country spent nearly $750 million more abroad than it earned in the October reporting period. This record deficit compelled Heath to impose a prime lending rate of 13 per cent.

Heath's aides profess to see some rays of light in this bleak situation, saying some of these things are "the problems of success."

Yet for ordinary Britons a long, hard, cold winter seems certain. Bright city lights have been switched off to save fuel. An informal rationing system has cut back motoring, home and office heating and industrial output. Air and rail fares are going up.

Heath appears already to have mapped the lines of his electoral strategy in case he feels forced to call an election. It would hinge on a "who rules Britain" issue.

The challenge, Heath maintains, is coming from the leaders of Britain's 270,000 coal miners. Last week they imposed an overtime ban that has cut output by a fourth, or a million tons, in nine days alone. The ban was in support of their demands for more pay than is permitted under government limits.

British coal miners are among the lowest-paid workers in the country, with basic salaries ranging from $80 a week for surface workers to about $108 for pit workers.

At a time when power workers, too, are staging go-slows and when the Mideast crisis has dislocated oil supplies the quarrel has assumed critical dimensions.

Brown In Hospital

BUFFALO (AP) — H. Rap Brown, jailed on a robbery conviction, has been operated on for an abscess while hospitalized with pneumonia here, authorities said Saturday.

The former head of the Student Non-Violent Coordination Committee (SNCC) was in "reasonably good condition" at Meyer Memorial Hospital, a state Corrections Department spokesman said.

Brown, transferred from Attica prison to the Hospital Tuesday with what officials described as a "slight case of pneumonia", was operated on Friday. The abscess was discovered in his back, the corrections spokesman said.

Skylab Crew Cleans Up

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab 3's astronauts took the day off Saturday, sleeping late and catching up on housecleaning chores so they will be ready for 11 weeks of intensive space research.

Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue slept two hours late Saturday, waking at 9:15 a.m. EST to the song, "Paralyzed," by the Stardust Cowboys, a noisy combination of band and song.

"It's time to get up and enjoy your day off," ground communicator Robert Crippen told them. "Our team (of flight controllers) has been practicing all week for today. We've been loafing."

Pogue reported seeing a "dirty yellow" cloud reaching above the earth's atmosphere while flying over the eastern hemisphere near the Pacific. He said the cloud resembled a streamer of gas off the sun and said it reached through the earth's airglow where the sky is lighted from solar rays bouncing off gases.

He said he was looking out the window with binoculars when "clouds or something sort of bloomed above the horizon. And they're sort of dirty yellow in color and they begin slightly before the airglow terminates."

Pogue said he first thought he was seeing a reflection from the side of the station but Carr confirmed the sight. The next revolution they said the cloud had mostly diminished.

The final Skylab crew spent an easy day cleaning their kitchen, bathroom and three bedrooms and sorting equipment for their science work.

Flight controllers were still studying the effects of losing one of three spacecraft controlling gyroscopes. Officials said the chances were "nil" that a second gyro would fail which would force an early end to the 84-day holiday flight.

The astronauts conducted several medical experiments during their first week in space, but don't begin the other major tasks until Monday. Flight planners scheduled the first earth resources picture-taking sweep over the United States for that day. The pilots are to man the solar observatory control panel for the first time Tuesday.

Vietnam Truce Violations Soar

SAIGON (UPI) — Truce violations rose to the highest total in a month Saturday and nearly 100 persons on both sides died in the fighting, the South Vietnamese military command reported.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, spokesman for the South Vietnamese command, reported 111 cease-fire violations in the 24 hours ending at noon Saturday. It was the highest such total since Oct. 24, when there were 120 in the corresponding period.

Hien listed 53 Communists, 34 government soldiers and 11 civilians killed in the fighting. He said 190 government troops and six civilians were wounded and four government soldiers and 32 civilians were missing.

Disaster '73... Agonizing GOP Reappraisal

THE RUDE AWAKENING—The thought occurred to us amid the bedlam of election night as the Democratic machine did its bi-annual number on the Republicans that perhaps the Demos had fallen victim, if that's the word for it, to the ever present political temptation of overkill.

Football coaches are well aware of the danger of lopsided scores against an outclassed foe because they know that someday they may be in the same sinking boat, but politicians, by and large, like to run up the score. Witness the Committee to Reelect the President.

City Democrats can't really be blamed for this year's blitz, to use one football expression, because, to use another, "you take what the defense will give you."

In Kingston, the virtually defenseless Republicans, darn near gave it all away. It was bad enough that Frank Koenig won by four thousand, again, or that Bobby Gallo won by 3,700 and change, again, or that the Democrats just about swept the Council, again. Those were strictly city affairs. What got Republican leaders in a spin was the loss of all six legislators and with it the loss of that vitally important two-thirds majority on the County Legislature.

ONE MUST UNDERSTAND, that despite all the brave pronouncements to the contrary, county Republicans don't really worry about the city. Perhaps that's putting it a bit too strong. Perhaps it's more a case of benign neglect. But Republicans are concerned about the county, deeply concerned, and when all six of their county legislators were swept away in the Koenig landslide it became time for a serious look, an agonizing reappraisal, as it were.

In the past, there has always been a feeling among county Republicans that their city legislative candidates were somehow immune to landslides. The record indicates that assessment to be somewhat justified. Koenig won by 3,900 in 1969 and the Republicans elected three legislators. Koenig won by 4,400 in '71 and the Republicans elected four legislators.

So, the pattern seemed clear. The legislators were at least partially immune from what the "top of the ticket" did. They could always count on at least a few of their ringers to come through, guys like Mel Mones, Dubbie Raichle, even Ray Armater. None of them made it this time with Mones, their very best candidate in terms of his record in office and past popularity, missing election by 62 votes. When a guy like Mel Mones gets beat in a city-wide election, regardless of the margin, it is time for deep concern. Guys like Mel Mones just don't get beat.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

The question now is, what's the Republican Party to do? For openers, a lot of people will blame a lot of other people for Disaster '73.

IN FACT, it has already started. Republican mayoral candidate Bill Merrill is being blamed for running a "dumb" campaign and party chairman Frank Fabbie is being blamed for letting Merrill get away with it. This particular aspect of the post election game, for losers, is called "tie the can on the leaders," and can be expected to continue until new leaders come to the fore.

That there will be a new party chairman is by now a foregone conclusion. Frank Fabbie, an ex-lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve, knows that victory has many fathers but defeat is an orphan and he's it. Fabbie will leave peacefully, secure in the knowledge that he did his best.

The key to what happens to the Republican party in the city and with it some semblance of the restoration of political power which is way out of whack is what happens to the party rank and file, the so-called "grass roots organization" which has been beaten to the ground in four successive mayoral elections dating back to 1967.

That, and a distinct change in attitude from the county committee which for too long has treated its city cousins as poor relations.

This year the county paid for it.

FOOTNOTE: perhaps the significance of the Republicans' loss of their two-thirds majority in the legislature, due in a large margin to the Democrats' unprecedented sweep of city legislators, should be clarified. A two-thirds vote is needed to appropriate money. The Republicans don't have it anymore forcing them for the first time in ages to deal with the Demos.

FIGURES — Not that it makes any difference, since there were only two races in the city that were close this year, Mel Mones' bid for the sixth legislative seat which fell short by 62 votes and Brian Smith's win as the lone Republican alderman (Third Ward), by 43 votes, but figures on the top of the ticket show a remarkable similarity between Campaign '71 and Campaign '73.

Frank Koenig, for instance, although his plurality over Bill Merrill dropped off by 342 votes compared to his plurality over Bob Murphy in '71, still polled 65.9 per cent of the total vote cast this year. His percentage in 1971? . . . 66.6. His slip is hardly showing at all.

Koenig did offer an explanation for his drop in popularity from 4,478 in '71 to "only" 4,136 this year, by stating that overall voting was off by about 12 per cent. According to official figures, it was off by less than half a per cent, with 11,986 people voting in the 1971 mayoral elections compared to 11,496 this year.

And here's a final bit of trivia. Bill Merrill polled fewer votes than Bob Murphy with official figures showing Murphy with a total of 3,510 and Merrill 3,443.

Washington Roll Call

How Area Legislators Voted

WASHINGTON The area's three Congressmen voted yes as the House of Representatives voted 388 for and 18 against a sense-of-the-house resolution setting guidelines for suspending House members convicted of criminal activity.

The resolution, in effect, suspends the congressional voting right of members convicted of crimes that carry penalties of at least two years imprisonment. Members would regain their voting rights if later court appeals clear them of wrongdoing.

Congressmen Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th), Benjamin A. Gilman (R-26th) and Howard W. Robison (R-27th), voting with the supporters, said the measure will help dispel public fears of congressional in-difference to member's misconduct.

Opponents argued that the Constitution limits the censure of members to behavior on the floor or misconduct "connected with the legislative function." They said that suspending a member for other reasons would illegally deprive his district of representation.

Reps. Fish and Robison voted yes and Rep. Gilman cast a negative vote as the House rejected, 187 for and 198 against an amendment to cut benefits to employees displaced by any federal takeover of railways under the proposed Regional Rail Reorganization Act.

The overall legislation guarantees a "monthly displacement allowance" equal to present wages for employees with at least five years experience. It covers employees who lose their jobs or who must accept lower paying jobs within the public rail corporation to be set up under the act.

The rejected amendment would have cut off payment, after six years, to the latter group, but would not have cut benefits to workers left unemployed.

Another split in the votes of the area congressmen came as the House rejected, 162 for and 213 against, an attempt to remove, from the Alaskan pipeline conference report, language that broadens the powers of the Federal Trade Commission and makes other changes in the balance of power between federal regulatory commissions and the Administration.

Congressman Robison voted yes while Congressmen Fish and Gilman were opposed. The House passed the overall bill and sent it to the Senate, which already had approved the disputed language. The language was not germane to the pipeline bill.

Sen. Jacob Javits (R) voted yes as the Senate passed 80 for and 5 against, the Trans-Alaska Oil Pipeline conference report. Senate passage followed House passage of the bill which was

The law authorizes right-of-way through federal lands for construction of the 789-mile pipeline. The pipeline will carry up to two million barrels of oil daily from Alaska's North Slope to the ice-free port of Valdez on Alaska's southern shore. Tankers will ship the oil to northwestern states.

Drugged Athletes

Editor, The Freeman:

Your call for Congress to make a special investigation of professional and amateur athletes regarding the drug problem (published November 19) is unnecessary.

Since when are athletes so special? They are just regular people with no special responsibility to the public. Just a very small segment of society. They happen to be on TV so everyone thinks they should be perfect.

I don't advocate taking drugs, but if someone offered me $100,000 a year if I performed well, I'd consider taking a few pills a week if I thought it would improve my performance, thus keeping my job. Certainly there are many, many more pressing problems that need to be talked about. Besides, Nixon would veto any legislation because it would keep the Redskins out of the playoffs.

Libya Leader Scoffs Mideast Peace Plan

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Col. Moammar Khadafy, the youthful leader of Libya, scoffs at the six-point plan that brought a cease-fire to the October war in the Middle East. He calls it an Arab capitulation.

"There is nothing except war," he said in an interview. "War is the only solution if we cannot reach our aims."

"Our aims: The only solution to the Mideast crisis is to let who came after 1948 return to their homes because they are citizens of other countries."

"If we cannot reach this aim, there is no other means but war. So war will be a necessity for peace. If it does not happen in this generation, the war situation will explode in another time, if not this year, then in other years."

At 33, Khadafy is the youngest of the Arab leaders. When he first came to power four years ago in a bloodless coup, his youth and passionate exuberance were captivating. He remains as outspoken and committed to the Arab cause as ever.

"We laugh at this six-point plan of peace," he says. "We don't consider it a plan of peace. It's just something to stop the fighting and exchange prisoners. It's like when somebody is ill, he needs surgery, not an aspirin."

Khadafy was interviewed aboard his presidential Boeing 707 jet en route from Tripoli to Belgrade for a visit with President Tito of Yugoslavia.

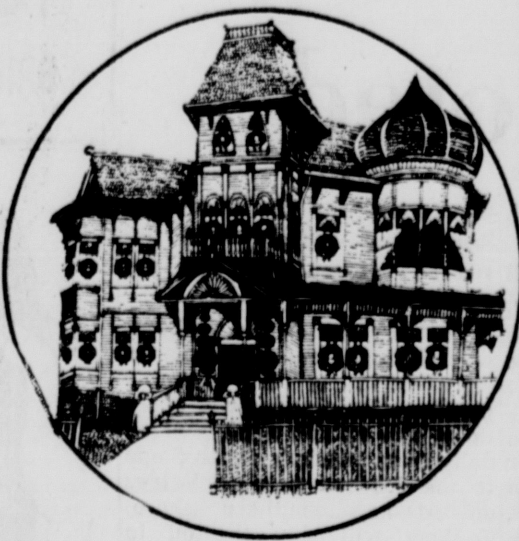

Khadafy said the Palestinian question was the only means to unify the Arab nations. "The struggle for Palestine will make the unification strong. There must be an active struggle together to restore Palestine."

Why hasn't the Arab world used oil as a weapon sooner, he was asked.

"It's a much more powerful weapon now," said Khadafy, smiling. "Before, the need for oil in Europe and America was not necessary like now, and our production wasn't as great as it is now."

Khadafy had said earlier last week he would not object to a meeting with U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

"The first thing I would like to discuss with him is where do the interests of the United States lie," he said in the interview. "Is it in Israel or the Arab world? If he has a mind, he must know that there are more interests of the U.S. in the Arab world. Either the United States should be on the Arab side — and don't say Arab, say the right side — or the U.S. should be nonaligned."

Lights Off

Editor, The Freeman:

It seems to me that while the nation is asked to conserve on energy, there is still an awful lot wasted. Not so much by private citizens, but by corporations and retail stores. I see no reason why every sign (or any sign) should be lit along the Ulster Avenue shopping mall after hours when there is hardly anyone to see them. Not only is it wasting energy, it is also putting a higher price on the merchandise which no one needs. I also see no reason to light the large IBM parking lot after working hours have long past.

It is all coming out of the consumers pocket and also wasting good energy. I think we should honor the stores and businesses with our business when they turn off their lights.

DACC Counsel Relates Implications

Mental Health and New Drug Laws

By PATRICIA W. VAN NESS

David Diamond, chief counsel for the New York State Drug Abuse Control Commission (DACC), spoke recently to a group of representatives from Narcotic Guidance Councils, town, city, and school districts, and mental health agencies in a seminar sponsored by the Ulster County Drug Commission in Kingston.

Diamond remarked that the public has heard "ad naseum" about the new penal code so he said he was glad for this opportunity to explain the more important new Public Health and Mental Hygiene Law. Since 1966 the use of hard drugs has diminished, there are not as many narcotics addicts (largely heroin), but there has been an increase in the use of "soft drugs" such as amphetamines and barbiturates (ups and downs). To reflect this, civil certification of addiction, allowing for rehabilitation instead of incarceration has been extended under the new laws.

The primary purpose of these new laws, Diamond explained, is not just to shut off the spigot but to prevent the young "social drug user" and "soft drug user" from becoming a hard core addict by providing institutions that rehabilitate. He commented that "enforcement is a holding action while society tries to work on the causes," that they are "dealing with the symptoms" and that they are "treatment rather than judgment" oriented. Toward this end they have converted the state school at Otisville into a drug treatment center housing 200 youthful offenders. It is a cottage system with no walls and a staff, consisting of psychologists, teachers and people who can provide some useful service, exceeds residents in number," he said.

"Another important change is the removal of marijuana from the dangerous drugs or narcotic listing, treating it as an individual substance. LSD is treated far more seriously and more realistically in the amounts involved. The purpose is to deter the individual who seeks a day's supply of marijuana, and to catch him before he gets busted. He is charged with a misdemeanor, gets one year or less in a county prison with plea bargaining, probation and a wide range of local services available. Essentially, they are after the pusher — the seller and distributor — of large amounts to interdict the sources of supply. It deals effectively with the person, not necessarily an addict himself, who is in it for the big money. He will not be able to plea bargain and gets life imprisonment," Diamond added.

In answer to various questions about Otisville and civil certification, Diamond explained that civil certification requires showing dependence or the stated abuse of drugs. This is difficult for the hallucinogenic substances as there is no physical dependency, but there is emotional and psychological dependency. There are certain signs, however, that a person is acculturated. He also explained the steps needed for civil certifications.

Answering another question about the possibility of a hard core addict of 16 being admitted to a campus-type facility through methadone maintenance, Diamond said that methadone maintenance is often used for those convicted of a crime, but whose real problem is the drugs. If a trial is pending, he can apply for civil (rather than criminal) certification, can be granted probation with the mandatory condition of acceptance by DACC, and treatment in a state facility, perhaps using methadone maintenance.

He pointed out that the judge has a number of options — prison, probation, certification — and certification is not limited to DACC facilities. He has never known a judge to refuse certification for persons who have been through DACC's pre-screening unit, have medical and DACC evaluations. He emphasized that civil certification is not a cop out from criminal prosecution, but is an attempt to work together for intelligent results.

In case of rain.

Suppose tomorrow turned out, unexpectedly, to be that proverbial rainy day. If you had to withdraw your savings tomorrow, would you get tomorrow's interest, too? You would with a Heritage day-of-deposit to day-of-withdrawal account. This is the simplest way to save — and the handiest for meeting unexpected money needs. Your money starts earning interest the day you put it in. It keeps right on until the day you take it out, just so long as you keep a balance of $10. Your day-of-deposit account pays 5 1/4% annual interest. Leave it there all year, along with the earned interest, and you'll get an effective yield of 5.47%. But if you do have to make a withdrawal in a hurry, isn't it nice to know you don't lose any interest? A small ray of sunshine for a rainy day.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 25, 1973

By JACK ANDERSON
and
LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has been getting a steady stream of confidential data from his friends in the Internal Revenue Service about cronies, contributors and aides in trouble with the tax collector.

As a result of this intimate White House - IRS axis the White House has stepped in to suggest that presidential friends such as the Rev. Billy Graham and actor John Wayne may have been harassed by IRS.

In other tax cases, like that of former presidential osteopath Dr. Kenneth Riland, Nixon was notified, but did not intervene.

The intricate network that alerts the President to tax hotspots is described for the first time in a still-secret statement to the Senate Watergate committee by Internal Revenue's Deputy Chief Counsel Roger Barth.

RESIDENT HONCHO
The personable Barth is a well-trained tax lawyer who came to the IRS in 1969 after serving as a political pressman for Julie and Tricia Nixon during the 1968 campaign. At IRS, he swiftly became known as the resident honcho for the White House.

This last role brought him before the committee sleuths where he conceded that "senators, congressmen, entertainers, associates of the President, certain citizens in a high-income bracket. . .

the President's friends, a large contributor" were all flagged as "sensitive cases" when IRS field offices had reason to question their tax returns.

The sensitive case reports are received from the districts each month," Barth explained, according to the confidential summary of his committee interview. "Of the approximate 200 received each month, approximately 20-25 are culled."

Barth confided that he met with Treasury Secretary George Shultz, and, earlier, with Secretary John Connally, to decide which of "the culled files were significant enough to bring to the attention of the President." Special attention was paid to big contributors and presidential pals, he explained.

HONORABLE REASON
The purpose, Barth insisted, was not to flag cases to be fixed but "to avoid any embarrassment for the President" on appointments, White House invitations and the like.

Once the list was culled, Barth personally called presidential aide John Ehrlichman, while "the Secretary would contact the President direct."

As one example, Barth mentioned that the tax woes of Nixon's osteopath were "brought to the attention of the President." No sooner had Barth inadvertently revealed this to the committee, than he and Treasury counsel Edward Schmults rushed from "the room for five minutes," according to committee records of the interview.

When they returned, they "requested that this information remain confidential." Barth and Schmults explained they were afraid that since Dr. Riland's indictment was still active, "Riland's attorney could use an argument of reverse discrimination and state (that) since Riland was close to the President, the IRS was afraid to back off" the case.

FOOTNOTE: Barth told us a similar information network was used by Presidents John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson for "sensitive cases."

FARM JUNKET: High-flying members of the House Agriculture Committee have junketed to Brazil and Venezuela this year, but with a new twist. Brazil, looking for bigger sugar quotas from the United States and Venezuela, worried about U.S. wheat exports, picked up the tab instead of the U.S. taxpayer.

The luxurious tour to Venezuela included Reps. W. R. Poage, D-Tex.; Joseph Vignito, D-Pa.; Frank Denholm, D-S.D.; Wiley Mayne, R-Iowa; John Rarick, D-La.; Robert Price, R-Tex.; LeMar Baker, R-Tenn.; Eligio de la Garza, D-Tex.; and David Bowen, D-Miss. Brazil's military government played host to Poage, Frank Stubblefield, D-Ky.; William Wampler, R-Va.; George Gooding, R-Pa.; John Zwach, R-Minn.; Ed Jones, D-Tenn.; Dawson Mathis, D-Ga.; and Jerry Litton, D-Mo.

DOUBLE EDGE: In his new book, "Who Makes War — The President Versus Congress," Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., gives the background for Congress' recent overriding of the presidential veto on the war powers bill. His arguments could apply with equal bite to the Watergate case. "The implication that the presidency is beyond the range of congressional authority to check in the exercise of the war powers raises a serious constitutional danger," he writes. "Our own stature as free and equal citizens is diminished when we hand an individual leader our lives to do with what he will."

CURIOS COINCIDENCE: Striking Arizona workers can expect little sympathy from two high state officials. In separate letters to the Health, Education and Welfare Department, Arizona Attorney General Gary Nelson and Economic Security Director William Mayo adopted a hardline position against granting welfare assistance to striking workers.

Their statements were nearly exact carbon copies of a position paper drawn up by the National Association of Manufacturers. Yet both officials denied having seen or used the NAM's statement.

"They Seem to Be Saying Something!"

The Revisionists Explained

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

There is a new movie making the rounds — it is called "Executive Action" — the thesis of which is that John F. Kennedy was assassinated not by Lee Harvey Oswald but by a gang of right-wing professionals working closely with critically situated officials of the FBI, the CIA, and the Secret Service. The film credits acknowledge Mark Lane, who is the major entrepreneur of the Revisionist School of Thought on the Assassination of JFK, and, almost certainly, the major profiteer of that school — there is nothing in the Bible that says, Thou shalt seek the truth and be impoverished by the exercise, is there?

A couple of weeks before viewing the JFK movie, which apart from its ludicrousness is a most fearful, awful, excruciating bore, I saw a screening of what one might call Take Two on the Kennedy Assassination Series. This one says that Bobby was not killed by Sirhan Sirhan but by a guard who was a part of the hotel's paid protection of Bobby Kennedy. It is an earnest effort, unlike the fictionalized melodrama of the JFK movie, and one comes away with the conclusion that the producers believe what they contend — notwithstanding that the hypothesis is so bizarre, one would as readily accept the thesis that it was Shirley Temple who shot Robert Kennedy, in retaliation for all those sleeping pills Bobby gave Marilyn Monroe. Still, the game goes on, and there are those who eat up this kind of thing.

The most recent issue of the New York Sunday Times carries a fine review of Mr. Daniel Belin's new book, "November 22, 1963." The reviewers, going over the work of Mr. Belin, conclude that "the verdict is overwhelmingly clear that Oswald, and Oswald alone, killed President Kennedy." Alternative theories, they conclude, "have become a permanent enclave of irrationality in our national consciousness." They then name some of the types who uphold these theories, and drop the name of Fred Cook.

Fred Cook? Well, he happens not only to have ridden the Oswald - Was - Innocent bandwagon, yes, the grandfather of them all — Alger Hiss-Was-Innocent. And indeed, in the same issue of the Sunday Times, it is reported that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is giving up its files on the Hiss case. Specifically, to a Smith College historian, one Professor Allen Weinstein. Deep into the story one learns that "Many scholars, Mr. Weinstein included, say it is not clear that Hiss was guilty of the perjury charges of which he was convicted by a Federal jury in New York in 1950."

As a matter of fact there aren't "many scholars" who contend any such thing. There are one or two scholars who have raised particular questions (for instance the late Professor Herbert Packer of Stanford University) about the Woodstock typewriter; but these criticisms were highly particularized, unconvincing, and they never engaged the attention of the serious critical community. There are no intellectuals on the side of Alger Hiss who come close to the standing of the "leading intellectuals" cited in the JFK review who doubt the guilt of Oswald. "Including Bertrand Russell, Hugh Trevor-Roper and Norman Mailer."

One cannot predict absolutely what Professor Weinstein, now that he has got hold of the FBI records on Alger Hiss, will come up with. If he is a Mark Lane-type, it will surely follow that he will find increasing evidence that the FBI was engaged in a plot to frame Alger Hiss. There is a wild man up in Boston who writes soliloquies for The Boston Globe and he automatically anticipates that the release of the FBI's files will prove Hiss's innocence. He writes, "Naturally, my cup will runneth over." Such a sentence could only have been written by someone whose cup has already run over; which, as a matter of fact, is a recommended way of life for those whose theology is based on Hiss's innocence. On the other hand, there is the refreshing precedent of the Boston journalist, Mr. Francis Russell, who thought Sacco innocent but discovered him to be guilty. Thus it will be with the Hiss records.

It is a large appetite, revisionism. There are people sneaking about who will tell you that Dreyfus was really guilty, that Lincoln wasn't assassinated by John Wilkes Booth, that the Protocols of Zion are legitimate. And so on. Professor Rouse disposes of the generic problem in his introductory lecture on Shakespeare at Harvard. He addresses the undergraduate sternly: "Shakespeare's plays were not written by Shakespeare but by another man with the same name."

By ROWLAND EVANS
and
ROBERT NOVAK

BAGHDAD — Bitter recriminations within the Iraqi government over Soviet complicity in the Arab-Israeli ceasefire — produced an astonishing series of veiled editorial attacks on the Ba'athist government in the Moscow-dominated Communist party press here.

The dispute is important for one reason — as evidence that Moscow, despite vast investment in arms development and influence here, is trying to rope in a wild station beyond its control. Yet Iraq is central to long-range Soviet ambitions in Central Asia.

With perhaps a mere thousand active members in the Communist party, the party operates, both above and below ground, as a legal party, with a daily organ that reaches an estimated 40,000 or so regular Iraqi readers.

Stung by the anti-Soviet impact of the government attack on the ceasefire, the party organ struck back in several editorials.

The Communist newspaper began with the surprising admission that the Israeli invasion of the west bank of the Suez Canal "threatened the supply line of the (Egyptian) Third Army," compelling President Anwar Sadat to make "persistent requests that Moscow act to guarantee the cessation of Israeli aggression." It next challenged the claim of the Ba'ath government here that Arab "masses" will never accept the ceasefire, by maintaining to the contrary, that a truce is "in harmony with the aims and aspiration of the people."

Considering Washington's eager propensity neatly, and often incorrectly, to pigeonhole such countries as Greece (ostensibly a gallant ally) and Iraq (ostensibly a Moscow stooge), the Baghdad-Moscow dispute is worth serious study for its bearing on Moscow's far more important ambitions in Central Asia.

When the Soviet Union first took an interest in Iraq, after the assassination of Pro-West Premier Nuri al-Said in 1958, its ever-increasing investment was seen as a hedge against the possible future loss of Moscow's influence in Egypt. But today the Soviet effort here hints at objectives quite different from that and quite beyond the obvious desire to gain a trump card to play in the oil-vital Persian Gulf where Iraq is an ever-larger exporter of oil.

The vast playing field of this more ominous Soviet game stretches from Iraq on the west with its Persian Gulf outlet, balanced economy, ample water and oil-financed industrial development to India on the east.

In between is Afghanistan where a new Soviet-backed regime headed by a radical princeling of the royal family is already raising suspicions in Iran and Pakistan. A Soviet-built all-weather road through Afghanistan to the border of dismembered Pakistan near Quetta threatens western Pakistan where demands for independence by Baluchistani tribes are being fanned by Moscow.

With Iraq as the western anchor, the Soviet game seems clear — first, to use its Asian "zone of peace" to fence in China from access to the Arabian Sea and the Persian Gulf through its ally Pakistan; second, to promote further dismemberment of Pakistan aiming to unhinge western Pakistan and provide Arabian Gulf access to the Soviet Union itself.

It was partly to counter such schemes that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger risked political fury at home to "tilt" toward Pakistan in the 1971 India-Pakistan war. The U.S., Iran, Pakistan, and for the time being China, all have a common interest in opposing the so-called Asian "zone of peace."

Iraq is the western key to Soviet success in this largely hidden intrigue and India the eastern key, just as Iran is the key to American efforts to resist it. With Pakistan a major ally, that Iraq, designed by nature as the most independent, unpredictable and potentially richest Middle Eastern state, occupies a critical position not only in the Arab-Israeli struggle but in the unfolding future of Central Asia.

But to take advantage of growing political tensions between Baghdad and Moscow (which Baghdad is at pains to play down), the U.S. first must accomplish Kissinger's mission of ending Israeli occupation of Arab territory. If he can achieve that, Soviet exploitation of Iraq to advance its larger designs will suddenly become far more difficult.

Firemen Battle House Blaze

ACCORD Fifty firemen from three Ulster County companies saved a summer boarding house from total destruction Friday night. Cause of the blaze is under investigation.

Accord firemen under Chief Arthur Lapp were summoned by a telephone call at 7:41 p.m. to the boarding house at the intersection of Upper Cherrytown Road and Trail's End Road, where they found the rear portion of the two-story frame house heavily involved in flames.

Accord firemen were joined at the scene by crews from Rochester No. 2 and Allgerville. Firemen laid hose lines to a pond nearby and were successful in halting the flames before they destroyed the front portion of the building.

James Minter, owner of the building, and his family were away for the weekend and the house was unoccupied when the fire broke out.

Firemen said the cause of the fire has not been determined and that it is under investigation by Ellenville State Police.

Meanwhile, Kingston firemen were called out twice Friday, the first time to the former Mid-City Lanes on Cornell Street, owned by John Ferraro.

A telephone call summoned firemen to the one-story masonry building, where they found a heavy concentration of smoke from a fire burning in a small pile of trash and in a trash container nearby. The blaze was put out with pressurized extinguishers, with damage confined to a small area of the floor and carpeting. Firemen called the fire "incendiary" in origin and Kingston police were called in to investigate its origin.

Another telephone call, this one at 7:26 p.m., brought firemen from Engine One and Three, Truck One and Salvage to a two-story brick row type building at 11 West Union Street. Firemen found heavy smoke coming from a pile of rugs under the first floor hallway of the building and extinguished the blaze with pressurized extinguishers and hose lines. The building, owned by D. S. Ellenbogen of 1 Albany Avenue, was vacant on the first floor. A second floor apartment is occupied by the Arthur Cristell family.

Cause of the blaze is undetermined and police are investigating. Damage was confined to the stairway partition on the floor and the hall to the upstairs apartment, with some water damage to the first floor hallway. Firemen were back on station at 8:24 p.m.

In Memoriam
In loving memory of my husband, Andrew Krom, who passed away November 25, 1971.

What I would give to see your face,
And sit and talk awhile with you,
And see you smile once again.
The blow was sudden, the shock severe,
You left without even saying goodbye,
I am so lonely without you,
And there is no one can ever take your place,
In my heart.

MABEL

In Memoriam
In loving memory of my daughter, Frances Bilyou, who passed away one year ago, November 25, 1972.

To your grave I wander
I turn and leave you there.
Some may forget you,
Now that you are gone,
But memories of you will never die,
I miss you and love you forever, dear.

Saugerties Man Killed in Fall

MT. MARION Valley Lightweight Aggregate Corp. plant on Old King's Highway Friday afternoon when he fell from a roof at the Hudson

Earl Faison, 54, who was employed at the plant as a foreman, was working on the roof of a shed about 15 feet above the ground when the accident occurred. Police said that Faison was attempting to unplug an overflow pipe from an aggregate kiln and that he had struck the pipe with a hammer in an attempt to dislodge a lump of aggregate. Faison fell from the roof, struck a cross-member support frame beside the shed, and then fell to the ground, officers reported. Faison was taken by Saugerties Ambulance Service to Kingston Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival shortly after 2:30 p.m.

Kennedy's Son 'Satisfactory'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's 12-year-old son, whose right leg was amputated above the knee a week ago, is in excellent spirits and busy undergoing physical therapy, a spokesman for Georgetown University Hospital said Saturday.

Edward M. Kennedy Jr. was working out on parallel bars and crutches. His doctors were confident that the operation last Saturday had succeeded in halting the spread of bone cancer discovered in his lower right leg.

"His spirits are excellent," the spokesman said. "His overall medical condition is satisfactory."

Young Teddy, an athletic, blond seventh-grader, began using the parallel bars Monday when he walked for the first time since his hour-long surgery. He got out of bed last Sunday night for the first time and read some of the hundreds of messages he has received offering support and prayers for his recovery.

Girl Hurt As Horse Slips

KINGSTON Jill Brown, 16, of 133 Southfield Street, Kingston, was injured Saturday afternoon when the horse she was riding slipped on the pavement and fell on her, according to police reports.

Miss Brown was riding near the A.R. Newcombe Corp. at Manor Lake shortly after noon when her horse slipped on the pavement, threw her off, and then fell on her. Miss Brown reportedly suffered a compound fracture of the right ankle, lacerations and abrasions of the right knee, and abrasions of the face and forehead. She was taken by Doctor's Ambulance to Kingston Hospital, where she was admitted for treatment.

Police Seek 2 After Cash, Checks Stolen

KINGSTON Kingston detectives are searching for two black males who reportedly took "several hundred dollars" worth of cash and checks from a woman's pocketbook at a Broadway filling station Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Robert Smith, who was helping out at the filling station owned by her father-in-law, Harry Smith, at 465 Broadway, told police that the two men entered the station about 1:15 p.m. and asked to cash a check. While she went to make a phone call to determine if the check was good, the two men grabbed a sum of money and several checks from her pocketbook, she said. She had put the cash and checks into her pocketbook to get them out of the station's cash register in case of a holdup, she told police.

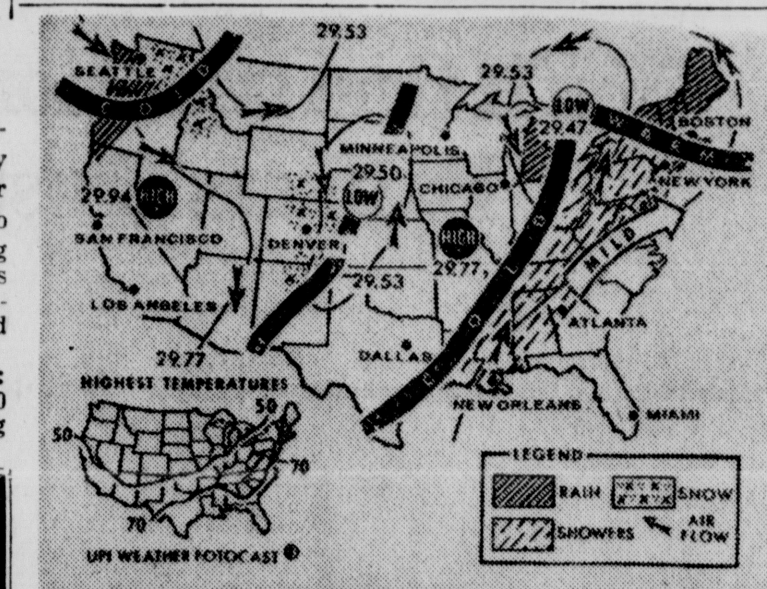

Mrs. Smith found the men gone and the receipts missing when she returned from making the phone call and was unable to tell police if the suspects had fled in a car or on foot, detectives said.

Body Found In Beacon

BEACON, N.Y. (AP) — Police found the body of Patrick Mazzarella, 46, shot through the head, and slumped in a car at an intersection Saturday.

Mazzarella had been shot several times, according to police, who discovered the body about 2 a.m.

The car was at the intersection of Fishkill and Blackburn avenues. He lived at 26 St. Luke's Place.

For Period Ending 7 p.m. EST Today
Today rain and showers will be found throughout much of the area from Louisiana Northeastward into New England and Lakes region. Rain is also likely along the north Pacific coast, while snow falls in the upper and central Rockies. Elsewhere, mostly fair weather should prevail. Maximum temperatures include: Atlanta 68, Boston 44, Chicago 52, Dallas 67, Denver 44, Duluth 35, Jacksonville 83, Kansas City 51, Los Angeles 65, Miami 85, New Orleans 79, New York 55, Phoenix 58, San Francisco 57, Seattle 48, St. Louis 51, Washington 67.

ALL IN A DAY'S WORK . . . Eight ageless runners broke the tape Friday in the annual "Life Begin at 60" Sahara Hotel marathon jog from the Sunset Strip in Hollywood to the famed Las Vegas Strip. The runners, ranging in age from 62-70 made the grueling jog—300 miles long—in 41 hours and 52 minutes, twelve minutes off the mark set in 1972. The relay-type race started in Hollywood at 8 p.m. last Wednesday and ended at the Sahara Hotel entrance at 1:41 p.m. Saturday. (UPI)

Traffic Toll Mounting

By United Press International
The Thanksgiving holiday kept some people home for the weekend, but there were no reports of travelers being marooned for lack of fuel. In Massachusetts and Vermont, officials said the mandatory 50 mile per hour speed limit was being observed "quite well," but there was some speeding, mostly by out-of-state vehicles.

A Massachusetts State police spokesman said "the ones that are involved in serious accidents are going over the limit, but it is generally quiet."

Prior to the start of the 102-hour holiday period, the National Safety Council had predicted between 625 and 725 persons would be killed in traffic accidents during the period. It was predicted another 27,000 to 32,000 would suffer disabling injuries.

The traffic toll for the nation reached the 367 figure at 9 o'clock Saturday night. The total accidental death figure, including traffic, fires, planes and from other causes totaled 444.

California counted 30 traffic fatalities, Texas 26, New York 24, Pennsylvania 22 and Ohio 21.

The traffic toll for the nation reached the 367 figure at 9 o'clock Saturday night. The total accidental death figure, including traffic, fires, planes and from other causes totaled 444.

Police said the women had been slain over a period of several months.

Police said they were investigating three possible suspects, including a 23-year old youth identified as Miss Leon's boyfriend. But sources close to the investigation said it was doubtful that any of the three young men being questioned was linked to the Leon slaying or to any of the earlier murders.

Police said there were unconfirmed reports that the stranger at times dresses as a woman, so as to be able to approach his victims without alarm.

Mexican Police Searching For 'Naucalpan Strangler'

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Police assigned 50 special agents Saturday to the search for a sex killer who has raped and strangled 19 women.

Authorities said they have almost no leads to the identity of the "Naucalpan strangler."

"Women here have started to panic," said a police spokesman.

Hunter Killed Near Monticello

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP) — Michael Rodriguez, 36, of Brooklyn, was accidentally shot and killed in a deer hunting accident near Monticello Saturday, Sullivan County sheriff's deputies said.

Rodriguez was shot in the head by a rifle held by his brother George, who was kneeling, deputies said.

They said Rodriguez' 8-year-old son witnessed the accident.

Jupiter Pictures Monday

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — The Pioneer 10 spacecraft is zeroing in on Jupiter for transmission of the first close-up color pictures ever made of the huge orange-and-blue-striped planet.

The transmission is to start Monday. Pioneer will be directed to aim its dish antenna straight back at earth for the precise radio operations required to deliver the historic photographs. The spacecraft will be three million miles from Jupiter.

On Dec. 3, a week after the transmission starts, Pioneer will be only 81,000 miles from Jupiter, the biggest mass in the solar system after the sun. By Dec. 3, Pioneer will have traveled 630 days and 494 million miles.

During Pioneer's Dec. 3 fly-by, Jupiter will be zooming outward in space at 82,000 miles per hour. Pioneer is expected to pass out of the solar system after the rendezvous.

Pioneer's operations will be directed by Pioneer Mission Control at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center here.

The control staff will work around the clock monitoring Pioneer's data transmissions on the nature of Jupiter's gaseous mass — 88,000 miles thick. Earth's diameter is 8,000 miles.

The pictures recorded Monday will appear marble-sized through a viewing instrument. In the Dec. 3 photos the planet image will fill the 8-by-8-inch viewing screen.

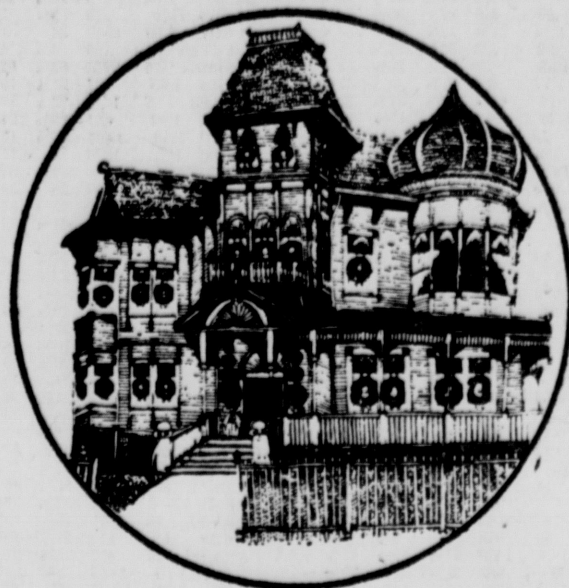

Pioneer can not gather close-up data unless its transmitting and scientific systems can survive the brush with Jupiter's intensive radiation belts, said Charles F. Hall, project manager.

Jupiter's radiation belts, generated by high energy particles trapped from the solar wind by the planet's magnetic field, are estimated to be a million times more intense than earth's, Hall said.

If Pioneer 10 successfully passes the radiation belt, its follower, Pioneer 11, will be steered on a course passing Jupiter at 20,000 miles, or 60,000 miles closer than Pioneer 10.

Pioneer 11 is already moving toward its rendezvous with Jupiter, scheduled for next year.

Mrs. Crespino Senior Vice-President

Ulster Savings Appoints Six

KINGSTON — Six key appointments—including a senior vice-president, two branch managers and a new comptroller—have been announced by Howard C. St. John, president of Ulster Savings Bank, 280 Wall Street.

Those named were:

● Colleen Crespino, an employee of the uptown bank since 1947, as the senior vice-president.

● Jenner R. Kittle, manager of the Poughkeepsie branch office, 44 Plaza.

● Gary E. Swanson, manager of the New Paltz branch bank.

● Irving J. Kotrady, comptroller.

● Clifford M. Miller, assistant treasurer.

● Charles W. Fatum, appointed acting auditor.

Mrs. Crespino, who joined the bank in 1947, became a departmental supervisor and was elected to the position of assistant treasurer in 1960. In 1969, she became the officer in charge of bank systems and in 1970 was elected assistant vice-president.

St. John, in announcing Mrs. Crespino's elevation to the senior vice-presidency, said "it is interesting to note that Mrs. Crespino is the first woman in a Kingston bank and one of the very few in the state to achieve this top executive position."

Kittle, an employee of USB since 1964 after a career of 21 years in the U.S. Navy, has held several positions with the uptown banking institution including Savings Bank Life Insurance representative and branch manager of the New Paltz branch office. He is a member of Rotary Club of New Paltz, a director of the New Paltz Chamber of Commerce, a member of Kingston Lodge, 10, F & AM and Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church in Kingston.

Swanson, a member of the bank family since 1965, also has served in several capacities including Savings Department supervisor and most recently as the bank's auditor. President St. John, in announcing Swanson's promotion, said "he takes with him the experience necessary to continue the fine growth record we have experienced in New Paltz. He is a graduate of Ulster County Community College. Swanson and his wife reside in Sunset Park with their one child.

Kotrady, a 20-year veteran employee of the bank, has served as head teller, 11 years as the bank auditor and most recently as the Poughkeepsie office branch manager. He joined the bank in 1952. St. John praised the new bank's comptroller for his dedicated work and especially the "outstanding job he has done in opening our new Poughkeepsie branch. That branch, largely through Irv Kotrady's efforts, has far surpassed our projected growth."

The new comptroller served in the U.S. Army European Theater of operations during World War 2, is a 1964 graduate of the American Institute of Banking, having received its standard certificate. He also is a graduate of the Graduate School of Savings Banking at Brown University. Kotrady is a member of Rotary Club International, is actively involved as a member of the Rondout Valley United Methodist Church and is treasurer of the building fund for the church.

Miller, in his new post as assistant treasurer, will be responsible for the Savings Department of the bank's main office. He began his bank career in March 1973, is a graduate of Rutgers University in 1964 and is presently enrolled in the MBA program at Marist College, Poughkeepsie. He served five years in the U.S. Air Force where he attained the rank of captain as a B-52 navigator. He and his wife, Elizabeth, reside with their two children on Elmendorf Tract.

Fatum began his banking career with USB in 1971 with five years of banking experience. The appointed acting auditor is a graduate of Kingston High School and Ulster County Community College. He has held several posts within the bank in the mortgage servicing and origination departments.

Big Deposit Inflow

NEW YORK — Savings banks posted a net deposit inflow of $71 million into 27 New York State savings banks during the first 15 calendar days of November—the first such gain in six months—was reported today by the Savings Banks Association of New York State.

Pointing up the marked reversal of the deposit experience, Ira O. Scott, Jr., executive vice president of the association, compared the November two-week figure with the net outflow of $172 million during the same period last month. He noted that in the first half of November, 1972, the banks posted a net inflow of $89 million.

Scott attributed one of the probable causes of the turnaround in deposit flows to the "neutralization of commercial bank competition" following the elimination of the wild card certificates November 1st. "This, in effect, had been the major cause of net deposit outflows last month," Scott said, "when the competitive pull of open market rates had materially weakened."

The sample reported an inflow of $15 million in the November period, compared with a net deposit outflow of $4.4 million in the first half of October and a $15 million inflow in the first half of November, 1972. All figures are after adjustment for passbook loans to save interest dividends.

HST Minced No Words in Views of Nixon, Others

NEW YORK (UPI) — The late President Harry S. Truman once said Richard Nixon was a "shifty-eyed, Goddamn liar," whom he detested, according to a new book.

Writer Merle Miller's latest book, "Plain Speaking," included a series of interviews with Truman at Independence, Mo., in which Truman said Nixon could be defeated easily in any presidential election.

Asked why, Truman replied: "Because Nixon is a shifty-eyed, Goddamn liar, and people know it." Truman replied, "I can't figure out how he came so close to getting elected president in 1960. They say young Kennedy deserves a lot of credit for licking him, but I just can't see it. I can't see how the son of a bitch even carried one state."

Truman, who was 77 years old at the time of the interviews, some of which were tape-recorded, said Nixon and former Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri were the "only two men in the whole history of the country that I can't stand."

In the book, Truman was quoted as calling former Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark a "damn fool from Texas" whose appointment was "my biggest mistake" as president.

He said Dwight D. Eisenhower, his successor as President, was a weak field commander in the Army and was "nothing but a damn coward" during the early 1950s when the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R-Wis., was charging widespread Communist infiltration in the government.

As for Gen. Douglas MacArthur, whom he dismissed from command for insubordination during the Korean war, Truman said, "There were times when he ... well, I'm afraid when he wasn't right in the head."

Truman said he fired MacArthur "because he wouldn't respect the authority of the president. I didn't fire him because he was a dumb son of a bitch, although he was..."

... in deep thought (UPI Telephoto)

Dems Hoping Ted Won't Run

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten years after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, his brother and political heir, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, is under increasing political and family pressure to forego a 1976 presidential bid.

Many Democratic leaders across the country, interviewed in recent weeks, would prefer that the Massachusetts senator stay out of a 1976 race they hope will return their party to White House control.

They fear that the lingering impact of the Chappaquiddick incident, in which a secretary in Kennedy's car drowned, could counteract the gains they expect to receive from voter reaction to the Watergate scandals of the Nixon administration.

A Kennedy candidacy, they say, could create an unnecessary note of division in what most party leaders hope can be a relatively united Democratic party.

In addition, even before his 12-year-old son's right leg was amputated last week in an effort to arrest bone cancer, Kennedy was under strong family pressure to forego a 1976 race.

The senator revealed this in an interview, filmed before his son was stricken but shown Wednesday on NBC's "Today" show. He said, "My wife Joan and my sisters, mother and nieces and nephews are uniformly against" a 1976 candidacy but that he hasn't made up his mind and imagined they would back whatever decision he makes. He has considerable family responsibility with three children of his own as well as the 13 fatherless children of his two brothers nearing maturity. It was this family situation that prompted Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield to say on NBC's "Meet the Press" last Sunday that he hopes Kennedy doesn't run. Kennedy's current Senate term runs out in 1976.

However, Mansfield said he felt Kennedy could probably have the presidential nomination almost for the asking if he wants it.

Most other top Democrats would disagree. It is clear that Kennedy would have to battle other Democrats for the presidential nomination.

Sens. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas and Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota are already out making soundings and Govs. John J. Gilligan of Ohio and Daniel Walker of Illinois are among many others expressing interest.

While a Kennedy decision to run would probably narrow the field, some of these would almost certainly run in any case.

Kennedy has indicated that he plans to campaign actively for fellow Democrats in 1974 but won't decide on a presidential race until the following year. He needs to do less advance preparation than other potential candidates because of the reservoir of Kennedy supporters around the country.

UCCC Prof to Air Financial Crisis

STONE RIDGE — Edward P. Nadel, an Associate Professor of Economics at Ulster County Community College, will speak on the World Financial Crisis at 1:30 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 29, at an International Education Seminar being held for members of the UCCC faculty at the Stone Ridge campus.

This talk is one in a series of UCCC Faculty Seminars on Global Trends being presented this fall. They are being jointly sponsored by the International Education Seminar and the UCCC. He is the sole survivor of four Kennedy sons, two of them assassinated in the presidency or Teachers Education Project at New Paltz and the UCCC Committee on International Education.

The intention of the series is to bring together a cross section of the UCCC faculty for the purpose of sharing major global trends developing in major specialized areas.

Professor Nadel, a director of International Education at Ulster, has studied the world financial crisis for the last seven years and in his talk he will seek to predict trends and indicate current issues rather than giving merely solutions.

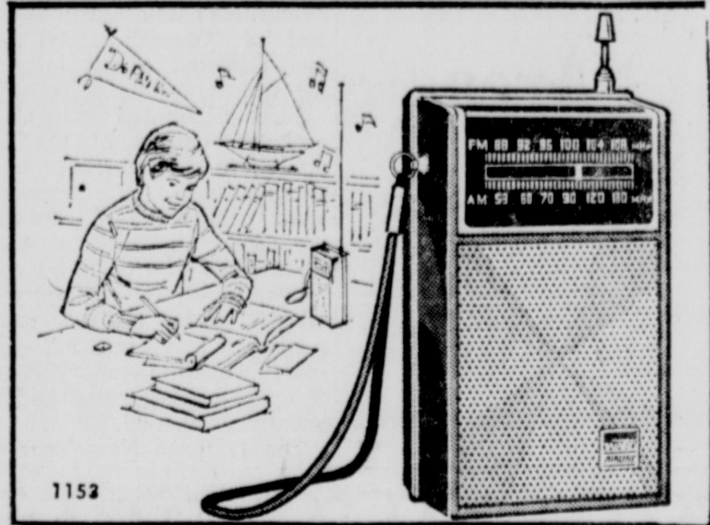

A resident of Stone Ridge, Nadel has been at UCCC since 1967. He earned his BA Degree from Queens College and his MA Degree from Northwestern University, and currently is working on his doctorate degree at the New School for Social Research.

AD's to Vote For Rose Rep

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—Ties don't usually settle anything, but both coaches felt the 10-10 deadlock Michigan and Ohio State played to Saturday decided which of them goes to the Rose Bowl.

"We had to win this one to go and we didn't," a surprisingly affable Woody Hayes, coach of Ohio State, said.

"If they vote to send Michigan, Michigan deserves to go," Coach Bo Schembechler of the Wolverines said. "Why? If you have to ask that question, you didn't see the game."

Michigan entered the game with a 10-0 record and a No. 4 ranking while Ohio State will not be ranked No. 1 next week with its 9-0-1 record.

The Big Ten athletic directors are being polled by telephone and the announcement of their vote will be made in Chicago at 1 p.m. (CST) today.

If they deadlock, 5-5, that means Ohio State, since it went last, will be eliminated and Michigan will be declared the Rose Bowl representative.

Should Michigan go, it likely will have to play without its regular quarterback, junior Dennis Franklin, who scored the game-tying touchdown on a daring ten-yard dash on the fourth down in the fourth quarter but was hurt later in the game. He suffered what is believed to be a broken right collar bone which will require surgery.

"Oh no, for God's sakes no," Hayes said when he learned of the injury. "I thought he just had a shoulder separation. That's a shame, what a dirty shame. He won't be able to play in the Rose Bowl."

Two last-minute field goal attempts of 58 and 44 yards by Michigan's Mike Lantry had the distance but were wide to the left and then the right and so the national collegiate record crowd of 105,223 and the national television audience will not know until the Big Ten announces which of the two teams will go to the Rose Bowl at 1 p.m. CDT today, when the vote is announced in Chicago.

Michigan, which entered the game a three-point underdog and finished with a 10-0-1 record, flubbed an excellent opportunity to win when Ohio State coach Woody Hayes inserted senior quarterback Greg Hare in place of sophomore Cornelius Greene to throw the first Buckeye pass of the game late in the fourth quarter only to see it intercepted.

Safety Tom Drake stepped in front of halfback Brian Baschnagel on the 42 of Ohio State and took it to the 33 with 52 seconds left in the game.

Senior quarterback Larry Cipa, who entered the game when junior Dennis Franklin suffered a shoulder injury on the previous drive, ran one play and threw an incomplete pass to stop the clock—Lut Lantry, who had only missed three of 10 field goals all year, was wide to the right and Hare got a chance to throw three more incomplete passes before the clock ran out.

Franklin had engineered the Wolverines from their own 11 to the Ohio State 49 with less than six minutes to play before his shoulder was hurt when he was hit after completing a pass to fullback Ed Shuttlesworth. Cipa gained eight more yards before Lantry missed his 58-yard field goal try.

Ohio State was held without a first down in the first quarter but sensational sophomore Archie Griffin set up a 31-yard field goal by Blair Conway with a 36-yard run on the first play of the third quarter as the Buckeyes took a 3-0 lead.

Griffin, who gained 163 yards to enhance his Heisman Trophy chances, also set up a five-yard TD run by freshman Pete Johnson with just 53 seconds left in the first half when he carried five times for 41 yards in a 55-yard drive. Johnson carried three Wolverines with him into the end zone to give the Buckeyes a 10-0 halftime advantage.

Franklin kept hanging the ball off over center to a Shuttlesworth at the start of the second half and that, with some key passes on second game interspersed, set up a 30-yard field goal by Lantry and the junior's own game-tying TD.

The Buckeyes, 9-0-1, and apparently deprived of their first national title since 1968, had stopped Franklin on the option play and Michigan abandoned it until Franklin faked to Shuttlesworth up the middle and swept right end untouched for the game-tying TD.

Coach Bo Schembechler went for the tying points by kick and disdained the try for two since the game still had nine minutes to play, his defense was working and his offense moving the ball.

Shuttlesworth gained 115 yards with 29 carries, most of those in the second half, while Franklin, who was intercepted by Neil Colzie in the end zone in a second half drive, completed seven of 12 passes for 99 yards. His 27-yard pass to tight end Paul Seal set up the lone touchdown by the Wolverines.

TD DANCE — Michigan's Dennis Franklin (9) dances wildly in the end zone after scoring tying touchdown Saturday against Ohio State. Franklin faked to Ed Shuttlesworth and rolled around right end for the score on a fourth down play. Later, Franklin broke his collar bone. Game ended in a 10-10 tie. (UP)

KICKOFF RETURN—Kermit Johnson of the UCLA Bruins side steps Southern Cal's Ray Rodriguez (52) as he returns the kick-off to the 27-yard line in first period action Saturday. Southern Cal upset the Bruins, 23-13, to gain a berth in the Rose Bowl against the Big Ten representative. (UPI)

Bowl Berth For Trojans

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—University of Southern California will go to the Rose Bowl for the sixth time in eight years and the Trojans' John McKay wasn't afraid to say why after his club beat UCLA 23-13 Saturday.

"It was our best game," said a smiling, cigar-chomping McKay in a jubilant USC dressing room, "and undoubtedly, it wasn't their best because of their fumbles."

The underdog Trojans recovered four fumbles and intercepted two passes to beat the wishbone Bruins.

"This brought us back to where we belong—in the Rose Bowl," McKay said. "I think we're going to play Michigan, but I really haven't thought about that yet."

In a subdued UCLA locker room, Pepper Rodgers slouched with one leg propped up on a chair and frowned: "Six turnovers was it. Otherwise it was a pretty close game. We just haven't done that before, but everybody did it."

McKay said his Trojans used the same formations they did in holding No. 3-rated Oklahoma, also a wishbone team, to a 7-7 tie. He also cited the quickness of his linebackers for stopping UCLA's outside running game.

"You're not going to outrun our linebackers," McKay said.

Pat Haden, the slick junior quarterback from West Covina, Calif., and tailback Anthony Davis each scored a touchdown in the game that gave the No. 9-ranked Trojans the Pacific Eight championship.

Davis, becoming the second Trojan running back in history to gain 1,000 yards in two straight seasons, scored on a four-yard run in the opening quarter and Haden passed 16 yards to his coach's son, Johnny McKay, for a second period score.

But it was mistakes that hurt the eighth-rated Bruins, who went into the game as the nation's No. 1 scoring and rushing team. They committed two turnovers in each of the last three quarters.

Little Chris Limahelu, a 5-foot-5 Indonesian-born soccer style kicker, booted field goals of 35, 32 and 28 yards for the Trojans. His last two 3-pointers were the only Trojan scores in the second half.

USC, which lost to Notre Dame and tied Oklahoma, was a three-point underdog, the first time the Bruins have been favored in the game since 1961.

But given six turnovers and able to control the ball on Davis' running and Haden's scrambling, USC nullified the high-powered Bruin wishbone.

UCLA's only touchdown came in the second quarter on a three-yard run by Kermit Johnson. Efrén Herrera kicked a 42-yard field goal in the opening quarter and booted a 27-yarder in the last quarter.

Artimus Parker, USC's senior safety and holder of the Pac-8 record for career pass interceptions, picked off a John Scarra pass and recovered a fumble by Johnson late in the second quarter. It was Parker's eighth interception of the season and the 20th in his career.

By winning, USC extended its Pac-8 unbeaten string to 18 games. The Trojans have won 14 conference games in a row.

UCLA, which finished the season at 9-2, had a nine-game winning streak broken.

By collecting 174 yards in the first half, the Bruins broke the all-time conference total offense record of 4,956 yards set by the 1970 USC team. UCLA needed only 11 yards in the game.

USC scored the first two times it had the ball, marching 68 and 80 yards for its touchdowns.

After kicking off and making the Bruins punt, the Trojans took 15 plays to march from their own 32 to score, with Davis going in to the end zone on a pitch-out from Haden around right end.

On the drive, Haden completed three passes for 30 yards. The march was kept alive when Davis ran five yards around right end on a fourth-and-three situation on the UCLA 27.

After Herrera's 42 yarder, USC needed 12 plays to score, with Haden hitting McKay in the end zone on a scramble play.

Haden, an understudy to Mike Rae on last year's national championship USC team, completed 8 of 15 passes for 94 yard, while Davis, the hard-running junior from San Fernando, Calif., rolled up 145 yards in 27 carries.

Johnson, UCLA's career and single season rushing record holder, picked up 107 yards in 17 carries. James McAlister carried the ball 23 times for 98 yards.

Americans Lead World Cup by Three

MARBELLA, Spain (UPI)—Jack Nicklaus called his performance "lousy" and Johnny Miller said his was "atrocious," but the two combined for a 145 Saturday to enable the United States to maintain a three-stroke lead over a resurgent South African team after the third round of the World Cup golf competition.

In addition, both Nicklaus and Miller moved into a tie with Lu Lian-Huan of Taiwan for individual honors with totals of 210.

Hugh Baiocchi scored a three-under-par 69 and Gary Player had a 70 to enable South Africa to move up from fourth place into second at 423 with only one round to play on Sunday.

Both Nicklaus and Miller failed to break par for the tricky, 6,905-yard Nueva Andalucia course, shooting a 73 and a 72 respectively to bring their 54-hole total to a 12-under-par 420.

Miller's 72 came just one day after he set a record of 65 for the par-72 course, and neither he nor Nicklaus could give an explanation for their scores.

The South Africans were seven under par and only one stroke behind the United States after nine holes Saturday. But then came what Player called the "drama at the 11th hole," where Baiocchi took a penalty drop for a double bogey and Player, upset after an argument with course officials, bogied the hole.

Player's three-round total was 211 and Baiocchi's 212.

Taiwan's defending champions, Hsieh Min-Nan and Lu, scored a 68 and a 74 respectively to retain third place with a total of 425.

Argentine veterans Roberto de Vicenzo, 50, and Fidel de Luca 51, who had led the field of 49 teams after the first round, dropped from second to fourth place when de Vicenzo shot a 75 and de Luca a 77 for a total of 432.

The Japanese, Spanish, Thai and Puerto Rican teams, which had held fifth through eighth places after two rounds, failed to produce scores even approaching par and all dropped far behind the leading teams.

Most of the third-round golfing was as dull as the weather, with Hsieh's 68, Baiocchi's 69 and another 69 by Randall Vines of Australia the only outstanding results.

Both Baiocchi and Vines eagled the 505-yard, par-five third hole, each hitting to within 25 feet of the pin with a three-iron and then holing the putt.

Miller said he thought the many bad results were caused by the tricky greens.

"You never get a flat putt here, you never get an easy putt," he said. "The course is okay, it's just the greens."

Nicklaus said, "I played lousy. Neither Johnny nor I played as good as we can. But I played worse."

The 11th hole, which cost

South Africa three strokes, is a difficult 210-yard par three, with water enclosing the left of the green.

Baiocchi drove into the water, and taking a penalty drop twice dropped the ball, which rolled back into the water each time. After two drops like this, a player must place his ball on the spot where the second drop landed before it rolled into the water.

There was some discussion about this, since Player thought it could be placed within two club-lengths of the drop spot. Finally, Baiocchi chipped out and took two putts for a double-bogey five. Player, visibly upset, three-putted for a bogey four.

Penn St. Tops Pitt, 35-13

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI)—Tailback John Cappelletti's five-yard touchdown run triggered a 24-point Penn State rally in the fourth period Saturday that gave the Orange Bowl-bound Nittany Lions a 35-13 victory over cross-state rival Pittsburgh and an unbeaten regular season.

Linebacker Tom Hull ran 27 yards with an intercepted pass for another of Penn State's fourth-period touchdowns; flanker Chuck Herd caught a 32-yard pass from Tom Shuman for another score and Chris Bahr kicked a 45-yard field goal—his second of the game—to turn an otherwise tight game into a rout.

Bahr also kicked a 40-yard field goal for Penn State's only points in the first half, and fullback Bob Nagle bulled one yard for another touchdown following a brilliant Pitt goal line stand in the third period as sixth-ranked Penn State ran its record to 11-0 en route to a New Year's Night Orange Bowl match against Louisiana State.

It was Penn State's third perfect season in the past six years. Pitt finished at 6-4-1, its first winning season in a decade and a brilliant first-year debut for coach Johnny Majors. Pitt, bidding for an upset prior to its Dec. 21 appearance in the Fiesta Bowl, scored all of its points in the second period on a 14-yard run by phenom-nal freshman Tony Dorsett and field goals of 31 and 50 yards by freshman Carson Long.

Cappelletti, a senior, easily outshone Dorsett in their battle for the Heisman Trophy candidates. The Penn State tailback had 161 yards on 37 carries and his touchdown ignited a Nittany Lion offense that had been consistently held in check by Pitt.

Cappelletti finished the regular season with 1,522 yards, while Dorsett, already the most productive freshman running back in college football history, ran for 77 yards on 20 carries to finish with 1,586 yards for the year.

It was Penn State's 20th consecutive victory at home, its 23rd in a row against an Eastern opponent.

Lightning Bolt Delays Game

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—Rice University quarterback Geisler in the Rice backfield, leaped backwards three yards when the bolt hit.

Referee Ken Faulkner wasted no time in calling time out and summoning Rice coach Al Conover and TCU coach Billy Tohill to the center of the field.

"No football game is worth getting someone killed," said Tohill, who had a brush with death in an auto wreck last spring that cost him his right foot and who was fired as Horned Frog coach last week.

"The refs. Al and I decided to go to the dressing rooms and wait it out."

Because of the threatening weather, the fact that there were few students on campus during the Thanksgiving holiday and the poor record of both clubs, there were only 100 people in the stands. The area where the lightning hit was empty.

The last such time an incident occurred in the Southwest Conference was 1965 when a hailstorm and tornado threat at Lubbock caused a game between Kansas and Texas Tech to be stopped 13 minutes before the final gun.

Most of those in TCU's 16-story high pressbox thought the lightning hit in the lower deck near the south goal line. People standing on the field, however, thought the bolt struck the upper deck near the pressbox. Wherever it hit, it scared people silly.

W. Va. Spoils Ben's Finale

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—

Quarterback Ben Williams ran for one touchdown and threw for another score in the first half, leading West Virginia to a 24-14 college football victory over Syracuse Saturday.

The loss spoiled retiring coach Ben Schwartzwalder's final game in his 25-year tenure at Syracuse.

West Virginia, 6-5, took a 7-0 lead late in the first period on Williams' nine-yard run. West Virginia's Jack Eastwood set up the Mountaineers' score when he recovered fullback Steve Webster's fumble at the Syracuse nine-yard line.

The Mountaineers scored their second touchdown six minutes later after Charlie Miller recovered Phil Raleigh's fumble at the West Virginia 47 and Williams found Gabe Jagdmann alone in the endzone with a 13-yard pass.

Syracuse, 2-9, closed the gap to 14-7 midway in the second quarter on Dennis Blatt's two-yard run. Gary Sweat blocked a West Virginia punt and Greg Steen recovered for Syracuse at the West Virginia five, setting up Blatt's touchdown.

West Virginia made it 17-7 with only three seconds left in the half on Frank Nestor's 35-yard field goal.

A blocked punt late in the third quarter set up Blatt's second touchdown run, this time from the three-yard line, which narrowed the Mountaineers' lead to 17-14.

West Virginia sewed up the contest when Marcus Mauney intercepted a Bob Mitch pass and raced 56 yards for a touchdown with less than two minutes to play.

"I just feel like a loser right now," Schwartzwalder said. "Son of a gun, if we had just held the ball. . . . Our kids gave it everything they had. Now I hope they work at it this winter and just move up a few notches."

"It's horrible to lose one like this," Schwartzwalder said. "We gave it away. It's bad when you have a game that's right in your grasp. This gang of kids had character."

Syracuse quarterback Mitch said, "We all played them and we put it to them. The rain hurt them more than it hurt us. A steady rain fell throughout the game, causing miscues by both teams."

"Today was like our whole season," Mitch said. "It showed the bad mistakes went against us at the crucial times. We have a lot of guys coming back next year and I think we'll be strong."

Of Schwartzwalder, Mitch said, "I hate to see him go out this way. He wanted to win so bad."

Syracuse fumbled five times, losing the ball four times, while West Virginia suffered two pass interceptions.

On the drive, Haden completed three passes for 30 yards. The march was kept alive when Davis ran five yards around right end on a fourth-and-three situation on the UCLA 27.

After Herrera's 42 yarder, USC needed 12 plays to score, with Haden hitting McKay in the end zone on a scramble play.

Haden, an understudy to Mike Rae on last year's national championship USC team, completed 8 of 15 passes for 94 yard, while Davis, the hard-running junior from San Fernando, Calif., rolled up 145 yards in 27 carries.

Johnson, UCLA's career and single season rushing record holder, picked up 107 yards in 17 carries. James McAlister carried the ball 23 times for 98 yards.

Maryland Upsets Tulane

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI)—Tailback Louis Carter passed for two touchdowns and ran for two more to power Peach Bowl-bound Maryland to a 42-9 victory over 16th-ranked Tulane Saturday.

Carter scored on one and four yard runs and threw touchdown passes of 32 and 44 yards on option plays. Starting quarterback Ben Kinarth threw a 57-yard touchdown pass and substitute Al Neville threw four yards to complete the Maryland scoring.

The Green Wave, headed for the Astro-Bluebonnet bowl, got this year, put the Terps ahead its only points on a four yard pass by substitute quarterback Terry Looney and a 24-yard field goal by David Falgoust.

The Terps ended their best season in 18 years with an 8-3 record. Tulane is 8-2 and finishes its season next week against LSU.

Carter, a 6-foot 190-pound junior, scored on a one-yard plunge in the first quarter shortly after Tulane's John Washington fumbled a punt on his own 34. While the Terp defense stymied a penalty-prone Greenie offense, Carter, who has thrown for five TDs this year, put the Terps ahead 14-0 in the second period on a 22-yard pass to Frank Russell, who made a diving catch in the end zone.

Tulane threatened late in the first half after recovering a Maryland fumble at the Terp 35, but could not penetrate the five and Falgoust kicked his field goal. Looney led a 71-yard drive in the fourth period capped by the four yard TD pass to Mike Foley.

Maryland, which scored 319 points this season, second highest in the school's history, broke the game open with two third quarter touchdowns to build a 28-3 lead.

Kansas Edges Missouri

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI)—David Jaynes twice fired 14-yard touchdown passes in the fourth quarter, the first to Bruce Adams and the second to Emmett Edwards with 1:37 to play Saturday, and freshman Mike Love kicked the winning extra points, lifting Liberty Bowl-bound Kansas to a come-back 14-13 victory over Sun Bowl-bound Missouri.

The final touchdown came on a fourth-down play, capping a 42-yard drive that began with a 4:17 left. Jaynes dropped straight back and pegged a perfect strike to Edwards, the Big Eight's leading pass receiver who made a diving catch with Missouri's John Mosley hanging all over him at the goal line.

Missouri built a 13-0 lead with two lightning like touchdowns in a one-minute 44-second span late in the third.

Junior quarterback Ray Smith, making his first start ever, broke around the right side on an option play and scampered 45 yards for the touchdown that broke a scoreless deadlock with 3:51 left in the period.

When Kansas was stopped on the ensuing possession, Mosley fielded Marc Harris' punt and escaped a series of tackles before breaking out of the pack behind Bob McRoberts' field-clearing block and scoring on a 53-yard return with 2:07 left in the third quarter.

Greg Hill, who missed three field goal attempts, also missed the second point after touchdown, his first failure of the season after 20 straight conversions.

Kansas, riding the passing arm of Jaynes, barreled right back into the game after Mosley's punt return. The Jayhawks skipped 76 yards in the ensuing possession, Mosley

IN THERE—Doug Lind (25) of Dartmouth dives in for a touchdown early in first quarter of Saturday's game against Princeton at Palmer Stadium. Dartmouth won its fifth straight Ivy League title with a 42-24 victory. (UPI)

Ivy to Dartmouth

PRINCETON (UPI) — Dartmouth captured its fifth consecutive Ivy League championship Saturday with a 42-24 victory over a Princeton team that gave up two crucial touchdowns by fumbling inside its 10-yard line twice.

Running back Rick Klupchak scored the touchdowns on short bursts in the third quarter to turn a 14-11 contest into a rout that ended Princeton's worst season in 105 years of football with a 1-8 record.

Ellis Rowe carried for 51 yards during a 73-yard drive and bulldozed seven yards for a score, and Klupchak dashed over from the eight following a pass interception by Jim Conterato in the fourth period.

While Yale was defeating Harvard to ruin the Crimson's chances for a tie for the title, Dartmouth quarterback Tom Snickenberger was the winner in a personal duel with his older brother Walt, the Princeton running star. Tom Snickenberger threw a 53-yard touchdown pass to Tom Fleming and directed a 50-yard drive to the first score that set Dartmouth on its way to its 10th Ivy League title since 1956 with a 6-3 record.

Walt Snickenberger dashed eight yards on a fourth-and-one play for Princeton's first TD that kept the Tigers close at 14-11 at half time. Mark Skof booted a 17-yard field goal in his first kicking appearance for Princeton's other first half points.

Princeton fumbled in a light rain the first two times it handled the ball in the third quarter. Quarterback Ron Deible fumbled away a backward pass as he was tackled by a blitzing Conterato, and Skip Cummins recovered on the Princeton four. Klupchak carried to the three and scored on the next play. On a punt attempt on the next Princeton series Ed Kuchar fumbled at Princeton's eight, and Klupchak scored from the five to clinch the victory.

Klupchak gained 154 yards and broke the Dartmouth career rushing record of 1,763 yards set by coach Jake Crouthamel in the late 1950's. Klupchak totaled 1,788 yards.

Yale 35, Harvard 0

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — Yale's reserve quarterback Kevin Rogan, starting his first varsity game, dashed Harvard's Ivy League title hopes

Saturday by directing the spirited Elis to a 35-0 romp over Harvard.

Harvard's defeat in this 90th resumption of "The Game" combined with Dartmouth's triumph over Princeton, left the defending champion Big Green atop the Ivy League with a 6-1 mark and dropped Harvard into a second place tie with Yale and Penn at 5-2.

It was Yale's most decisive victory over Harvard since a 54-0 win in 1957.

Rogan, a senior who replaced injured regular Tom Dove, passed 36 yards to end Gary Fencik for one score, and handed off for touchdown runs of six and four yards by halfback Rudy Green and one yard plunges by fullback John Donohue and halfback Tyrell Hennings.

Yale's defensive play carried the day for the Elis who entered the game a 3½-point favorite. Halfback Elvin Chantry, who held Harvard's stand-out end Pat McNally to only three receptions, intercepted two Jim Stoeckel passes that set up two first half Yale TDs.

A fourth quarter fumble recovery by end Rick Fehling paved the way for Yale's final touchdown.

Knicks Fall, 107-99

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors opened a 25-point second quarter lead then hung on to defeat the New York Knicks, 107-99, Saturday night as Jim Barnett scored 24 points and Cazzie Russell added 20.

The Knicks closed to within seven points twice in the final period, 89-82 and 95-88. A five-point spurt by Barnett and a pair of foul shots by Rick Barry opened a 103-90 Warrior lead with 3:06 remaining and New York could not catch up from that point.

Walt Frazier's barrage of 34 points kept New York in the game. He scored 14 points in the third period after netting 16 in the opening half. The Knicks' leading scorer then fouled out with 2:14 left in the game.

Barnett's and Russell's scoring came in spurts. Russell, matched against Bill Bradley, had a hot hand in the first period as the Warriors took a 36-20 lead. Golden State led 63-48 at halftime as Barnett scored 10 points in the second period.

Barnett added 14 in the final quarter.

Bucks 112, Hawks 92

ATLANTA (UPI) — The 30-point scoring of Bob Dandridge and a strong second half defense gave the Milwaukee Bucks a 112-92 victory over the Atlanta Hawks Saturday night.

Dandridge had 14 points in the first half, and 16 in the second. Atlanta's Lou Hudson scored 25 in the first half, as Atlanta took a 57-51 lead.

The Bucks double-teamed him in the second half, holding him to four points.

Hudson is normally a forward, but played guard most of the game because of Atlanta's injuries at that position. Starting guards Pete Maravich and Herm Gilliam are both out with injuries. Gilliam has missed the last eight games, and Maravich injured a heel in a game Friday night.

Milwaukee had been in a mild slump, losing three of the last four games before Saturday, but the Bucks 17-4 record leads the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division.

Ewald Nyquist's Speech

by Charles J. Tiano, Sports Editor

Ewald B. Nyquist, the New York State Commissioner of Education, delivered an address before the 54th annual meeting of the National Federation of High School Associations at Bloomington, Minn., in July of this year that should be required reading for every high school principal, college and junior college president, coaches and athletic directors in the country. And that special breed, the talent scouts, many of whom are totally dedicated to the perpetuation of sports dynasties, regardless of the ground rules.

Ewald's hard-hitting speech which stripped away all the hypocrisies of the interscholastic sports world, was entitled, simply enough, "Equity in Athletics—Or A Ms. Is As Good As A Male." Don't let the title fool you. It went far beyond that domain of sports.

While male chauvinists and probably 98 per cent of the sports editors across the country feel that the girls' participation on boys' varsities is an abomination, not so Mr. Nyquist. "No sports program today should be tolerated if it continues to short-change girls," the commissioner told his Minnesota audience. "There are men amongst us who would like to put all these non-militant women behind bars. And there are those who mourn that now that women have everything, they want to add lib. I am a militant feminist and have been for a long time. 'Lib and Let lib' is my motto and I believe, too, that a Ms. is as good as a male."

Bully, for Ewald Nyquist, who proves that it is possible to own the ponderous titles of President of the University of the State of New York and Commissioner of Education, State Education Department, Albany, N.Y. and still have a finally honed sense of humor.

For about 10 years, the State Education Department periodically was asked to permit girls to compete on boys' teams in a few sports like golf, swimming and riflery, but all requests were denied on the basis of then existing Regulations of the Commissioner (not Nyquist's). But that position was challenged in 1969 when an outstanding girl tennis player filed a show-cause suit.

Nyquist's department undertook an experimental program between March 1969 and June 1970 in which about 160 schools participated and were allowed to include girls on boys' interscholastic teams in selected non-contact sports. Tennis and golf, of course, were the most popular.

When the experiment was over, the boy participants, girls, parents and coaches responded as follows:

84 per cent of the boy team members said girls should be allowed on their teams.

99 per cent of the girls would want to be on a boys' team again.

93 per cent of the parents recommended that highly talented girls be allowed on boys' varsity teams.

86 per cent of the participating coaches would have a girl on their team.

74 per cent of the opposing coaches would want a girl on their team, if she was good enough.

Today, the state policy permits mixed competition in all sports except 12 specific contact sports such as football, basketball and baseball.

Commenting on the all-winning philosophy and its inherent evils, Nyquist said, "The goal in competition surely is to win but not under any condition. This is an ideal not fully lived up to. Our theory is better than our practice."

"It is incumbent upon all of us to keep inter-scholastic sports in proper perspective," Nyquist added. "In balance with what else the schools have to do and without the abuses and evils and inequities which have surfaced to public view throughout the nation in recent years at all levels of athletics—Little League, high school, junior college, college and professional ranks."

Nyquist tossed a few questions at his audience, among them:

What does it mean when a public school league refuses to permit another school district to join the league and the ugly rumor is that the excluded school district is composed largely of blacks?

What does it mean when a serious study is concluded of interscholastic athletics and the conclusions are that athletics do not teach character?

What can we say of a nation that seems to have more reverence for its athletic heroes than for its intellectuals?

What can we say of our values when parents press to have their sons declared eligible for football when they have handicapping conditions...lik one eye, one kidney...?

What about the continuous pressure for extending football and basketball schedules?

What does it say for us when the recent Olympics were characterized by one noted columnist as "a time of bloodshed, bungling and bitterness."

Nyquist had a couple of other zingers for his listeners.

What do you think of the purposes of education when coaches press for eligibility rules in high school which permit red-shirting?

What about the willing accommodations in high schools of pressure-cooker recruitment practices and tactics and code violations on the part of junior college, college and university personnel?

Do we always have in mind a sense of equity and for who the rules are made—not for the parents and their natural overbearing expectations, not for the principal of the school and the enhancement of his leadership position, not for the coaches and the advancement of their careers—but just for the kids? This is not arguable.

Doug Looney, who writes about sports for The National Observer, said in an article last fall, after covering a symposium on sports and ethics held at one of the colleges in New York State:

"Whatever the extent of cheating, there's a feeling afoot in our country that at the very least there is enormous tampering with the spirit of sport, excessive messing around that can extract the guts of any game."

The late Vince Lombardi said: "Winning isn't everything—it's the only thing" and we disagreed.

A junior college basketball coach with a national reputation when asked to comment on UCC's forgery case replied without emotion: "I think most of us would take that chance if we thought we could get away with it." That reply answers a lot of questions.

State Central Ski Areas Set

ALBANY — Ski centers in Central New York State have spent almost a half million dollars preparing for the winter's influx of skiers, reports the New York State Department of Commerce.

Thousands of out-of-staters as well as New Yorkers flock to this ski-happy region every year to schuss their favorite trails and enjoy the company of old skiing companions. Since many skiers repeatedly return to the area, the opening weeks of the ski season resemble homecomings. There's a comradeship between the ski center operators and their loyal patrons.

One reason that Central New York is so popular with skiers is the number of ski areas concentrated within a short distance of each other. For instance, seven are no more than 20 miles apart — ideal for skiers who like to hop ski centers.

Skibuffs can easily reach the central part of the state via expressways. Interstate 81 cuts right through the region, from the Pennsylvania border to Canada. The New York State Thruway intersects 81 at Syracuse and Route 17, the southern Tier Expressway, intersects it at Binghamton. Skiers returning to Labrador Mountain at Truxton in Cortland County will find a new 4,000-foot-long chair lift and two new trails from the top. They also have expanded their snowmaking and lights to cover 80 per cent of the area and the parking lot has been enlarged.

As a matter of fact, there should be plenty of snow in the Central area this year, even if nature doesn't furnish it, for additional snowmaking equipment dominated the list of new facilities.

Toggenburg Ski Center at Fabius in Onondaga County concentrated on improvements to their snowmaking, lighting and grooming capabilities. The old snow-making and lighting systems were replaced with new equipment and, at the same time, two more trails were lighted and snowmaking doubled to cover 80 per cent of the ski area.

Nearby Mystic Mountain in

New Woodstock also expanded their lighting and added a new 2,300-foot trail. Song Mountain, Tully expanded their snowmaking and added a new up-stairs bar where there will be live entertainment on weekends. They will have a free ski checking service in the lodge this year.

Ironwood Ridge in Cazenovia has added snowmaking equipment sufficient to cover 75 per cent of their trails. A new restaurant will be open and their redecorated cocktail lounge will feature live entertainment.

Greek Peak, south of Cortland, with 19 trails and slopes, four chairs and three lifts is the largest ski center in Central New York and attracts thousands of skiers to its slopes each year. Drumlins, in Syracuse, with one slope and a rope tow for downhill skiers, is fast becoming well-known for its excellent cross country skiing facilities. They have cross country lessons, rentals for the whole family, a 3½ mile trail and a whole golf course to ski around.

Other Central New York ski centers open daily include Innsbruck, USA in Binghamton; Val Bialis, the city-owned center in Utica; and Schumacher Mountain in Little Falls. New last year, this will be Schumacher's first full year of operation. It has a 750 vertical, seven slopes and trails, one chair, a T-bar and a rope tow.

On weekends, the following are also open: CatOratory; Fun Haven, five miles west of Earlville; Gunset Ski Bowl, Richfield Springs; and Mount Otsego, seven miles north of Cooperstown.

All New York State ski centers are listed in "Ski New York," published by the New York State Department of Commerce, 99 Washington Avenue, Albany, N. Y. 12210. A free copy may be obtained by writing the department.

Just a Few Pit Stops

By GARY KALE
NEW YORK (UPI) — Stopping at the pits:

The Sports Car Club of America, mindful of the current energy crisis, has established fuel limitations for next year's 75-mile Can-Am sprint and 125-mile Canadian-American Challenge Cup format. A 73-gallon ration is set for Group 7 races in 1974, 25 gallons for the 75-milers, 41 for the longer distances and seven gallons in reserve for refueling.

Wally Dallenbach won't take an alcoholic drink for at least 24 hours before a race. The California 500 winner says he has too much respect for 4,000 pounds of moving steel to fool around.

"Alcohol slows your reflexes, and reflexes are the name of the game, no matter where you're driving."

Time trials for the Acme 500 stock car race at Pocono International Raceway in Pennsylvania is set for Friday, April 26, with the main event scheduled for the next day. Richard Petty was the first driver to have his name engraved on the four-foot replica of the Liberty Bell when he won the trophy this year...

David Pearson, 1973 Driver of the Year, is only the fifth wheelman to earn a million dollars. The 38-year-old Spartanburg, S.C., stock car champion achieved that plateau this year and joined an elite group that includes A. J. Foyt, Mario Andretti, Al Unser and Richard Petty.

Arturo Merzario of Italy turned down an opportunity to drive for BRM because he is currently driving for a cigarette company and has a contract which prohibits him from handling the wheel for other tobacco or alcohol sponsors.

Two United States Auto Club veterans died recently. Ralph Mulford had been the last survivor of the original 1911 Indianapolis 500 starting field. He passed away at the age of 82. Joe Petrilli, chief steward of USAC's land speed record division, suffered a fatal heart attack. He was 69.

Parnelli Jones, president of Ontario Motor Speedway, is enthusiastic over the prospects of a sellout after it was announced that the 1974 California 500 would be run in March instead of late summer.

Union Masters Tennis In U.S. First Time

BOSTON (UPI) — The competition this year, will be Commercial Union Masters held in the United States next tournament, which brings month for the first time in the together the top eight men's event's four year history.

tennis players in international. The $50,000 tournament will be held on a slow, clay-like synthetic surface inside Hynes Auditorium, Dec. 4-8.

Competitors in the round-robin, elimination tournament include: Ilie Nastase of Rumania, winner of the last two Masters; Tom Okker of the Netherlands; Australia's John Newcombe; Spain's Manuel Orantes; Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia and American Stan Smith and Jimmy Connors.

Tom Gorman of the United States, is almost assured of the eighth spot, but must appear in a Davis Cup singles event in Cleveland this week, picking up an automatic 30 points, to seal the final position.

The eight players invited annually to the Masters tournament earn the right to play by their standing in the Commercial Union Grand Prix, which links the major international tennis competitions to a bonus point system.

Nastase already has captured the No. 1 position for the second year and the accompanying $55,000 first prize.

The Grand Prix tour was started in 1970 by Pepsi Cola and taken over in 1972 by the Commercial Union Assurance Companies, which planned to open U.S. headquarters here to coincide with the Masters tournament.

Format for the tournament has changed since its inception in Tokyo in 1970. The tournament was decided by round-robin play for the first two years, but in 1972 the players were divided into two equally weighted divisions.

KHS Girls Lose In Volleyball

KINGSTON — Kingston High School's girls varsity volleyball team lost its opening match of the season, 2-0, to Our Lady of Lourdes High in the DCSL opener for both teams. The scores were 15-12 and 15-4. Pam Thomas and Debby Helzer were outstanding for Kingston, while Debby Varrichio, Pat Simpson and Cathy Cirning excelled for Lourdes.

Kingston captured the Jayvee match, 2-1. Sandy Mancuso's serve was a strong factor in the KHS win. Other outstanding players were Kathleen Vogt and Penny Lowry.

Area Sports Briefs Set OCS Cage Clinic

BOICEVILLE — A clinic to acquaint parents with the coaching staff and basketball program at Onteora High School will be held Tuesday, Dec. 4, at 7:30 p. m. in the high school gymnasium.

Robert Boening, a member of the Hudson Valley Basketball Officials Association will explain and demonstrate rules of the game, and varsity coach Ron Pape will give a clinic on individual and team play. Parents and their sons in grades seven through 12 are invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Red Hook Hockey Title

KINGSTON — Red Hook High's girls' field hockey team captured the Ulster County Athletic League Championship this season with a record of six wins and one defeat.

The Raiders edged New Paltz and Onteora which tied for second with 5-1-1 records. Pine Bush finished fourth at 3-2-2, followed by Ellenville at 3-4, Fallsburg at 2-5 and Coleman and Rondout at 1-6.

In the junior varsity division, Red Hook girls also came out on top. Their 6-0 record was followed by New Paltz, 4-2, Pine Bush 2-4 and Onteora, 0-6.

Lakers Still Unbeaten

SAUGERTIES — The Lakers routed the Celtics, 61-20, for their fifth straight win without a loss in the SAA Junior Basketball League.

Bullets and Nets went over the 500 mark with 3-2 records, as the Bullets trimmed the Royals 48-38 and Nets beat the Bucks 53-39.

Mike Miller led the Lakers with 17 points; Mark Sinnott and Eric Haun each had 14. Gene Langon led the losers with 13.

Eric Madsen paced Bullets with 17 points. Brian Noble had 14 and Jim Nolan 13. Russell Scally led Royals with 17. Rich Ryan hit a season high 30 points for the Nets, while

Sweden Moves to Block Hockey Exodus

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Sweden, one of Europe's top ice hockey nations, is having to take steps to block the drain of its best players to U.S. and Canadian pro clubs.

Ove Rainer, newly-elected chairman of the Swedish Ice Hockey Association, plans to give the problem top priority during his first term in office.

"I will work hard to persuade other associations to solve this problem before the professional teams in America and Canada have signed up every top player in Europe," says Rainer.

Rainer, who succeeded Helge Berglund after his 25 years in office also said that he favors Open tournaments in the world Championships.

"We have to include the best of America and Canada in the tournaments in order to improve our own ice hockey," he said. "It is nice to play the Europeans but sometimes you need refreshment."

Rainer, who also holds the office of director for the state-owned post service in Sweden, made his first move toward a solution of the pro question when he founded a pro committee inside the Swedish association to deal with the problem.

"We cannot afford to lose more players to the pro ranks. This year five of our top players have turned professional in Canada, The United States and England. We have to break this trend otherwise Sweden will be in trouble," he said.

Jude Widing, now with the Los Angeles Kings of the U.S. National Hockey League, was born in Finland but played hockey in Sweden and was the first to turn pro in 1969. Others now in the U.S. NHL are Thommie Bergman of the Detroit Red Wings, Borje Salming and Inge Hammarstrom of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Prior to this season, rumors circulated in the Swedish ice hockey world about foundation of an European Professional league. The project, sponsored by Bruce Norris, the owner of Detroit Red Wings, never materialized.

"There will be new tries to form a pro league in Europe and we had better be prepared when that day comes," says Rainer. "If our players like to turn pro, we had better find a solution which allows us to keep them at home."

Kjell Svensson, the national coach agrees.

"Doubtless the loss of five players will affect us the coming season. But I am still optimistic regarding our chances in the World Championships in Helsinki April 5-15," he said.

"Although it is not easy to find substitutes for the professional players, we have scores of promising youngsters who might fill their places during the coming years. But that is provided we can keep them at home," he said.

The Gallup Poll

Public Favors National Service for All Young

PRINCETON, N.J.

Two persons in three in a recent nationwide Gallup survey indicate support for a law which would require all young men to give a year of service to the nation — either in the military forces or in non-military work here or abroad such as Vista or the Peace Corps.

For three decades, a substantial majority of Americans have favored legislation that would require every young man to give a period of service to the nation. In the latest survey, a majority in each major population group supports national service. Young adults (under 30) are somewhat less inclined than are older persons to favor such a plan, but a majority in this age group nevertheless votes in favor of requiring every young person to serve.

The proposal has bipartisan backing with 69 per cent of Republicans and 65 per cent of Democrats voting in favor. Following is the question and the key findings: "Would you favor or oppose requiring all young men to give one year of service to the nation — either in the military forces or in non-military work here or abroad, such as Vista or the Peace Corps?"

One Year of Service
To the Nation?

	Fav.	Opp.	No Op.
	Pct.	Pct.	Pct.
Nationwide	64	29	7
Under 30 years	56	38	6
30-49 years	67	26	7
50 & over	68	24	8
Republicans	69	26	5
Democrats	65	27	8
Independents	63	32	5

The same survey shows that approximately one-third of males in the formerly draftable age group of 18 to 26 would opt for military over non-military service. In round numbers, this percentage projects to about six million men — a large reservoir of manpower. Such a national service plan would, therefore, meet the current needs of the Army, which is now having trouble filling manpower quotas. Following is the question asked to determine preferences of service, military or non-military: "Suppose all young men were required to give one year of service, which would you prefer — military service or non-military service?" Following are the findings based on men between the ages of 18 and 26: Military or Non-Military Service to Nation? (Choices of men, 18 to 26 years)

Military	Pct. 32
Non-military	64
No opinion	4

 Proponents of the national service plan also see it as a way to provide special training to young men who do not plan to go on to college and to give all young people a better and more realistic view of the social problems of America while offering them an opportunity to do something about them. The results reported today are based on a nationwide survey conducted Oct. 5-8 with 1,576 adults, 18 and older, interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation.

BARBARA FIESZEL HANDS OUT MIA BUMPER STICKER
(UPI Telephoto)

Not Easy for MIA Wife

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Barbara Fieszel begins each day with an empty feeling, a feeling she has had since the last American prisoner of war came home from North Vietnam.

Each day she sets out to remind the public that Air Force Maj. Clifford Fieszel has not returned, nor have 1,300 others officially listed as missing in action.

Barbara Fieszel is an MIA wife. She last heard of her husband one week after he was shot down over North Vietnam on Sept. 30, 1968, when a North Vietnamese newspaper confirmed a Radio Hanoi report of his capture.

Since then, nothing. Her efforts to keep public interest in the MIAs alive has not been easy. A display booth she and others built at a Tulsa shopping center was torn apart. While she was repairing the booth, someone stole her purse.

The purse contained little of value, except a letter from the Air Force, identifying her as an MIA wife, which she is supposed to carry with her at all times.

Mrs. Fieszel has been described by her colleagues as "just plain cheerful," but the recent events left her depressed and, at one point, crying.

"I don't even know how to describe how upset I was after all that. I was beginning to feel maybe we shouldn't even have tried to have the booth out there. It seems like everything we've tried to do the past few weeks has had something go wrong with it."

"It gets very discouraging when you feel you're not getting any support for something like this."

At the recent Tulsa State Fair, the MIA group handed out petitions to be sent to the nation's elected officials demonstrating support for the MIA cause.

The response disappointed and upset the women.

"Many people who came by told us they thought it was all over, all the MIA's had been accounted for."

She said the MIA families seemed uniformly against the process of "presumptive death" used in the cases of 398 men who were never accounted for in Korea. They want "positive proof."

When her husband, then a captain, was shot down he had been in Indochina only two months and was on his 25th combat mission.

He left behind an 11-year-old daughter and a 7-year-old son. "They remember him quite vividly. We've tried very hard to keep hope alive in our family and in our children. It's been very hard. The older they get the more they understand what the chances are. But I think that is the only way you can live in a situation like this — with hope."

News in Brief About the Kingston Area Girl Scouters

Troop 14

WOODSTOCK return trip down the mountain was made the next morning. The Senior Scouts are planning a holiday party for the boys of Explorer Post 64 to show their appreciation.

The 14 boys, led by Malvin Bilsback and Hugo Schulz, assisted the Troop 14 members with their heavy back packs.

Upon arrival at the tower and having lunch, the scouts visited the ranger at his station. After dinner, the troops separated and set up camp for the night. The LAKE KATRINE profits to the Lake Katrine School Parents Teachers Organization. The scouts also made more than 600 name tags for the organization to use throughout the year. At present the above troops along with Brownie Troops 12, 13 and 116, Junior Girl Scout Troop 163 and the Cadettes of Troop 40, are collecting their outgrown dolls for the Salvation Army's Toys for Tots Campaign. The dolls will be repaired and dressed like new and presented to the Salvation Army at a Christmas party on Dec. 14.

West Hurley Girl Scouts, Bishop also treated the scouts to refreshments and generously gave each girl a small basket as a memento of their visit to the Basket Barn.

Hurley Pack 103 Fun Night and Some Awards

HURLEY the Cub Scouts parading in costume to "wied" Halloween sounds and trick and treat fun with den mothers guessing riddles and acting out forfeiture stunts.

Cubmaster Bob Fiore presented achievement awards to Peter Antonovich, Stephen Hakim, Robert Fiore, Dan Gibbons, Bill Cannon, Mike Krolak, Roger Laughran, David Lovy, and Benjamin Sattle. David Cassavant, Robert Gaton, and Jeff Cole were congratulated for receiving multiple awards. The hall was decorated by the dens: life-size skeletons, scarecrows, haunted house, a blood dripping vampire, and a coffin complete with a dying monster, cobwebs and bats scared everyone. The following boys in Den 2 received an eagle neckerchief slide for their haunted house decoration complete with witches, goblins, and spider webs: Donald Lovy, David Lovy, Richard Frohmiller, Stuart Foisy, Chris Gibbons, Ronald Whispell, Patrick Hoey, Steven Helsley, and Billy Hughes.

Richard Nace and Paul Chmura were in charge of the program for the Lions.

Music Computer At MIT a 'First'

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — words like grace note and French horn.

"This is basically a music project, not engineering," said Prof. Barry Vercoe as he hooked an organ keyboard to a Digital PDP-11-45 computer.

Beside him, the computer pumped out a Bach organ fugue. Its red lights flashed rhythmically with the music.

The music, which sounded eerily like a real organ, had been coded into the machine with an electric typewriter keyboard.

Once the system is installed, however, composers will be able to write on organ keyboards and see the notes appear on a staff flashed on a television screen.

The computer will be programmed to imitate a variety of instruments besides the organ. And the composer will be able to play back his work as soon as it is written and get a reasonable idea of what it will sound like when performed by live musicians.

"We want a system where composers can get the privacy and feedback they need to compose," said Vercoe.

"We're using little tricks of mathematics to create new sounds," he said. "We're not trying to replace the orchestra here. We're trying to add to it."

The case of the disappearing paycheck and what to do about it.

Some people learn the hard way. Paychecks disappear fast. Day-to-day living expenses eat up a lot. And maybe part goes in the savings account for this year's vacation or another immediate goal.

A good chunk of that money seems to disappear by itself.

So it's no wonder that when it comes to long-term goals, or when an emergency comes up, there simply aren't funds to meet the need.

Unless there was a nest egg building up all that time.

A good way to build that nest egg is with U.S. Savings Bonds. The easy way to buy them is to sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. An amount you specify will be set aside from your paycheck and used to buy Bonds.

And while you're going through grocery bills, car repairs, vacation weekends, kids' toys and nights out on the town, you'll know you're saving money too.

That's good to know.

Now E Bonds pay 6 1/2% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen, or destroyed. When needed they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Who, Where, What, When...Why ?

Who comes to mind in discussions of press credibility? You, our readers, that's who. Where is credibility mandatory? In these pages, that's where. When? Every day.

Why? Because this newspaper's mission is to help you open a window to the world with factual, balanced and meaningful information you can depend on.

"Press credibility" is nothing new. It's been our business for a very long time...and it's been the business of our news cooperative, The Associated Press, for 125 years.

We're a member of The AP, world's largest news-gathering organization, and AP newsmen and newswomen go far for factual, on-the-scene reports.

One AP man, Mark Kellogg, went all the way to the Big Horn River, in 1876, with Gen. George Armstrong Custer—and Kellogg didn't come back.

156th Drive . . Every Man Is a Recruiter

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON — The 156th Artillery New York Army National Guard, headquartered in Kingston, has embarked on a local recruitment campaign to return the unit to 100 per cent capacity.

But the twist is this: since the National Guard has never maintained its own recruiting office, the drive for new members is being handled exclusively by the men already enlisted in the 156th.

"Every man here is now a recruiter," said MSG Gerry Brennan, the administrative supply technician for the Headquarters Battery in Kingston, "and they're probably the best we could ever hope to find. Who can better attract new members than someone already in the system?"

The 1st Battalion, which includes units in Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Kingston, is about 50 men short of carrying a full complement, according to Sgt. Brennan. The Kingston unit includes some 225 men in the headquarters and service battery, which serve as the administrative arm of the entire Battalion. The "firing batteries" are located in Poughkeepsie and Newburgh.

With the demise of the draft, Sgt. Brennan explained, the strength of the Regular Army has declined. The increased volunteer enlistments, expected to supplant manpower garnered by the draft, have not yet materialized. So, while the Army searches for new enlistment incentives, the National Guard has taken steps to insure that the reserve components, at least, are at full strength.

"There was some thought about drafting into the National Guard to increase the manpower," said Sgt. Brennan, "but we fought it. It would have destroyed the concept of the National Guard."

Instead, local units were given the responsibility for increasing their own complements. In Kingston, close to 80 per cent of the personnel in the 156th have been divided into recruiting teams, with a non-commissioned officer assigned as leader. Each team has been given a specific area to canvass, along with lists of prospective new members.

Brennan noted that the recruiters' primary targets are prior veterans (men who have already served in the National Guard or Army and who have received discharges, and high school seniors. But the door, he emphasized, certainly isn't closed to any qualified candidate who wants to enlist.

Each Guardsman has been asked to contact four potential enlistees. The man-to-man approach will be complemented by advertising and publicity campaigns and visits to the local high schools.

Since prior veterans are the first goal of the National Guard's new recruitment campaign, several incentives have been added to make the offer more attractive. The most important, and unique, is the new "Try One" concept: it permits a prior veteran to enlist for one year — he can leave after the year is up, or reenlist for a longer period.

For all others, enlistment in the National Guard entails a six-year commitment, including four to six months of active duty, weekend drills once a month and two-week summer camp every year.

But there are new benefits for non-prior veterans as well. High school or college seniors for instance, can enlist now, but defer their initial active training for one year, or until after they graduate. Another change just implemented guarantees enlistees adequate advance notice for their training; in the past, it was common for Guardsmen to receive only several weeks notice before the departure date. And, in most cases now, enlistees can request a specific month for their initial training exercises.

Improvements have been seen, too, in wages paid the reservists. The lowest grade enlistee, for instance, will earn about $43 for his one weekend a month at the armory. An E-4 with prior service will earn $1,068 for his 12 weekends and two weeks of summer camp per year. All wages increase substantially as the length of service increases.

Basic training pay for non-prior servicemen is $326.10 per month, with an additional $105 allowance if the enlistee is married. Included are full commissary and post exchange privileges, dental and medical coverage and low-cost life insurance policies.

The Guard also offers training in civilian related skills, with programs for mechanics, clerks, medical personnel, cooks, radio operators and wiremen.

Male enlistees must be between the ages of 17 and 35; to attract new enlistees. According to Sgt. Brennan, the age 60 will draw retirement pay at least a dozen new recruits based on their highest rank. The benefits go on and on, Guard's goal is to fill the 50 empty spaces in the Battalion and will certainly be touted by the local recruiters as they try by the end of the year.

Cottkill Road Section to Be Closed Monday

STONE RIDGE

A portion of Cottkill Road between Route 209 and the entrance to Ulster County Community College will be closed Monday, and perhaps Tuesday, while the Ulster County Highway Department makes necessary repairs.

As a result, students and personnel at Ulster County Community College will not be able to reach the entrance to the campus from Route 209, Robert T. Brown, dean of administration, said. Persons traveling to the college should take Lucas Avenue to the Four Corners and turn onto Cottkill Road there. Traffic will proceed westward on Cottkill Road to the back entrance of the campus.

Jose Camallonga, Jr., Superintendent of the Ulster County Highway Department, said the work will not take more than two days. "We should be finished on Monday, but may have to continue over to Tuesday," he said.

Camallonga said that a "serious ice problem" in the wintertime has necessitated increasing the height of the roadbed near the college entrance. He said, however, that emergency vehicles will be able to pass through while the road is closed.

Persons intending to travel between Stone Ridge and Rosendale are advised to take Route 213, or another alternate route.

City Teacher Give nHonors

NEW HACKENSACK — The Mid-Hudson Industrial Arts and Vocational Teachers Association honored a Kingston teacher at the eighth annual Arthur Ahr Citation Banquet, at the Woronock House, New Hackensack, recently.

The recipient was Robert Stinemire, director of Industrial Arts, Driver Education and Home Economics in Kingston. Stinemire was honored for his innovativeness, his desire to seek new approaches and new ideas in an endeavor to meet the needs of his students and fellow teachers.

A plaque was presented to Stinemire by the president of the MHIATV, Edward Mahler. The plaque was suitably inscribed to honor the occasion.

After dinner, a presentation entitled, Key to the Continent was given by Larry Williams of the Bell Telephone System. The talk was relevant to New York State and its many attractions.

Liberated Blue Collar Wives Are Movement's Surprise

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Some 40 million strong and representing almost 60 per cent of the adult female population, blue collar wives — after decades of being one of the most stable, unchanging groups in American society—are emerging as a new social, political and economic force to be reckoned with. This is a fact strongly indicated by a comprehensive study recently taken by Social Research, Inc., in Chicago.

Both the greatest success and the strongest critic of the Women's Lib movement, the working-class woman has been profoundly influenced by Women's Liberation and consumerism both of which the authors of the study conclude are "deep running currents of social change."

Announcing the findings from the nationwide study of blue collar wives in eight major metropolitan areas, Dr. Burleigh B. Gardner, Chairman of the Board of Social Research, said, "These changes are of such a character and are proceeding so rapidly that we feel justified in referring to this working-class woman as the awakened giant. Our society will never be the same again."

Most pervasive and dramatic of the changes in the attitudes of the awakened blue collar wife are her views of her role as wife, mother and homemaker.

"For years research has shown that her life was captive of the triangle of husband, children and home. As late as 1965 changes in the working class housewife were very slow and important changes were not expected," Dr. Gardner said.

"Today these women are rejecting such limitations. They feel women should have a choice of careers, homemaking — or both."

Among the more dramatic manifestations of her changed attitudes documented in the study are: A shift in career values. Almost a third say they would not choose homemaking as a career if they could go back to being 15 years old.

There is a new desire for independence. Eight years ago, 48 per cent thought that a personal second car was a luxury. Today the same number see it as a necessity.

In 1965 the majority saw the ideal family as having four children. Today 71 per cent in their 20s say they plan to have two or fewer children.

A new interest in herself as a person rather than as an instrument for the care of family and home is reflected in a shift of priorities from wanting products that helped her mother and older sister serve their families to those that will free her from housework or which contribute to her own comfort and gratification — a dishwasher instead of a stove, an air conditioner instead of a sewing machine.

She has a new interest in community and jobs. She is expressing a marked interest in the larger world and no longer confining herself to solely domestic matters.

"This is the most significant change we have witnessed in more than a quarter of a century of probing the attitudes of blue collar wives," Gardner added. The implications of the research are far reaching for business, labor, government and education.

While working-class women share with Women's Lib the conviction that women should have equality with men in pay, in choice of jobs, in opportunities and not be restrained just because they are women, the study shows that these women vociferously resent what they feel are efforts by Women's Lib advocates to "put down" the role of wife, mother and homemaker. "She still feels that her desire for husband, children and home is important to a satisfactory life. But she doesn't want to be enslaved by them," Dr. Gardner cautioned.

The study showed that the new working-class woman is much more likely to become involved in those community issues that affect her—air pollution from a nearby factory or the quality of education in local schools than in "intellectual" causes such as endangered wildlife species.

Dr. Gardner noted that as a consumer the working-class woman is thoroughly enjoying the fruits of prosperity resulting from higher blue collar incomes and a two-wage-earner family. But at least half of these women are critical of big business as an institution believing that big business does not charge fair prices and forgets the public welfare.

Because blue collar wives in growing numbers are working outside the home, their economic influence is growing.

PEARLS OF FASHION wisdom from the Trifari Majorica collection. The pearls — incomparably iridescent and lustrous yield to the trend of many single strands, smaller, mini-pearls, a myriad of lengths and even a simple mobile earring. Rings are designed in knot or cluster motifs worn with a simple single pearl ring for a total look. And more fashion drama predicts a three-strand bracelet on one wrist . . . a single strand on the other. A Holiday classic—for year-round chic.

VELVET AND VELVETEEN, those incurable romantics, are never as lovely or enhancing as during the Holiday season. Traditional favorites of the hostess and party-goer alike, these festive fabrics reappear each year with a fresh and exciting new fashion message. Femininity is the keynote this season and whether the look is bare or covered, the feeling is always elegant and luxurious in long fluid evening dresses. Here, Fashion Director Helen Boyd shows a luxurious velveteen in a romantic and elegant dress by the House of Branell . . . It is highlighted with embroidered silver threads.

Diane Warns Weds Robert McCaig II

Mr. and Mrs. John Warns of Blue Mountain, Saugerties, announce the marriage of their daughter, Diane, to Robert A. McCaig II, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert A. McCaig of Saugerties.

The wedding took place on Saturday, Oct. 26, in Atonement Lutheran Church, Saugerties with the Rev. Richard E. Shemenske of Saugerties officiating.

Mildred Gippert provided traditional wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a tailored styled gown, featuring a V neckline, long puffed sleeves and a full circle skirt. Silk lace appliques accented the cuffs and collar. Her floor length silk illusion veil was attached to a headpiece of stephanotis flowers. She carried a bouquet of white orchids, stephanotis, orange roses and miniature ivy.

Mrs. Richard (Patricia) Marelli of Saugerties served as matron of honor. Attendants were the Misses Janice Welton, Margaret Houtman, Bonnie McCaig and Deanna Marelli, niece of the bride who served as flower girl, all from Saugerties.

The attendants were attired in floral gowns of plum and orange, fashioned with V-necklines, long puffed sleeves and inset waistbands. They wore headpieces of orange roses, stephanotis and baby's breath and carried bouquets of matching flowers.

The flower girl wore an orange gown and a baby's breath headpiece. She carried a bouquet of baby's breath.

The best man was Donald McCaig, brother of the bridegroom, Saugerties. Ushering were James Reisigl, Richard Benjamin and John Granwehr.

A reception was held at Sawyerkill Country Club, Saugerties.

The bride, a graduate of Saugerties High School, is employed as a legal secretary by Charles H. Gaffney, Attorney. Her husband is an alumnus of Saugerties High School and Miami University. He is employed by Prudential Insurance Company.

Mr. and Mrs. McCaig will reside at Blue Mountain, Saugerties.

Auto Industry Caters to Women In Sale of Cars!

NEW YORK (UPI) — Never underestimate the power of the woman in the automotive industry.

First off, of the number of drivers in the United States an estimated 42 to 43 per cent are women, or between 45 and 50 million of them behind the wheel.

Secondly, it's estimated that 21 per cent of car purchases are made by women and certainly she influences further when she and husband shop together for a car.

"When a husband and wife go to a dealer, it's like a flip of a coin on who's the final determiner," said Gene Bordinat, vice president for design at the Ford Motor Co., Dearborn, Mich.

And because of that feminine influence, the manufacturers have both turned to more color inside and out and also to mechanical changes women wanted.

Even so, the world of actual design still belongs to men, even though the driver may be a wife or daughter more often than hubby.

Donald F. Kopka, executive director of interior design at Ford, counted them on his fingers — two clay modelers, two in trim and color, one in exterior design, and two in the industrial design division.

"I don't think it's a case of discrimination," said Kopka. "It's just that women are not made aware of this area as a career."

Bordinat and Kopka, joined by K. David Ash, also of the company's interior design division, spoke of women's role during a New York news conference held primarily for reporters in the fashion and home furnishings fields.

One major change was made in upholstery surfaces in the interior because of what some fabrics did to fur. The company calls it the "minking test."

"Several years ago, we discovered that some of our seat materials were pulling the hair from women's mink coats," Bordinat recalled. "The cloth would part just enough to allow mink hairs to penetrate the weave, then snap back when the woman left the car. So we designed a test to detect problem weaves."

The influence women have had on color is one of the greatest, the three men agreed. Two generations ago, they said, the buyer had a choice of two interior colors — tan or gray — and three fabrics.

Now Ford alone has 552 trim sets and figures that, as Kopka said, "what's inside the car is the final selling point."

Saugerties Nuptials Are Held

Miss Jane Ann Moser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moser of 30 Finger Street, Saugerties, exchanged nuptial vows with Roger H. Praetorius, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Praetorius of Route 1, Box 356, Saugerties, on Saturday, Nov. 17 in St. Mary of the Snow Church, Saugerties.

The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly officiated at the wedding ceremony. Peter Sanson and David Reinhart provided wedding selections.

Robert Moser gave his daughter in marriage. She selected a white satin gown styled with a chapel train with an overlay of marquise. The empire gown featured lantern sleeves and appliques of orange blossom lace accented the bodice and sleeves. The bride wore a full length veil attached to a satin band, trimmed with orange blossom lace and she carried a bouquet of white roses, chrysanthemums and baby's breath.

The honor attendant was Miss Patricia Moser, sister of the bride, 30 Finger Street, Saugerties. Bridesmaids were Miss Judith Todd, Syracuse; Miss Linda Naccarato, cousin of the bride, Kingston; Miss Linda Thompson, Newark, N. J.; and Miss Rose Elizabeth Praetorius, sister of the bridegroom, Saugerties, who served as junior bridesmaid. For her bridal party, the bride selected a color scheme of orange and beige. Gold braiding encircled the waists of the empire styled gowns. The attendants wore matching braided caps and carried bouquets of orange baby roses, fall colored chrysanthemums, baby's breath and wheat.

Serving as best man was Richard Praetorius, brother of the bridegroom, Highland Mills. Ushers were Richard Steiner, Bethlehem, Pa.; George Yencho, Syracuse; Robert Praetorius and Russell Praetorius, brothers of the bridegroom of Saugerties.

A reception was held at the Flamingo Restaurant, Route 9W, Saugerties.

Mrs. Praetorius is a graduate of Saugerties High School and a summa cum laude graduate of Syracuse University. She is employed as a teacher by Jamesville DeWitt School System at the Genesee Hills Elementary School, DeWitt.

Her husband was graduated from Saugerties High School and Syracuse University where he was a member of the football team. He will attend graduate school at Syracuse University.

The couple will reside at Syracuse.

Vows Are Exchanged During Nuptial Mass

Miss Barbara Lynn Holland of Lynbrook, L. I., and New Paltz became the bride of Raymond Charles Kelly of Seaford, L. I. and Accord at a nuptial Mass in Our Lady of Peace Church, Lynbrook, on Saturday, Nov. 17.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Holland of Lynbrook. Mr. Holland is New York Sales Representative for Brink's Inc.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Kelly of Seaford. Mr. Kelly is associated with Burrough's Corp.

The bride wore an ivory gown accented with Alencon lace and a matching Camellia headpiece she designed herself. She carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and ivy.

The bride was attended by Miss Madeline Carnevale of Rockville Centre as maid-of-honor. Her bridesmaids were her cousin, Miss Donna Kelly of Lynbrook and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Anne Kelly.

Best man was Dennis Kelly, Seaford, brother of the bridegroom. The ushers were Daniel J. Holland Jr., brother of the bride, and Steven Sterling, Flushing.

Mrs. Kelly, a 1971 graduate of the State College at New Paltz, has been teaching Spanish in the Rondout Valley Central School System. She had attended La Universidad de Valencia, Spain.

Mr. Kelly, also a New Paltz graduate, is employed by the Monticello School District, teaching Mathematics. He attended Nassau Community College where he was elected to Who's Who in American Junior Colleges.

Reception was given at Carl Hoppli's in Baldwin.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly will reside in Accord.

Barbara Musto Weds David Horton

MRS. DAVID G. HORTON
(Barbara Ann Musto)
(Artcraft Studio)

The Rev. Walter Doty of St. Mary's Church, Kingston, officiated at the wedding ceremony of Barbara Ann Musto of 162 North Street, Kingston, and David George Horton of Raleigh, N. C., on Saturday, Nov. 10, in St. Mary's Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Musto of 162 North Street, Kingston and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Horton of 283 Salem Street, Port Ewen.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported satin faced organza fashioned with a modified empire bodice of waffle patterned organza. The gown featured long fitted Juliette sleeves and a high sheer neckline. Wide Venice lace braiding of floral motifs banded the collar, cuffs and bordered the hem. She also wore a Juliette styled headpiece to which her lace edged cathedral length mantilla was shirred and carried a colonial bouquet of daisy pompons and baby's breath.

Carlotta Musto of 162 North Street served as maid of honor for her sister. Attendants were Mrs. Carl (Patricia) Corriere, sister of the bride, Sawkill; Miss Sandy Horton, sister of the bridegroom, Port Ewen; and Mrs.

Ted (Michele) Szynal of Saugerties.

The attendants were gowned alike in harvest orange jersey gowns styled with princess designed draped bodices. The gowns were fashioned with high necklines, accented with Peter Pan collars and long fitted leg o' mutton sleeves. They wore bands of matching fabric in their hair and each carried a single white chrysanthemum, tipped with orange.

Ronald Kirm of Newburgh was best man. Carl Corriere, brother-in-law of the bride, Sawkill; Richard Snyder, South Miami, Fla.; and Richard Miller, Rhinebeck, were ushers.

A reception was held at Capri Restaurant, Port Ewen. Mrs. Horton, a graduate of Kingston High School, class of 1967, is employed by IBM of Raleigh, N. C.

Her husband was graduated in 1963 from KHS, in 1965 from Ulster County Community College and in 1967 from Florida-Atlanta University. He served two years in the U.S. Army and is also employed by IBM of Raleigh, N. C.

After returning from a wedding trip to Disney World, Orlando, Fla., and Nassau, Bahamas the couple will reside at Raleigh, N. C.

Widow Supports Family Babysitting

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I baby-sit five days a week for eight preschool children in my own home. I love children and need the money. I am a widow and am helping to get my own children thru college.

All the children I baby-sit with are given excellent care and attention, and I charge a nominal fee for the service I render.

Recently, a woman with two children asked me if I would give her a reduced rate. Abby, it's no easier to take care of two children from the same family than from different families. If anything, it's more difficult, because sisters and brothers are more likely to quarrel or gang up together against the other children.

Doctors, dentists, amusement parks don't give discounts for children from the same family. Why should baby sitters? How can I explain it to this mother?

CONSCIENTIOUS SITTER
DEAR SITTER: Simple. The same way you explained it to me.

DEAR ABBY: I am 17, and have no living father. He and my mother were divorced 13 years ago, and he was killed in an automobile accident three years ago. After his death my brother and I were advised that we were to receive Social Security benefits to be used for our education and welfare.

We have been getting these benefits for three years now, and with my portion I have been able to buy a car, all my own clothes, and still manage to put aside some money for college.

My problem is my friends who do not feel that I deserve this money. They say I am "ripping off" the government every month I think I deserve this money because my father never was able to pay child support when he was alive, and now I am being taken care of.

Answer soon, as I am made to feel guilty about this.

DIRTY MONEY
DEAR DIRTY MONEY: What's "dirty" about it? Your friends could be jealous. And one way to put a stop to that is to keep quiet about what you have and where it came from. It's nobody's business.

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a man I love very much. My name is Christine and his name is Christopher. We are both called "Chris," which has been quite confusing at times.

I have just given birth to twins — a boy and a girl. My husband wants to name them Christian and Christina, respectively. I think this would be a terrible confusion for the twins and us in this household.

Can you offer a suggestion?

Please hurry your answer.

Before You Buy

Campaign on Against Unsafe Toys

By MARGARET DANA

We are in the middle of the annual big toy-buying spree on which the country embarks each year in the months of October, November and December. And that means we are also starting the incredible figures for the number of children who will be injured seriously by toys in the coming year. The Consumer Product Safety Commission finds that reports from all over the country add up to 132,000 injuries each year, related to and generally caused by certain unsafe toys.

It doesn't have to be this way. The commission can do and is doing a lot to get those damaging toys off the market. They have already banned around 1,500 toys.

But safe toys for our kids will never really make the scene until those who buy the toys get the habit of studying a toy before buying it, feeling its edges, looking for eyes, ears, trimmings on toys stuck on with sharp, long-pointed pins, loose parts that can be swallowed, loud noises that damage a child's ears, unsafe heating elements etc.

The other day I sat beside a young mother holding her small son on her lap as we traveled across the country by air. The boy was playing with a toy and, as I watched him and the toy, I was troubled. The youngster was chewing on a black wire fastened to his toy. I asked him to let me see it. He handed it over reluctantly while his mother looked at me questioningly.

As I thought, that toy was hazardous. I explained to the mother just how and where it could hurt her child and she looked at me in surprise.

"But toys!" she said. "That's one thing I would never have dreamed could be dangerous. The manufacturers must know they're going to be handled by little kids. After this, I'll look hard at every toy my boy is given or that I buy for him. Of course, sometimes he sees one when he's in a store with me, and I admit I usually get it if it doesn't cost too much."

I took time then to tell her about the campaign the Consumer Product Safety Commission is pushing hard right now to get unsafe toys off the shelves of stores before the Christmas season really gets in high gear.

You may have heard about the CPSC's drive to get consumer deputies to help police the whole national marketplace to check the toys on sale and help the stores detect any that might be left there after having been banned. Each of the commission's regional offices around the country will have toy safety coordinators and businessmen and to train the volunteer consumer delegates who want to help make toys safe again.

The program got underway officially Nov. 1st in 14 cities — Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Dallas, Denver, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Seattle. Anyone living near any of these cities can contact the Consumer Product Safety Commission Area Office and find out how you can help.

If the Commission is not yet listed in your phone book, make use of the commission's new "hot line" telephone number which you can dial free. It is 800-638-2666. (Except for Maryland residents, where the number is 301-492-2937).

This hot line number can also be used to give any individual information not only on toys that are banned, but to get tips on selecting safe toys, and getting booklets on toy safety and a list of banned toys. Most of these unsafe toys have been removed, of course, but since more than 150,000 different kinds of toys are still around. And some new ones may have slipped through unnoticed.

A second hazard for small children that you should know about is the crib with dangerous design. You can use that toll-free number to find out about that, too. From 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. (Eastern Standard Time), that phone number will put you in touch with a CPSC staff member who knows what this is all about and is ready to help.

And don't forget to get your friends and relatives interested in serving as part-time consumer deputies to watch for and report on dangerous toys. A consumer deputy will not be an official employee of the Commission. The deputy only serves as eyes for the commission, and warning to the store.

(Margaret Dana welcomes opinions and questions on buying and will use them in her column as rapidly as research and space permit. Personal answers are impossible due to large volume of mail from readers. Address: Margaret Dana Research Center, R.R. 1, Chalfont, Pa. 18914.)

Doing the Right Thing

Dear Mrs. Post: Our house has two bedrooms, one for my husband and myself and the other for our two daughters, who are both in high school. They are studying hard and proper rest is important to them.

Last month, my favorite aunt spent two weeks with us and I had her sleep in the living room on a comfortable, queen-sized convertible couch. No one entered or passed through the living room while she was in bed.

My mother says that a guest (her sister, in this case) should have the best the house has to offer and that the girls' room should have been offered to her, and that the girls should have slept on the couch. I feel that they were entitled to stay in their own room. Will you please settle this argument?

Mrs. King
Dear Mrs. King: I'm with you! Your aunt was far less inconvenienced by sleeping on the couch than your daughters would have been. For a night or two, they might have given up their beds, but for them to move out for two weeks would be above and beyond the call of duty. Your relative might well have been so embarrassed by causing their discomfort that she would have moved out herself.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper for a couple to host a party or open house in celebration of their wedding anniversary? Some friends of ours will soon have been married twenty-five years and they contend only friends should host this event, not they themselves, or any member of their family.

Laura
Dear Laura: Your friends are wrong. Anniversary parties are most frequently given by the couple's children, and quite often by their friends. It is also perfectly correct for the couple to put on their celebration themselves.

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a bachelor. I don't cook often — or well — and I live in a small apartment. Could you tell me the best way to repay my obligations when I accept an invitation to dine at a friend's home? I always take along a bottle of wine, but I doubt if this is sufficient. Am I or am I not obliged to invite them to a restaurant for a meal, or could I settle for a cocktail at my apartment?

Steve
Dear Steve: Bachelors are always in demand, and most couples and single women are delighted to know one who is available. Furthermore, it is generally recognized that most bachelors are not in a position to entertain easily.

Therefore, your gift of a bottle of wine is sufficient, and always appreciated. However, if one person or couple entertains you frequently, you would be very remiss in not returning the compliment with an occasional invitation to dine with you in a restaurant.

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I are going on a vacation to Mexico shortly. Our teenage daughter will be unable to go with us because of school. The family of one of her girl friends very kindly invited her to stay at their home, although we do not know the parents ourselves.

The girl's mother and I have talked on the phone about the arrangements, and I offered to pay for Kathy's room and board. She showed a definite reluctance about taking any money. We think perhaps we should give them a gift instead, but do not know the type of gift would be proper. We do so appreciate their kindness. Can you help us?

Ann Porter
Dear Mrs. Porter: Since you made the offer, and it was met with reluctance, don't insist on paying for your daughter's "keep." Instead, give her a reasonable sum of money to be used to take her friend's family out to dinner occasionally, and also to purchase a few surprises or extras for the meals at home. Then, of course, your daughter must give her hostess a handsome present at the end of her stay. By then she will have had a chance to find something that the family really needs and would enjoy.

How to Get Paid for Going 'Back to the Land'

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS ...it tells you how

By JOHN SHUTTLEWORTH.

While the rest of us are lambasted with rising prices, a tightening economy, fuel shortages, pollution, crime in the streets, an on-again-off-again Middle East war and one political scandal after another... Mary and Doug Brown are enjoying a life totally devoid of such frustrations and distractions. "My wife and I live in northern California on a wilderness ranch seven miles from the nearest neighbor," Doug says. "Our home is a huge log cabin which looks over a cold, clear mountain stream. We swim and fish in deep green pools surrounded by tall fir trees and giant granite boulders.

"If you drop by at dinner time, you may see Mary preparing fresh produce from our garden and wood-burning cook stove. Dinner will proceed in calm, orderly fashion. No phone will ring, and no television or radio will blare. Our thoughts and discussion will be of the day's chores and accomplishments.

"We'll be looking forward to our bi-weekly mail pickup, for we know it will contain no water bill, electric bill or notice of rent, tax or mortgage due.

"If what I've said isn't enough to convince you that the life we lead is a good one, let me add that we receive $100 a month for enjoying ourselves in this fashion."

Son of a gun. How do the Browns do it?

Doug says it all began a couple of years ago when he and Mary were looking for a way to trade "the nerve-shattering pace of our city life" for an existence "close to the land and in the sun." It was hard for them to figure out an alternative that would give them just what they wanted, however. Should they run off the homestead in the north woods of Canada or Alaska? Could they be happy on a subsistence farm? Would a commune accept them and, if so, did they want to live on a commune in the first place?

One by one, Doug and Mary checked out these and many other ideas. Nothing seemed "just right" — or even much better than the life they were then leading in town — and the couple was just about to throw in the towel.

Then Doug happened to spot a newspaper ad placed by someone who wanted a caretaker for a remote wilderness lodge.

Hey! This was more like it! The Browns could live in a rural setting for a trial period with no lease or mortgage hanging over their heads. They could use the time to gain experience in gardening, animal husbandry and other country skills. And they'd get paid to boot!

As might be expected, however, when Doug answered the advertisement... he found the position filled. That only strengthened his resolve, though, and he began a systematic search for other caretaking jobs.

"Generally," Brown says, "I found the positions fell into two categories. Those in the first — house-sitting jobs — were mostly of short duration and located in the suburbs. We weren't particularly interested in such opportunities. Offers in the second group — and I was amazed at how many there were — were for vacation homes, cabins and hunting clubs. Though a number of advertisers specified retired couples, enough made no mention of age to encourage us to shop around.

"Finally, in the monthly newsletter of a local conservation organization, we found an offer that appealed to our imaginations and state of mind.

The ad asked for a single man or couple to caretake a wilderness cabin in northern California and gave an address to which inquiries could be sent."

After some correspondence with their prospective employer, the Browns' eagerness and enthusiasm landed them the job. The arrangement, they say, suited them exactly... "better than we'd hoped for."

In short, Doug and Mary now live seven miles from civilization and completely surrounded by national forest. They have their choice of staying in their mountain paradise all year round or, if they choose, only from mid-May to September. For every month they're in the remote lodge they receive $100 and they have a charge account for all the hardware, tools and supplies they deem necessary for the cabin's upkeep.

The Browns can garden, loaf, forage wild foods or work on their projects at any time as they see fit. Their "work" consists of mending fences, gates and barns and whatever other maintenance jobs they feel like doing. They live at their own pace, and fish and swim as the mood strikes them.

Can you do the same thing? Doug says: "Find an area that interests you and look in the local newspapers. Spend a weekend talking to the neighborhood realtors and postmasters. Read the grocery store bulletin boards and leave a card with your name, address and phone number, stating that you'd like a caretaking position. I'm sure you'll find one. Because of the low pay — and, sometimes, the isolation — the market is definitely in the employee's favor."

Then again, with more and more folks hankering for the wide open spaces... maybe you'd better get a move on before someone else latches onto the caretaking job of your dreams.

For more details about the Browns, their caretaking job and how they landed it, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS, in care of The Daily Freeman, Ask for Reprint No. 157. "We Caretake 70 Wilderness Acres."

'...She Wore a Yellow Ribbon'

By HELOISE

Dear Heloise:

My sister was given a baby shower I thought you might like to know about it. The theme was "Make Our Mother-to-be Beautiful."

Since she had had several showers already, the girls in her office came up with this: Each was to bring a gift that could be used in the hospital to make her beautiful, and, since none of them was rich, they set a limit of $1.15.

My sister was delighted with the gifts they brought. Many were new mothers themselves and remembered the mad rush to collect toiletries just before leaving. Thus she got a comb and brush, mascara, a lip gloss, hand cream, etc.

One friend even made her a beautiful bed jacket. Now rolling pin on the edge near you.

Carefully lift the edge onto the pin, then loosely roll back the crust onto the pin. Quickly place the pie tin under the crust and unroll the crust into it.

Mrs. Paul Bourgard

Dear Heloise:

Here's a hint for mothers who have a difficult time cutting baby's fingernails.

Instead of using a small nail clipper, which can also be very dangerous around the baby, I use a pocket nail clipper. The kind that you must squeeze together before they will cut.

These nail clippers are ideal for the job and no harm whatsoever to the baby.

Just curl your baby's fingers around your hand and clip away.

It makes it more fun when your baby is amused at what you are doing, rather than squirming and trying to get away from those sharp scissors. It doesn't take any time at all.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Folks:

My favorite mailman came today and didn't bring the letter I was waiting for.

When I said, "You're a bad penny today," he said, "That's why I get lost." How's that for a groaner?

WONDERFUL WORLD OF FASHION

After a Fashion Romances, Fashion, Success

NEW YORK. — It was one of those situations that was destined to click in more ways than one.

The 5th Dimension had traveled with Ray Charles as background music. Somewhere along the line someone astutely observed that they'd probably sound great on records.

"As a lark we cut a demonstration at Motown in Detroit," giggles Florence LaRue Gordon one of the two girls in the singing group which has since had 15 hits with six gold singles each selling one million copies. Florence who had just been named Miss Bronze in a California beauty pageant, simply put her money where their mouths were.

It was up, up and away. Marc Gordon, then a Motown executive with the authority to accept or reject, thought the group was great. But he didn't offer a contract. "You're not going to believe this," interpolates Marilyn McCoo of Jersey City, the other female 5th, "but in a few days Marc called us to say he had quit his job and would like to manage us."

"It was the start of something big," interrupts Florence who later married Gordon. Today they live in a five bedroom Italian villa in the Pacific Palisades section of Los Angeles. First Gordon had to get divorced and: "I didn't pay much attention because he was married and I didn't know it was splitsville," says Florence.

One night, while they were having cocktails, Gordon proposed. Florence says she accepted because she thought it was a wiskeypromise. "But next day he told everyone we were engaged," she says. "We were."

Meanwhile Marilyn, who's very pretty, had broken up with an old beau. Every time rehearsals and concerts loomed up, she'd be dabbing at her tears. "Of course the fact that the money was rolling in with the fame was a great help," she says. "But I was still very sad."

Billy Davis, Jr., one of the 5ths, couldn't help but notice her blues.

Says Marilyn, "Billy was so sophisticated that he kind of scared me. But all of a sudden he was sharing my gloom." Then Billy proposed. "I got hysterical and ran home to my mother because I thought marriage was too final," says Marilyn, who finally went up the aisle wearing a white lace pantsuit designed by Michael Travis.

Fashion plays a bit part in the 5th Dimension image.

Originally the group's stage clothes were created by Boyd Clopton who designs the "Laugh-In" costumes. Clopton insisted that the five singers dress alike and always in flashy translations of au courant fashion. "We all fought him like mad," says Marilyn. "We are your friendly, slightly mad quintuplets — not your fashion mannequins."

Dionne Warwick, a friend and confidante, suggested that the group use her designer Michael Travis who charges anywhere from $5,000-$7,000 for a coordinated set of five razzle-dazzle costumes that have become part of the act. "People expect a certain amount of gaudiness," says Marilyn, who's dressed by Donald Brooks in private life. Florence wears the best of Bill Blass.

As personal appearances mount with the hits, so do the number of costumes ordered. The group can't wear costumes more than once on television — a medium which breeds instant familiarity. At the moment 40 sets of 5th Dimension costumes are stored in a Los Angeles warehouse — Beacon Storage — and the group would like to auction the clothes for charity.

"Do you think there would be any takers?" ask the two girls in near unison. "Where are the takers?"

Skyrocketing careers are rarely smooth sailing.

Florence, for example, has a three-year-old son. She worked right through her pregnancy. "It wasn't easy," she says. "I got very tired and cried a lot. But I vowed nothing would stop me from singing."

THE DISTINCTIVELY different 5th Dimension pose hers in lookalike costumes.

ABOUT ANTIQUES

CHINA COTTAGES

One of the early items to America from Britain, and now an antique worthy of note, is the eighteenth and nineteenth century pastille burner — a charming little hollow, porcelain or pottery replica of a building that was originally used in the burning of pastilles (aromatic cones) or as a night-light shelter. They are often referred to today as China Cottages.

In earlier times, with primitive sanitary conditions, most orderly households regarded a pastille burner as an essential item. A small, richly scented cone of charcoal soaked in benzoin and gum arabic was lit and placed inside one of these small cottage replicas. The pastille burned slowly and its aromatic smoke rose from the tiny chimney or through the open doors and windows. The heavy, sweet aromas it produces remained fashionable in drawing rooms as late as the Victorian Era.

China Cottages that were used as night-lights were equipped with candles or little lamps with wicks floating in dishes of oil.

These quaint, flower-adorned cottages, churches, castles and houses were produced by many famous English potters, including Spode, Derby, Rockingham and Coalport. Some firms produced specimens designed to be used as inkwells, watch holders, tobacco jars, banks or just purely as decorative pieces. An interesting North American bank in cottage form was produced at Bennington, Vermont, and glazed in the famous Rockingham style.

Although most examples of China Cottages are quite cheery and bright, being encrusted with flowers, ivy and the occasional songbird, some were patterned after bizarre crimes. One such is a replica of the gruesome Potash Farm. It commemorated a famous mid-nineteenth century murder and sold by the thousands.

The next time you see one of these old charmers in an antique shop, take some extra time to examine it closely. You just might decide that it would enhance some corner of your home — as well as providing a very novel burner.

'Little White Lies'

By LOUIS CASSELS

United Press International

All of us are dishonest to some degree. The lack of integrity we deplore in high public officials is simply a magnified projection of the petty chicaneries in which private individuals indulge.

That prick in the conscience is administered by the Rev. Eugene L. Laubach, executive minister of Riverside Church in

New York City, writing in the Christian Herald magazine. "Not many of us would take a bribe or be a partner in fraud," Laubach says. "But almost all of us, I expect, are involved in the first step... the area of misrepresentation and the 'little white lies' of convenience and accommodation that seem so harmless as we begin."

"Ask a golfer his score and watch him struggle with honesty. Ask a clergyman how many people were in church and he faces the same problem. We all find it hard to be really honest. We fall into a style of life that is built on distortion of the truth."

From early childhood, he says, children are taught by their elders to cheat, a little here and there, when they can get away with it. A girl loses her glasses and hears her mother tell the insurance company they were stolen, so she can collect the price of a new pair. A boy goes out for football and his coach shows him how to grab his opponent's shirt while blocking—in a way the referee won't spot as holding.

In adulthood, the universal temptation is to cut a few corners on your income tax—by padding deductions, forgetting to report some outside income, or some other means. Some people resist this temptation. Many do not. The difference between chiseling a few bucks on your tax return and doing what Spiro Agnew did is simply a matter of degree.

Anniversary Speaker Set

BISHOP RALPH WARD JR.

The final event scheduled in observance of the 150th anniversary of the founding of St. James United Methodist Church in 1823 will be held on Sunday, Dec. 2, at 11 a.m.

The Rev. Harry Robinson, minister of the church, has announced that Bishop W. Ralph Ward Jr. will deliver the sermon and then meet with the congregation at a coffee hour at noontime after the worship service.

Bishop Ward was elevated to the Episcopacy in 1960, and became Resident Bishop of the New York Area in 1972. As Bishop of this area, he presides over 800 churches, 1,000 ministers and more than 300,000 members.

Bishop Ward is president of the College of Bishops for the Northeastern Jurisdiction, and chairman of the Administrative Committee of the world-wide Council of Bishops. He is also a trustee of Syracuse University, Drew University, and the Brooklyn Methodist Hospital. He is past president of the New York State Council of Churches.

In keeping with this unusual event, two other Methodist Churches in the city: Clinton Avenue Methodist Church and Trinity Methodist Church will unite their Sunday morning congregations with St. James congregation. The Rev. Joseph Bailey, minister at Clinton Avenue, and the Rev. Thomas Smoot, minister of Trinity Methodist Church will assist the host pastor in the Order of Worship, along with the Superintendent of the Hudson North District Methodist Churches, the Rev. Paul Allen.

City Church Council Elects

KINGSTON

The Rev. Norman F. Blossat, pastor of First Baptist Church, was re-elected president of the Kingston Area Council of Churches at the recent dinner meeting.

Also re-elected was the Rev. Dr. David C. Gaise, pastor of Redeemer Lutheran Church, as vice president. Mrs. Deanne Mohr was named secretary and Mrs. Charles L. Parker Sr., treasurer.

Committee appointments included the Rev. Gary Mehl, Immanuel Lutheran, Christian Education; the Rev. Thomas R. Smoot, Trinity United Methodist, chaplaincy; the Rev. Joseph G. Bailey, Clinton Avenue United Methodist, community relations; Walter Caunitz, finance.

Also, the Rev. John Mongin, Comforter Reformed, institutional ministries; the Rev. Harry D. Robinson Jr., St. James United Methodist, missions; Harold Van Allen, publicity; the Rev. Randall B. Bosch, Fair Street Reformed Church, radio and television and the Rev. Robert E. Whitfield, Port Ewen United Methodist, union services.

Keynote speaker for the annual event hosted by the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer was the Rev. Robert Loftus, Roman Catholic episcopal vicar of Ulster County. Father Loftus discussed recent changes in the Catholic church concerning liturgy, lay readers, revival of the role of permanent deacon, fasting, new views on marriage and other changes.

SUFFRAGAN BISHOP—The Rev. Harold Louis Wright, a resident of Woodstock, has been elected suffragan bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of New York, the first black bishop in the history of the 188-year-old diocese. As suffragan bishop he will be an assistant to the bishop of New York, the Rt. Rev. Paul Moore Jr. He is currently assistant to the bishop for ministries in New York. A native of Boston, he is a graduate of the General Theological Seminary in New York.

THE HOPE OF GLORY—A group of six young people will be presenting a contemporary gospel message for all generations at the First Baptist Church, Albany and Broadway, tonight 7:30 p.m. The Hope of Glory group is presently involved in this full time ministry and plans to continue studies at a future time. They have been together since January of 1973 and have been well received throughout their travels in southern and western states. Their repertoire is primarily original material augmented by traditional and folk gospel selections. The public may attend.

Presbytery Moderator Named

GOSHEN

The Rev. Robert Stewart Garner, since 1962 pastor of the Greenbush Presbyterian Church, Blauvelt, was elected Moderator of the Presbytery of Hudson River of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. in a meeting held recently in Goshen.

As Moderator during 1974 the Rev. Mr. Garner will preside over the meetings of the Presbytery and its General Council. The Presbytery units 108 Presbyterian congregations with 36,000 communicant members in Westchester, Rockland, Putnam, Dutchess, Orange, Sullivan and Ulster Counties. The new Moderator, who will succeed Ruling Elder Marjorie E. Luce of Yorktown, will be installed in January.

In another action the Presbytery approved the call of the White Plains Presbyterian Church to the Rev. Donald D. M. Jones, who will be installed as pastor on Dec. 2. Mr. Jones has been Secretary for Planning in the General Council of the United Presbyterian Church.

The Presbytery also approved a call to the Rev. Peter Weaver of Williamson, to the pastorate of the New Hempstead Presbyterian Church, New City, effective Dec. 1.

It was announced that at an earlier meeting of the Presbytery the Rev. Donald W. Cashen, associate pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Fort Wayne, Ind., has been called to the pastorate of the Hitchcock Presbyterian Church, Scarsdale. He will assume his new duties Dec. 1.

The Presbytery also called a special meeting for late in November when it will be asked to approve a call from the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Dayton, O., to the Rev. Dr. William C. Schram, who since 1959 has been pastor of the Huguenot Memorial Presbyterian Church, Pelham, and is a past moderator of the Presbytery.

Elected chairman of the Presbytery's Committee on Nominations was Ruling Elder Mrs. Joseph M. Leiper of Blauvelt. The Rev. Thomas A. Hughart of Bedford was elected to the Presbytery's General Council.

Robert Leach, a graduate student at Union Seminary and a member of the Germonds Presbyterian Church, New City, was licensed and will later be ordained to the Christian ministry. Among those received as new ministerial members of the Presbytery were Dr. Franklin I. Gamwell, a member of the faculty of Manhattanville College, and Dr. Charles B. Mitchell, who serves on the faculty of Mount St. Mary College in Newburgh.

Ruling Elders elected as commissioners to the first meetings of the new Synod of the Northeast were Jeffrey Knight of Cornwall-on-Hudson, Marjorie Luce of Yorktown, Leon Calhoun of Washingtonville, Janet Leiper of Blauvelt, Virginia Young of Katonah, Cathy Talbot of Hartsdale, and Adne Henriksen of Pomona.

Ministers who will represent the Presbytery at the Synod meetings are Ronald James of Yorktown, Ronald Johnson of New City, Gary Hall of Larchmont, David Kendall of Scarsdale, Edward Castner of Peekskill, Gregory Oross of Haverstraw, and Walter Graig of Wilton, Conn.

Also Pay Aid for Placement Counselor

Gateway Gets HEW Facility Grant

KINGSTON

Gateway Industries, Inc. has received a Facilities Improvement Grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Social and Rehabilitation Services Administration through the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation.

The grant has been utilized to purchase clerical training equipment such as calculators, typewriters, dictating machines; a cash register for the Gateway cafeteria; food handling equipment for food services training; and a complete Sony video tape unit. The grant also provides for 80 percent of a one-year salary for an additional placement counselor to be added to the Gateway staff. Douglas Diamond is the present placement counselor.

The video equipment consists of a camera, video tape recorder, monitor and accessories such as a tripod, power packs, carrying equipment and case. The video tape unit can be carried over the shoulder for portable use or be utilized in a stationary position.

Charles T. Weatherford, assistant executive director of Gateway, feels that this unit is invaluable as a training medium. He says, "There is very little learning without adequate feedback and the utilization of video equipment for immediate audio-visual feedback is the best possible system. For example, you can initially use video taping in a rehearsal between a client and placement counselor in a job interview situation. The client can monitor and discuss this interview. This affords the counselor to determine weak and strong points and the dynamics of a job interview. When time lapses between actual job interviews, viewing of past interviews can provide insight into the client's improvement as a job candidate.

"Often tapes of personnel managers who regularly consider Gateway clients as possible employees can be played for a client prior to a scheduled interview. This affords the client with the opportunity of familiarization with the personnel manager and his company before the actual interview.

"Additional uses of the equipment will be made in specific orientation of incoming clients to the Gateway program. We can show a new client the physical layout of our facility, the type work training involved and a view of the people sharing the same project. This tape can be repeated as often as necessary for comprehension. Video can also mirror the work habits of clients and their improvement techniques in developing appropriate job attitudes and skills as training progresses. A visual explanation of a specific work project can also be shown to a client. The step by step process has more impact visually and can be repeated as necessary. "We will also tape sessions between counselors and clients for further training of counselors. The video tape unit is an excellent aid in training other members of our staff in floor supervision, teaching techniques, basic learning theory and behavioral techniques. There will be a permanent library of such training tapes," Weatherford concluded.

Colorful Celebration Mexico Christmas Festival

NEW YORK

Interested in finding out how others in the world celebrate the joyous Christmas and New Year's season.

If you are, then think about a trip to Mexico for this year's holiday season.

The season in Mexico illuminates its entrance with a parade of lights in cosmopolitan Mexico City on Dec. 1 and closes out the year on Dec. 31 with a procession of torches among the pyramids of Mitla, 375 miles southeast of the capital.

Mexico City comes brilliantly alive as the Christmas Festival Queen arrives as almost all the lights in the city and millions of others added for the holiday are switched on.

One of the highlights is Papa Noel, "sombbrero" in hand, riding his magic carpet through the sky led by his trusty reindeer, Domingo and Blanco.

Adults in Mitla, near Oaxaca, wait until Dec. 31 to ask for their rewards for the coming year.

Here, the darkness outside the town is pierced by thousands of torches held by Zapotec Indians on their way to the family bonfires. On the way, each family first stops at the "Cruz de Pediminetos" (Petition Cross) where, a flower laying flowers on the pile, they blow incense in four directions. They continue on to the family bonfire for a feast of tortillas and beans, and then make their material request for the coming year.

Each family, using twigs, grass, seeds and bits of sugar cane, construct miniature houses, farm animals and even farming implements.

After the bonfires have turned to cinders the families return home with the knowledge that one cycle of living is finished and a new, hopefully better one is beginning.

Of course, this holiday attraction is just one of the many awaiting vacation travelers to Mexico. Your local travel agent has all the details including transportation and accommodations.

Many Good Dollar Buys During Swedish Vacation

NEW YORK

A bundle of dollar stretching tour programs featuring Stockholm and other Swedish destinations have been packaged for the fall, winter and spring travelers.

Ranging from a ski week in Rattvik, in Sweden's winter sports province of Dalarna, to 7 to 8 days group inclusive tours featuring Stockholm and optional cruises to Helsinki, the bargain programs are designed for both business and pleasure travelers.

A week in Stockholm for $70 per person, double, (plus air fare to and from Stockholm) includes six nights hotel accommodation with continental breakfast each day, airport transfers, sightseeing, dinner at one of the city's most popular restaurants and a program of free gifts and guided tours.

And for an additional $18 visitors can include a steamer cruise to Finland featuring overnight accommodations in a first class cabin, dinners on board and a full day in Helsinki for sightseeing or shopping.

Skiers can take advantage of an economical week's trip for Nordic or downhill skiing at the popular resort area of Rattvik. A new package offering transportation from Stockholm to Rattvik, five nights at a resort hotel, including continental breakfast, plus two nights in Stockholm at the end of the tour, is priced from $70 per person, sharing a twin-bedded room. Roundtrip air fare is additional.

See your local travel agent on these packages as well as many others for that trip to Sweden.

Fine Arrangement Offered

By JACK McEENEY
PROVIDENCE, R.I.

This week's house feature is a version of the suburban type dwellings that do the countryside. Departing from the more or less rectangular design, the architects employed an "L" shape layout to contrive a three-bedroom floor plan that provides a fine arrangement of traffic and facilities. Chief among the accomplishments is the ideal separation of the main living area from the sleeping quarters which gives complete privacy to both sections.

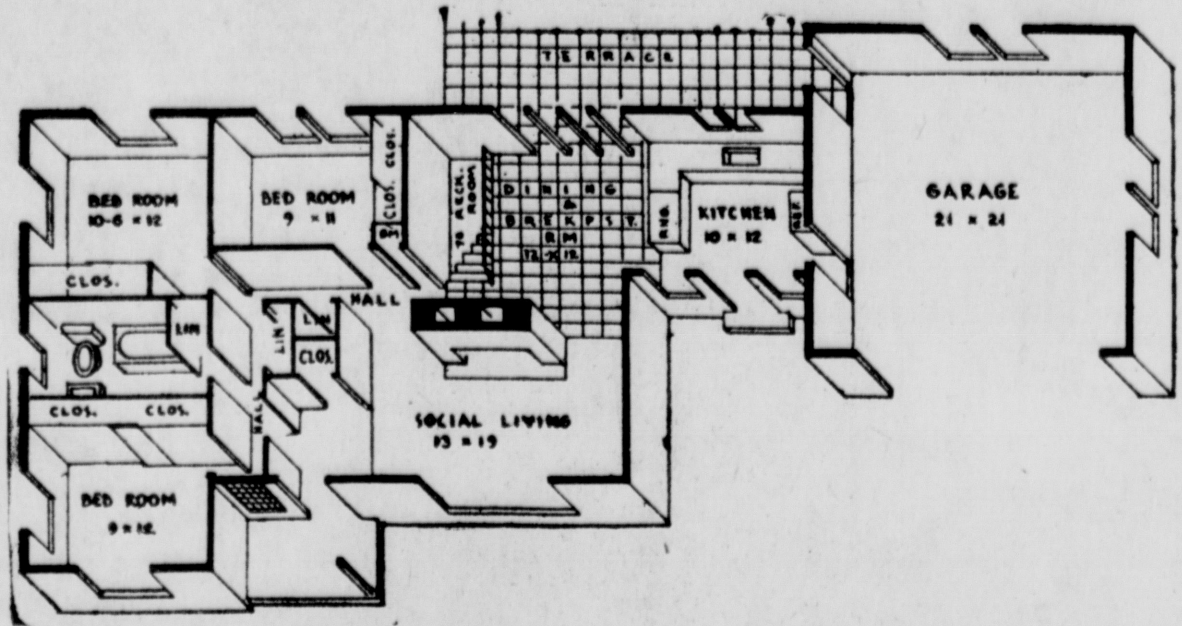

Primarily, this was done by placing the living room at the right front with open planning to a rear dining room and rear terrace and locating the kitchen to the right rear side in an area which is commonly used as the breezeway, permitting the creation of a design that produces an unusually good traffic pattern, inasmuch as the methods of movement is clearly defined.

Highlights of "The Astor" design are the sheltered front entrance, large fireplace, open staircase to lower family room, rear terrace and an abundance of wardrobe and closet space. The front exterior combines brick with alternating vertical and horizontal redwood siding on the gables. The sides and rear are finished with wood shingles. The dimensions of "The Astor" plans are 26 foot depth by 40 foot width with an accompanying overall, including the two-car garage, of 74 feet 6 inches. Complete working blueprints are available at moderate cost by using the accompanying

Tile, Paint, Stain

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — We recently moved into a house which has resilient floor tile in the kitchen and the family room. Although it's an old house, the tile is still in good condition and probably was put down long after the house was built. My wife says she used a polishing wax on the tile floors in our other house, but is afraid to use it here because she read that it is bad for certain types of tile. Can you tell me something about this and how I can tell what kind of tile it is?

A. — It is difficult to determine the kind of tile that is already cemented to a floor. Only a professional would be able to tell you after carefully looking at it over — and in some cases even he might have difficulty. Have you thought about contacting and asking the previous owners, who may have installed the tile or, if not, know what kind it is?

In any case, your wife is correct. Self-polishing waxes can be used on any kind of tile, but polishing waxes (those which must be buffed to attain a high degree of shine) have solvents that might damage certain tiles, especially asphalt. If you are able to find what your tile is, be guided by the labels on the waxes, which tell you which floors they can and cannot be used on. If you can't find out, then use a self-polishing wax.

Q. — What's the difference between wall and ceiling paint? It seems to me they are the same and that manufacturers merely give them different labels so you have to buy two different kinds. Am I right?

A. — No. While there is no major difference, what there is can be important. For one thing, a ceiling paint usually is formulated so that it will cover in a single coat. For another, a wall paint usually is more washable.

Q. — My neighbor and I both used stain from the same can for the wood-paneled rooms in our attics. Mine came out noticeably darker. Is it because he did not mix the stain often enough?

A. — No. It's because different kinds of woods take stain differently. Another possible factor is that he may have wiped off the excess stain more quickly than you did.

Terrariums are fast becoming one of the most popular forms of gardening. Schools use them,

Handbook On Roses Available

SHENANDOAH, Iowa
A handbook covering the many uses for roses, clearly illustrated in a long series of pen drawings by Henry Ahl, is available to our readers for the asking.

Sunday Freeman readers may obtain this handbook by writing to All-America Rose Selections, P.O. Box 218, Shenandoah, Iowa, 51601.

Besides the seven pages of sketches covering the uses of roses, is included a description of the classes of roses, directions for cutting rose blooms, the meaning of dis-budding and growing of exhibition roses. Also included is a list of 112 AARS accredited Public Rose Gardens where plants of the AARS winners may be seen in bloom long before they are offered for sale by the nurserymen and rose specialists.

children build and study a variety of bog-to-desert plantings. You can use them as center pieces or window gardens.

A terrarium bottles up the climate, providing the humid, dust-free environment plants need. Be imaginative. All type of containers work, from fish tanks to brandy snifters, antique domes, cut down gallon jugs, punch bowls.

Terrariums were popularized in the 1880s by Nathaniel Ward who invented the Wardian cases, early indoor greenhouses. Now, indoor containers are back in style.

They're easy to make and maintain. Some new items on the market are attractive and perfectly designed for mini-gardens. The Dewkist terrarium includes plastic unit with varieties of tiny foliage plants, shells, driftwood and soil. It is available in chain variety stores.

Pick your container, then decide on the types of plants you want, whether cacti, bog or woodland garden. Lay out plants on a paper or plastic sheet.

Mix warm water with top soil, sand and peat moss. Humus is better for giving power to the plant. Squeeze excess moisture from the mix and place it over a layer of charcoal and gravel on the bottom. This helps prevent sour water in the terrarium. Fill container about one-fourth with soil mix.

Next, plan the design of plants for eye appeal. Shake off excess soil from plant roots. Poke holes in the soil with a trowel or spoon. Then position roots with stem at soil level and cover roots well. Tamp down lightly.

Plant tall varieties first, to the side or portion that gives the best appearance. Then plant the foreground, spreading roots evenly and covering well.

Leave open spaces for plants to grow freely. Now add your personal touch: shells, stones, pieces of wood or ceramic animals.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:

Think out a new plan to extend your activities and interests far beyond their present boundaries, especially those of a scientific, or educational nature.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study the outlets you want to retain in your life and decide which should be further extended. Contact new personalities you wish to have for good friends.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Rely on hunches which are accurate and reach right decisions in personal dealings. Plan better way to handle obligations. Talk to the right people.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Good day to sit at the dinner table with associates and hash over plans for the future, deals to be made. Handle civil affairs early.

Sunday, November 25

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Do some special favors for loyal, helpful persons to whom you owe a debt of gratitude. Take care of any health problem and exercise more.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Join congenials for amusements. Use some new tactic that will please mate more. Don't be a pushover for anyone. Act.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle accumulated small tasks around the house. Show appreciation for kin instead of criticizing them and get proper results. Think kindly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Attend inspiring lectures. Services to become a more alert, up-to-date, person. Then get together with congenials for good times. Pay your part of bill.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get a success attitude and you find you hit on the right idea to have it. Ask business expert for suggestions. A successful social evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your health and appearance for necessary improvements. Put those social ideas to work and get right results. Stay within budget.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't limit your abilities and you will be far more successful. Talk over ideas with experts, but don't confide in others. Have a romantic p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Contact many good pals now and have the sociable type of day you like. Add new types to your present roster of friends. Retire early.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make this a day for charitable or social work that you like. Impress higher-ups with your ability. Dine out with kin for a delightful time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will look at the world through rose-colored glasses and should have as fine an education as possible, including foreign languages, so the wonderful promise in this chart will be realized. Otherwise your youngster could soon get discouraged if brought up under disadvantages. Teach early to go to bigwigs for assistance and get it. Imports, exports fine here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

GENERAL TENDENCIES:

The daytime is fine to use your energy to put across your finest talents. In the evening you find any argument with another person could take away the success that you are so carefully building up. Keep poised.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study carefully the new aims you have and know how to make big success with them. A new contact can be of real help to you now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Ideal time to have greater understanding with your mate so that it will become a happier alliance. Avoid overwork of any kind.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Cooperate with associates fully now and begin the new week on the right note. Talk over a civic matter with respected higher-ups.

Monday, November 26

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Being cooperative with associates and co-workers brings proper results. Buying new clothes now perks up your appearance.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan your recreation early, then handle regular duties efficiently. Use your finest skills. Show more affection for your mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure you understand fundamentals before you try to start a new upstart in business. Make necessary repairs in the home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Communicating with others and exchanging ideas could result in fine benefits. Take care of reports and statements without fail.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Begin new week properly by pursuing those new activities of a monetary nature that can make you more prosperous in the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are in fine fettle now and can accomplish almost anything you set your heart and mind to, so get an early start.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take time for meditation and allow those ideas in your mind to express themselves. Go to an expert for data you need.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Contacting clever persons you know and listening to their ideas is wise. Evening is best spent at some kind of study.

Good day to contact influential person you know. Listen carefully to the advice that is given you. Avoid one who opposes you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those clever young people who can accomplish a great deal in life provided the parents do not try to mold along lines they desire. Go to a vocational guidance expert so that the forte can be found early in life. Give good ethical training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Tough to Justify Today's $ Bills

It is difficult to justify today's dull, drab shipping label type dollar bill once one has seen specimens of our 18th and 19th century paper currency. The difference appears as an almost deliberate attempt to devalue the note by first depreciating its aesthetic values.

Aside from being attractive, many of our early large size ills depicted a wealth of historic knowledge in their fine engraving and art work. A case in point would be the One, Two and Five dollar "Educational Series" of 1896, considered by many as the three most beautiful pieces of paper currency ever produced by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

The pictorial theme of the

An open book displaying a readable portion of the Constitution of the United States is on the extreme right hand side with the Washington monument and Capitol dome in the background.

The names of 23 great Americans, enclosed in laurel wreaths form the end and top borders. Starting at the lower left, those listed are: Longfellow, Sherman, Lincoln, Irving, Cooper, Fulton, Calhoun, Clay, Jackson, Adams, Jefferson, Washington, Franklin, Hamilton, Perry, Marshall, Webster, Morse, Hawthorne, Bancroft, Grant, Farragut and Emerson.

The reverse of the bill shows the heads of George and Martha Washington separated by a large ornate figure "one" against a field of florentine scroll work.

Don't Throw in the Towel

By Oswald and James Jacoby

to dummy's king you have to make a discard. You can't afford a heart. Obviously, declarer holds the king of hearts and you will be making dummy's fourth heart a winner. How about a diamond discard? This should set up a good diamond, or maybe two good diamonds for declarer.

So a spade discard appears to be automatic. But declarer surely holds four spades so if you throw a spade he will play ace-queen of spades; lead a heart to his king and squeeze you out of a heart or diamond by playing his fourth spade.

You appear to be squeezed in three suits. Should you concede right off the bat and get on to the next rubber?

The answer is a resounding "NO!"

You simply unguard your jack of hearts. Now, if declarer runs off four hearts right away you can afford to throw a spade because he won't be able to get to his hand except by overtaking dummy's queen of spades with his king. If he cashes the ace and queen of spades first and comes to his hand with the king of hearts you just haven't been squeezed and won't be squeezed since he continues with a second club can't exert the right pressure.

Take a look at the bidding and the North and East hands. West opens the eight of diamonds and you have to defend as East.

You have no problem at trick one or when South leads a club to his ace at trick two, but when he continues with a second club can't exert the right pressure.

Silver Presidential Series

By MORT REED

The Philatelic-Numismatic Guild has just released the first six of its 32-piece Presidential Series Silver Postage Stamps. Twenty-nine of these reproductions depict presidential stamps from Washington through Coolidge (Scott's numbers A276 to A306). Two are the Benjamin Franklin and Martha Washington Stamps (Scott's A275 and A277) and one is the famous White House stamp (Scott's A281).

Each stamp has been faithfully recreated by Lombardo

Mint craftsmen and hand antiqued in .999 pure silver in a size specified by the United States Treasury Department. To protect their possible future value as heirlooms the entire production is limited to 5,000 serially numbered sets.

Now that all Philatelic-Numismatic Guild members have had an opportunity to secure their copies, the balance of the Silver Posta-Ingette series is being offered to non-guild members at $6, each plus 50 cents postage and handling for each three ordered.

American readers may write: Philatelic-Numismatic Guild, 300 West National Road, Vandalia, Ohio 45377. Canadian readers may direct their orders or inquiries to: Philatelic-Numismatic Guild, P.O. Box 203, Sherbrooke, Quebec.

MINT OFFERS 1974 PROOF COIN SETS

Mrs. Mary Brooks, Director of the Mint, has announced that order cards for 1974 Proof Coin sets will be sent to all persons on the Mint mailing list beginning Oct. 24, 1973. Order acceptance began on Nov. 1, 1973 and will continue until the Mint's production limit has been reached.

All six denominations will be represented in the 1974 Proof Coin Sets: an Eisenhower dollar, a half-dollar, a quarter, a dime, nickel and one cent-piece all produced at the San Francisco Assay Office. There will be a limit of five sets per order and the price per set is $7 including handling and shipment by first class registered mail.

Payment, either by check of money order, should be made to the Bureau of the Mint and must accompany each order.

Mail orders to: Bureau of the Mint, 55 Mint Street, San Francisco, California 94175. This is now the only address for ordering Mint list medals and coin sets.

All orders for 1974 Proof Coins will be filled during the calendar year of 1974.

Some Camera Angles

By IRVING DESFOR

Last week's column described how to make family headline albums in which newspaper headlines or news magazines stories are combined with personal photographs to make a more interesting scrapbook. The photos are seen then in relation to world events taking place at the same time and the albums become more meaningful and valuable through the years.

Albums can be neat, orderly books easily accessible for quick reference about people, places and events that have been photographed and concern the family. They serve a practical purpose in preserving pictures and protecting prints—far better than when photos are scattered in desk drawers, envelopes and assorted boxes.

There are many types of albums, some of them designed to make mounting of pictures less of a chore. Among them are books with acetate pockets which hold prints singly and others with self-adhesive pages protected by acetate covers.

Albums become even handier for ready reference if they are devoted to separate subjects like vacation trips, hobbies or individual children. In recent years, my wife has taken over production of separate "Grandchildren Albums" and they've become an increasing source of pleasure.

Her albums contain more than photos of the grandchildren—they are treasure troves of associated souvenirs like birthday cards, notes and drawings by the youngster, brochures and stories about places they've been to. In the same manner, other albums include maps, menus, slogans and any relevant material that is informative or interesting about the subject photographed. The extra material also adds offbeat pace and variety to any photo album.

TEEN SCENE: Congratulations, It's a Bowie!

Fifteen years ago — give or take a few — Ed Sullivan cropped Elvis Presley's screen image at the waist, on the theory that the singer was better heard but not obscene. Television must have matured a little since then, because David Bowie is rapidly replacing Johnny Carson as the biggest competition to the Late Late Show. Of course, the screen hasn't matured to the point where David Bowie might replace "I Love Lucy" re-runs in the prime time, but he's usually worth staying up for.

Unisex seems to be maturing along with TV. It all started—at least from the point of view of the public-at-large—when Tiny Tim was introduced as Pet Freak on Laugh-In a few seasons ago. People laughed so hard that they completely missed the point that he could sing.

Then along came Alice Cooper. The theatrics were crude at times, and the music was raucous, but nobody was laughing quite as hard. Cooper was really a heavy act, in a great many ways. He appealed to the snake, the hangman, the gang member that is in all of us, somewhere.

And then, over the ocean came David Bowie, and people were laughing anymore. For one thing, Bowie had a secure musical and entertainment background. He had been performing over in England for ten years, and had a name as a master showman, a good songwriter, and a superb performer. Early photos show a penetrating, sensitive young man who might resemble Richard Chamberlain very slightly. His music was thoughtful, and so was he. He had a pretty wife, Angie, and a child. He became rather well-known, and he might well have become the Tom Rush or the Don McLean of England. Fortunately, Bowie was an even better actor than he was a singer. And he can sing with his face as well as his voice.

David Bowie made his American debut in the midst of the tinsel-tights-and-tinted-tresses school of male singers. At first, he may have outdone himself a little—his reputation wasn't helped by albums that sounded like halloween scare records and a few still photos that made him look like the Bride of the Mummy, the Woman from Outer Space, or Twiggy after partial electrocution. His reputation was preserved though, by albums and reviews from England and by those who had seen his live concerts. By the time TV was ready for Bowie (or as ready as it would ever be) he was ready for it.

David Bowie is far from the ordinary drag queen or transvestite—men who wear women's clothing. Actually, most of his costumes could not really be construed as women's clothing, although they certainly aren't men's clothing. Most of them are topless enough to bare his chest and his muscular arms and legs. And he certainly doesn't act like a woman—until he shows a quick mannerism that sometimes men miss, but cause women in his audience to gasp with familiarity.

Two things save Bowie's act from sinking into the realm of camp. One is its utter professionalism. Nothing is amateur, nothing is overdone. The costumes, the dancing, the mime, the music, and Bowie himself all blend into a single effect. Sometimes the mood is tragic, sometimes ribald, sometimes bizarre, but it is always in harmony, and not only musically. The second outstanding quality is how together Bowie is with his act, and with his audience. This is a person who really enjoys giving a performance, and who appreciates the role of performer. When the crowd laughs, he laughs with them—or gives them a captivating smile, any-wav. When he cries, there are tears in the audience. He never allows the act to degenerate into the kind of a self-adulating frenzy that sometimes overtakes Alice Cooper, where the band is getting it off and the audience is trying to see the snake through the smoke. Whether he is making sensuously choreographed passes at members of his band or singing a tender and tragic love song to a woman, Bowie allows inuendo to replace sensationalism. In the last year, his act has gained much more subtlety. He has learned to translate his stage performance into a show for the closer eye of the camera, and his face is a show in itself. The skin moves and curls over the gaunt cheekbones, and the smile reaches the carefully made-up eyes—the smile of a performer who is not afraid to smile at himself before his audience does.

After David Bowie is securely entrenched as an entertainer, it is very possible that he may disappoint some of his fans—and delight others—by growing his eyebrows back in, taking off his nail polish, and returning to the handsome and thoughtful young man on some of his early record jackets. Until then, he does more for ostrich plumes than anyone since Mae West—and he can dance, too!

Youth in the News--Honors

Campus activities have reached a holiday peak with area Youth in the News figuring in much of the honors.

Two Ulster County freshmen at Hartwick College will be spending the December term in Europe.

Janis Decker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armand Decker of Route 1, Kerhonkson, has left with nine other Hartwick students for study in Spain under direction of Dr. Frederico Serra-Lima, associate professor of Spanish. Ruth Whitten, daughter of William Whitten of Route 1, Rosendale, meanwhile, has left for December term in France with French professor, Alfred Massari. Mrs. Massari and nine other students.

Both girls had intensive introductory language study during the fall term and will experience cultural encounters as part of their continuing study in host countries.

The group in Spain will establish headquarters in Madrid and will explore cultural aspects of the famed city as well as visiting Granada, Alhambra, Salamanca, Toledo, Segovia, the Escorial and the Spanish countryside, returning to the states Dec. 14.

The French students will stay at a student hostel operated by the French Ministry of Culture on the Right Bank in Paris. The group will visit and study cathedrals, museums and points of historical interest during the 26-day stay.

Pre-holiday celebrations at Virginia Military Institute saw presentation ceremonies for the Class of 1975. Among second classmen receiving their treasured VMI rings was Charles S. Kuane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Kuane of Kingston. He is an English major at VMI.

Presentation was made by Major Gen. Richard L. Irby, institute superintendent. The traditional ring figure dance is considered a high point in cadet life at VMI.

Kim Nicholas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nickolas of 68 Merline Avenue, Kingston was notified recently of his selection by Who's Who Among American High School Students. He is now enrolled at St. Lawrence University, Canton, taking a pre-med course.

Selection by Who's Who is an exclusive honor and carries with it an opportunity to compete for further honors as a Student Achiever.

While a student at Kingston High School, Kim ranked in the upper third of the Class of 1973. He was active in sports including baseball, football and swimming on a varsity level. He received the coaches award in football for the 1973 season as Best Sportsman of the Year. At St. Lawrence he is on the varsity football team as outside and middle linebacker.

Kim was a member of band and orchestra for three years and served as band vice president in his senior year. He received Kiwanis and Kathryn Lacey cash awards at KHS.

Elections too have added to campus recognition. Trudy E. Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Hall of Route 213, High Falls, has been elected treasurer of the freshman class at St. Lawrence University.

Closer to home, Kenneth Blundell Jr., 45 Lafayette Street, Saugerties, is serving as president of the Student Government Organization at Ulster County Community College.

Other officers are Craig

CHARLES KAUNE

KIM NICHOLAS

Michlewski, Eddyville, vice-president; Rebecca Borrelli and Tina Chapman, both of Hunter, secretary and treasurer respectively.

Sophomore senators named this fall are Jim Brooks of East Jewett and Doug Mackinlay of Rosendale.

Freshman senators are Andrew Bier, Greenfield Park, Ron Deak of RD 2, Saugerties; Gina Esposito of Kingston; Michael Greaney of East Durham; Ines Heidhauser of Saugerties; Thomas Joseph of Elka Park; Fred Kurland and Michael Marnell, both of Kingston.

Two area residents were inducted into the Athenians, academic honor society at Russell Sage College, Troy. They are Patricia S. McClung, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce F. Stout of RD 5, Lucas Avenue Extension, Kingston and Michael Geraldine B. Mulligan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Muscarella of Box 1, Mt. Marion.

Membership is based on at least three consecutive semesters on the dean's list.

Robert J. Kaiser Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert J. Kaiser of 10 Nelshore Drive, Monticello, a junior at Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Pa., received the William F. Muhlenberg award at the annual fall honors day program recently.

The award is presented to the junior exemplifying the qualities of character, scholarship and proficiency in campus activities. He was one of 24 students chosen to be honored at the awards dinner hosted by Dr. C.A. Hanson, president of the college. Robert is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Qualtere of 323 Hasbrouck Avenue, Kingston.

Musicians at the Concord

Northern Dutchess musicians will be taking an active part in the New York All-State Music Festival sponsored by the New York State School Music Association Conference at the Concord Hotel today through Tuesday.

Geoffrey Beck a senior and Carol Foss, a junior will represent Rhinebeck Central High School in instrumental concerts.

Geoff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beck of River Road, received a 6A grade in competition last spring for his performance of the Verdi bass operatic aria, Il lacerato spirito.

He has studied voice privately with his school music teacher, Walter Swertfeger, and is currently studying with Mrs. Constance Jessup of Hyde Park. Geoff also sang in the Area All-State choir at Roosevelt High School, Hyde Park, on November 16 and 17.

Carol Foss daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Foss, Slate Quarry Road, was selected for the All-State Piano Team from over 200 applicants on the basis of her interpretation of a Chopin Nocturne. She received a grade of 6A+. Carol has studied piano for nine years.

Her teachers have been Walter Swertfeger, Mrs. Lisl Cohn, Mrs. Janet Pinney, Daniel Hooper; and she is currently studying with Miss Ann Lynn Miller.

The Piano Team is a new addition to All-State. Other performing groups are All-State Choir, Orchestra, Band and Stage Band. The concert will be on Tuesday, November 27 and is open to the public.

Appearing with the All-State Choir at that concert will be Richard Totman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Totman of Red Hook.

Richard attends Red Hook Central School where he has been very active in musical shows, the choir and band, for the past six years. He is presently the president of the music department.

In 1972 he played the leading role in "The King and I" followed by the part of "Will" in "Oklahoma" during the 1973 school year. Subsequently he won the part of "Will" for Ulster County Community College's summer production of "Oklahoma."

He has been a member of

the area all-state choirs for the past four years and active in the area as a tenor soloist.

In 1973 he won an award at stage band competition as an outstanding bass player. Richard has received A6 ratings during the last two years at solo competition and was a member of the All-State Choir last year at Rochester. This year's All-State Choir of 375 voices will be conducted by Wendell Pritchett, music supervisor for the Philadelphia public schools.

Yule Concert At Highland

HIGHLAND With Thanksgiving now behind us, thoughts are turning to the Christmas season.

The annual Christmas concert will be presented at the Highland High School by the music department, Thursday, Dec. 13. Rehearsals are currently underway for the performance to be given that night starting 8:15 in the high school auditorium.

This year's program features the return of the Keynotes to Highland programs. The Keynotes area stage band playing music in the style of the swing era in which the big bands of Glenn Miller, Tommy Dorsey, Stan Kenton and others were popular.

Also to be featured are the high school chorus, the guitar class, which is a brand new addition to the music curriculum, and the Highlander Symphonic Band.

Seasonal music will be sung and played. The public may attend. There will be a small admission charge to help defray the expenses of music department activities. Children under six will be admitted free with parent.

WRITER AWARD—Daniel D. Galyon receives outstanding student writer award and the congratulations of concerned faculty. The award was a result of the National Council of Teachers of English competition after nomination by the Kingston High School English department. Taking part in the recent recognition were (L.) Alexander Banyo, English instructor, J. Watson Bailey Junior High School; Dan H. Allen, KHS principal; Galyon, now a senior; Ms. Lynn Hohn and Robert Tucker, English instructors at KHS. Dan is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles A. Galyon of 130 Fair Street. He is a senior this year at KHS. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Youth Group Plans Slated

ELLENVILLE

Adrian Milton was elected chairman of the newly organized Ellenville Youth Commission at its first meeting recently.

Other officers named were Daniel Pautz, co-chairman, and Linda Zuckrow, secretary.

The Ellenville Board of Education has offered unlimited use of school facilities for the commission's programs and the commission has invited Al Sukarski of the Division of Youth, State Aid, to discuss the goals and purposes of such a group.

The 'James W. Baldwin' Becomes The 'Central Hudson'

BY CAPT. WM. O. BENSON

The old Rondout to New York night boat "James W. Baldwin", that linked Rondout and Kingston with the metropolis to the south longer than any other, had her share of mishaps.

The "Baldwin" ran on the river during an era when sloops and schooners still plied the Hudson in great numbers. On one dark and hazy night, while making a landing at Marlborough, the steamer mistook a sloop's lantern for a light on the dock. She hit the sloop, named "First Effort," which sank in 50 feet of water and, which to this day, is still on the bottom of the river.

Another time in 1904 on a black, rainy night off Esopus, the "Baldwin" collided with an ancient sloop named "Contrivance." The sloop, carrying a load of brick, was 86-years-old and was sunk. The captain of the sloop, Calvin Delanoy, was drowned.

On Wednesday, July 4, 1888, the "James W. Baldwin" was involved in an accident that subsequently led to the steamboat's name being changed to "Central Hudson." On that holiday evening shortly after 8 p.m. on leaving her dock at Newburgh, a small steam launch carrying eight people crossed the steamboat's bow. Despite the steamer's frantic efforts to back down, it was too late to get the way off the "Baldwin." The launch was hit amid-ships and immediately sank.

Quick action by the "Baldwin's" crew saved six of the eight people in the launch. Of the two persons lost, one unfortunately happened to be Mrs. Benjamin B. Odell, Jr., whose husband would later become Governor of New York State and head of the steamboat company that years later was to acquire ownership of the "James W. Baldwin."

Of the accident itself, a coroner's jury later found the launch to be at fault and exonerated the men in the "Baldwin's" pilot house of blame.

During the latter half of the 19th century, virtually every community of any size along the Hudson River was linked to New York by its own steamboat line. In 1899, the three independent steamboat companies serving Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Kingston were consolidated into one company, the new company being named the Central Hudson Steamboat Company. One of the prime movers behind the consolidation and an officer of the new company was Benjamin B. Odell, Jr. of Newburgh, whose wife had been drowned in the "Baldwin" incident 11 years before.

Since the "James W. Baldwin" was one of the two steamers of the Kingston line acquired in the merger, she came under the Odell ownership. In 1903, the "Baldwin" underwent a rebuilding which included new boilers and a dining room on the saloon deck forward. Allegedly as an aftermath of her tragic accident of July 4, 1888, the

A quartet of able steamboaters poses in the pilot house of the "Central Hudson" while berthed at Rondout during the first decade of this century. From the left are Capt. Weston L. Dennis of Poughkeepsie, Quartermaster Carey Secor of Port Ewen, Second Pilot Amos Cooper of Athens, First Pilot Abram Brooks of Ponckhockie

"James W. Baldwin" at this point was renamed "Central Hudson." As a final irony, the Central Hudson Line built a new steamer in 1911 to replace the "James W. Baldwin", now named "Central Hudson." The new steamboat's name was "Benjamin B. Odell."

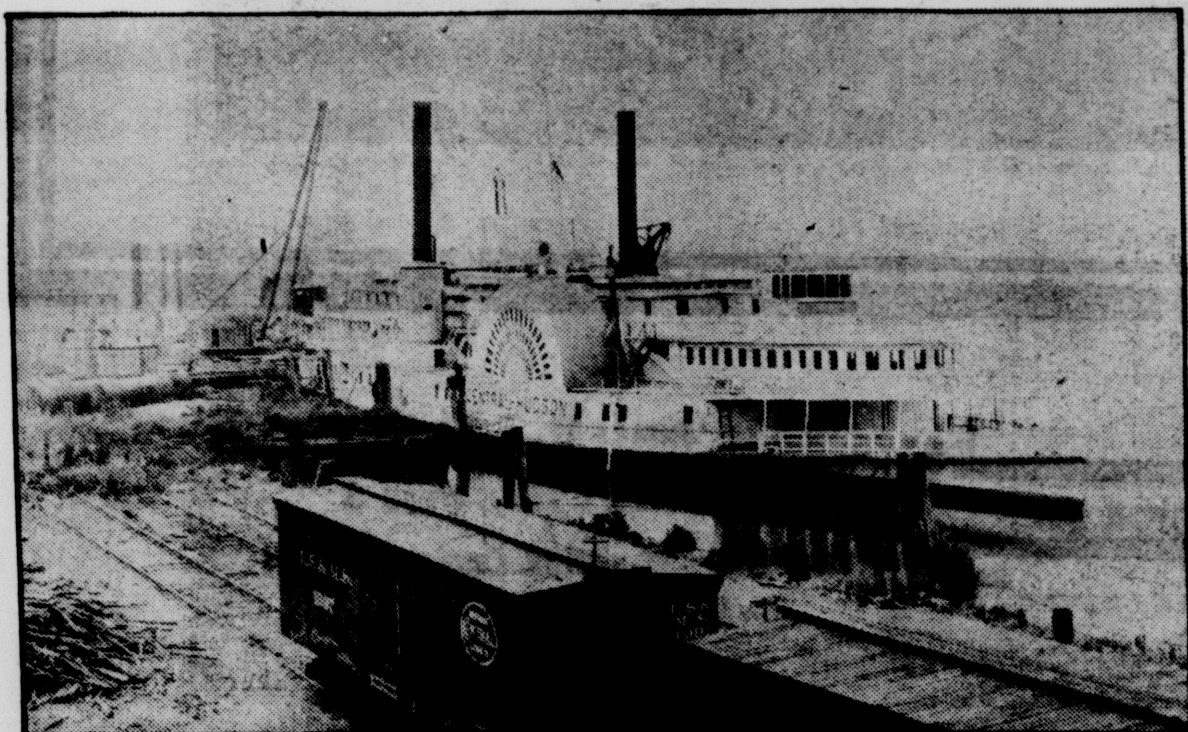

Back in the glory days of the "James W. Baldwin" on the Rondout run, the steamer, particularly on Saturdays, would have brushes with the "Mary Powell."

Both steamboats were scheduled to arrive at Rondout on summer Saturday evenings at about the same time. Coming up off Esopus both boats would frequently be neck and neck with throttles wide open. The Chief Engineer of the "Baldwin" would pace back and forth across the main deck commanding his firemen, "Don't you dare let that steam pressure drop one ounce, or you can go ashore at Rondout for good!"

Up in the pilot house of the "Baldwin," the pilots would try and jockey for position and get on the west side of the channel so their steamer would be on the inside of the turn going around Esopus Meadows lighthouse. Sometimes the "Baldwin" would cut the Esopus lighthouse so short her port paddle wheel would stir up the mud. When they got off Sleightsburgh, and if they had a good high tide, I understand they would sometimes cut inside the Rondout lighthouse—which at that time stood on the south side of the creek. Then, how the water would turn muddy!

If they beat the "Powell" to Rondout Creek, the "Mary Powell" would have to lay out in the river and wait for the "Baldwin" to go in the creek and get turned around. At times like that, sometimes the crew of the "Baldwin" would take their sweet time turning and handling lines just to show the people waiting on the dock the "Baldwin" was on time landing, and the "Powell" would be late landing her passengers—sort of 19th century one upsmanship.

As the first decade of the 20th century drew to a close, the career of the old "James W. Baldwin" also approached its end. During 1910,

The "Central Hudson" at Newburgh, shortly before being towed away for dismantling. After running aground near West Point in May of 1911 — after 50 years of service between Kingston and New York, the steamer was considered to be so badly strained as to be unfit for further use.

The magic of theatre is based, in part, on make-up — and there's fascination in the cosmetic process among the ladies of the cast of "Pied Piper of Hamlin," first production of the newly formed Ulster Youth Theater Group. Assistant creative director Elizabeth Askue demonstrates how it's done here with Claudia Dent as her subject. Watching attentively (L-R) Beth Henry, Christine Casper, Sharon Cote, Claudia Dumas and Shelley Andersen.

What's an actor without a costume? Well, certainly not the stuff of which plays are made! So, when "Pied Piper of Hamlin" is staged at Kingston's J. Watson Bailey School on Dec. 8, all three acts will be properly costumed. A costume rehearsal trip out by part of the cast here is being supervised by Mary Caghey and Ann Ackerman. There'll be two performances on play date, Saturday, Dec. 8, with a matinee curtain time at 2 p.m. and an evening show at 7:30.

A Children's Play By Children

Wayne Jones as the legendary Pied Piper plays his mystical, irresistible music. Mesmerized in the circle around him: the cutest Rats in stage history, including (L-R) Gail Skilling, Wendy West, Connie Holland, Bridget Bradley, Tammy Tichnor, Jeanna Linnartz and Bridget Bell. The "Piper" cast, being put through its rehearsal paces currently by creative director Bill Skilling, is a large one — with roles being played by 27 Kingston youngsters and nine Woodstockers, ranging in age from 8-16.

Outside pre-production rehearsal headquarters on Fair Street, "Pied Piper" cast members enjoy a break. The new Ulster Youth Theater Group is a long-needed organization locally and a notable addition to the area as the only incorporated society dedicated to the production of children's plays by children. Mrs. H. Clark (Joy) Bell serves as chairman; urges support of the youthful thespians through purchase of tickets, now available Mondays through Fridays from 3-5:30 p.m. at 296 Fair Street. (Freeman photos by Bob Haines)

Pottery is the domain of Natalie Vermann, working here on a coil planter in her shop on Woodstock's Maverick Road. Many of her works will be on exhibit and sale at the Christmas Crafts Show, featuring "Crafts as Christmas Gifts," Saturday, Dec. 1 from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. at Woodstock Elementary School, Route 375 in the art colony. The show will be a double-barreled home-made event offering crafts made today as they were in the long ago past — and boasting the day-long serving of refreshments, all home-made and home-baked by the mothers of children attending the Woodstock Children's Center, which will be the beneficiary of proceeds from the show. ## Unique, One-of-a-Kind Crafts For This Christmas Showing

Jennifer Gelfant's talented fingers are equally adept at weaving, crocheting and knitting. All the attire visible in this photo was made by her, including the shirt worn by Dan Gelfant. She'll be demonstrating weaving all day long at the Christmas Crafts Show next Saturday at the Woodstock School. Other crafts will also be demonstrated by some of the 30 craftsmen displaying such wares as pottery, woodworking, macrame, silver handwrought jewelry, patchwork and applique quilts, stained glass, batik, decoupage, crocheted and knitted goods, children's toys and clothes, sculpture, watercolors, silkscreen, leather crafts, hand-woven goods and soft paste and stoneware. All in all, unique and one-of-a-kind crafts not available elsewhere, a good way to avoid the Yule shopping rush, and a chance to meet the maker of the item you're purchasing. (Alan Carey photo)

THE ARTS IN BRIEF

Marbletown Artists Association will hold its second annual Christmas show and sale in early December. The event will offer an opportunity to buy unique gifts created by area artists and craftsmen. The show will be held Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 8 and 9 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the American Legion Hall in Stone Ridge, and no admission will be charged. So, go and browse.

The art studios of Bennett College on the school's Millbrook campus are now open to members of the community, says Professor Don Justin Meserve of the college's Fine Arts Department. No instruction is being given, he says, but a figure model is always present for those interested in drawing. The sessions begin each Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. in the Mellon Center for the Arts. There is no charge for the use of the studio, but art materials are not furnished.

If you're looking for an idea for a pleasant family outing this fall or winter, you might consider this. The State Museum on Washington Avenue up in Albany shows films on Saturdays at 11 a.m. and at 1 and 3 p.m. the films cover nature subjects, animal wildlife, and include movies of historic interest. It's educational, and it's free, and it's fun for the whole family.

For those who don't mind driving to Albany at night, a two-part Natural History lecture series is being offered by the N.Y. State Department of Environmental Conservation. Everyone's invited to attend and they're free on Tuesday evenings at 8 p.m. in Lecture Center 7 at the State University of New York, 1400 Washington Avenue in the capital. This Tuesday, Nov. 27, "Understanding the Weather" will be the topic. Dr. Ray Falconer will focus on helping you understand how weather situations develop, and through numerous slides, movies and demonstrations, will discuss many of the interesting atmospheric phenomena he has dealt with over the years. On Dec. 11, the subject will be "Adirondack Living Watershed," aimed at unfolding the minute and panoramic splendor of the Adirondacks through the eyes of world-famed nature photographer, Clyde Smith of Shelburne, Vermont. Using dual-slide projection and synchronized background music, his sight-and-sound program brings to the viewer the unique experience of an intimate evening with nature and, hopefully, a fuller appreciation of the natural history of the beautiful Adirondacks.

Contemporary Prints To Be On Display At UCCC

The Department of Visual Arts at Ulster County Community College will offer a special exhibition on Contemporary Prints in the College Lounge and The College Visual Arts Gallery from Nov. 27 through Dec. 14.

This print exhibition consists of 22 original color woodcuts by leading contemporary artists including Picasso, Norman Kent, Ernest W. Watson, Antonio Frasconi, John Held Jr., and Jacob Landau.

The public is invited to attend this exhibition for which there is no charge.

The present exhibition on tapestries by the Greek artist, Anna Papadimitriou, has been extended through Nov. 27. A limited number of the tapestries are available for purchase.

The next regular exhibition in The College Visual Arts Gallery will be icons painted by the Rev. John W. Waisted, of the Holy Cross Monastery at West Park; and contemporary stained and fused glass designed by Joseph Meert. It will open on Dec. 4, when a Meet-the-Artists program is scheduled for 1:40 p.m., and will continue through Jan. 18.

Further information about the various exhibitions can be obtained by calling the Department of Visual Arts at the College.

Plugged as the most important painting and sculpture show of the current season is the exhibit now on view at the Woodstock Artists Association gallery on the village green in the art colony. And, indeed, it is a show with a great deal of impact and prestige. Discussing the well-juried exhibition here and backed by three fine paintings in the show are (L-R) Dorothy Greenepepper, Tom Reddington and Basil Eliescu.

Woodstock artist Merrie Zaretsky studies placement of two works of art in current display at Woodstock Artists Association. Show was juried by three local artists (Robert Angeloch, Lucile Blanch and Hanna Small), rather than by one outside juror as has been the process in the past. That they did their job well is evidenced by the high quality of this particular exhibit.

Artist George V. Castaldo Jr. was on hand for the recent opening reception of WAA's painting and sculpture show; is seated here near one of the many sculpture pieces in the exhibit. The show burgeons with an unusually large number of works, including oil portraits, landscapes and still lifes — and sculpture in wood, stone and metal. The present display will remain on view through Wednesday of this week.

Wine and Cheese Festival: A Rare Tasting Carnival

Wine and Cheese — two staples of good living — will have nine days in the sun when the First Annual International Wine & Cheese Festival comes to the New York Coliseum in Manhattan on Saturday, Dec. 8. Hudson Valley wine lovers will certainly want to plan to attend.

Primarily a tasting carnival, the Festival will tell the stories of hundreds of wines and cheeses, for both the consumer and trade; motion pictures, and samplings. More than 125 vintners, national organizations of wine growers, and cheese makers will relate the history of their own products and of the industry. Exhibits, tastings, seminars, competitions and motion pictures will explain the making, qualities and best uses of diverse wines and cheeses. Selection of the best wines in each class will be made by the public and also by a panel of judges, with gold and silver medals and blue ribbons awarded. Competition in wine identification will be open in three classes — professionals, connoisseurs, and dilettantes.

Wines offered by 27 nations will be made available for tasting, including a special area of "White Wines from Red Countries" — including China and the Soviet Union.

Actual materials used in the creation of wines will be on display, including a planted vineyard, a mechanical grape harvester, and other equipment — not excluding the traditional girls — stomping grapes. Renowned chefs, sommeliers, and authorities on wines and cheeses will participate in a stream of seminars in an adjoining area.

Guided tours of the world's wine countries, from California to the Continent, will be provided by travel agencies and a council of cheese and wine gourmets will present the First Annual International Wine & Cheese Festival Awards to figures contributing the most to the enjoyment of wine and cheese.

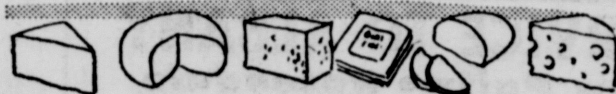

The world's rarest cheeses as well as the largest wheel of cheese ever created will be introduced.

A cheesecake queen of the International Wine and Cheese Festival will be crowned in a symbol of vine leaves and grapes to serve as official hostess for the long list of gourmet celebrities officially opening the show.

Sponsors of the exposition include the publication Impact Wine and Spirits Newsletter and ABC Industries, Inc., producers of trade and consumer services. Beverage Media, a leading publication in the industry, will sponsor portions of the Festival and will provide an informative souvenir journal for both the trade and the public.

The admission charge for the public to the International Wine and Cheese Festival is $3.50. The exposition will be open to the public from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m. daily including Saturdays and Sundays. Special trade hours are from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. from Monday to Friday.

For further information, contact N.H. Mager, director of the Festival, at 258 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10007, (212) 233-6010.

Ballet Company Auditions Dancers

The annual auditions were conducted recently for the Mid-Hudson Ballet Company in Poughkeepsie by Miss Marya Kennett, artistic director of the Middletown Ballet Company. A huge turnout of dancers was present for the two and one half hour workout, from which dancers were selected for both the training and major company.

Estelle & Alfonso, artistic directors of the Mid-Hudson Ballet Company, received the scorings and announced the results as follows: The major company consists of Larry Yando, Janet Coppola, Sharon McDermott, Karen Cassetta, Margo Scalzi, Eileen Bellizzi, Cindy Bonnett, Betty Jean Theysohn, Tracey Vita, Colleen Holt, Cindy Rose, Dawn Parrella, Cathy Cassetta and Mary Ann Fiorillo. The training company includes Susan Doty, Barbara Brinkerhoff, Mary Parrella, Jeannette Jordan, Jan Silkworth, Taryn Weinlein, Caroline Hamilton, Kim Ackert, Carol Schreiber, Kim Dossin, Michele Schreiber, Michele Conforti and Karen Germano.

The Mid-Hudson Ballet Company's most recent undertaking was bringing the National Dance Company of Mexico to Poughkeepsie for "Fiesta Folklorico." The company is currently in rehearsal for their forthcoming production "Holiday Salute to Disney" which will run for five shows. Dutchess County performances will be held December 15 and 16 at Poughkeepsie High Auditorium.

The Mid-Hudson Ballet Company has received funds from the New York State Council of the Arts, and is a member of the National Association for Regional Ballet, the Northeast Regional Ballet Association, and the Dutchess County Arts Council.

'James W. Baldwin'

the Central Hudson Line contracted for a new steamboat, designed as a replacement for the "Baldwin."

The new steamer, the "Benjamin B. Odell," made her first trip into Rondout Creek on April 11, 1911, bringing to a close the 50 year service of the "Baldwin," now named "Central Hudson," on the Rondout run.

In May of 1911, the "Central Hudson" was chartered by a company known as the Manhattan Line which had sprung up as an opposition line to the Hudson River Night Line running to Albany and Troy. The "Central Hudson" was to run with the steamer "Kennebec," an old Maine steamboat.

On her trip down river on May 20, 1911 in heavy fog, the "Central Hudson" ran aground below Jones Point, opposite Peekskill. She was aground some 13 hours before getting off and continuing on to New York.

On the very next trip up river, heavy with freight, the "Central Hudson" grounded again, making the turn too quick before getting up to Gee's Point at West Point. Unfortunately, she ran aground at high water.

The Cornell tugboats "E. C.

Baker" and "G. W. Decker" were sent down from Newburgh to try and pull her off. By the time they got there, however, the tide was ebbing and the captain of the "Decker" later told me the rods from her spars were getting slack in them, an indication she was hogging. The way her bow was aground, the tugboat captains thought if they pulled on her, at her age, and if she came off, the "Central Hudson" might sink in the deep water there before they could get her beached.

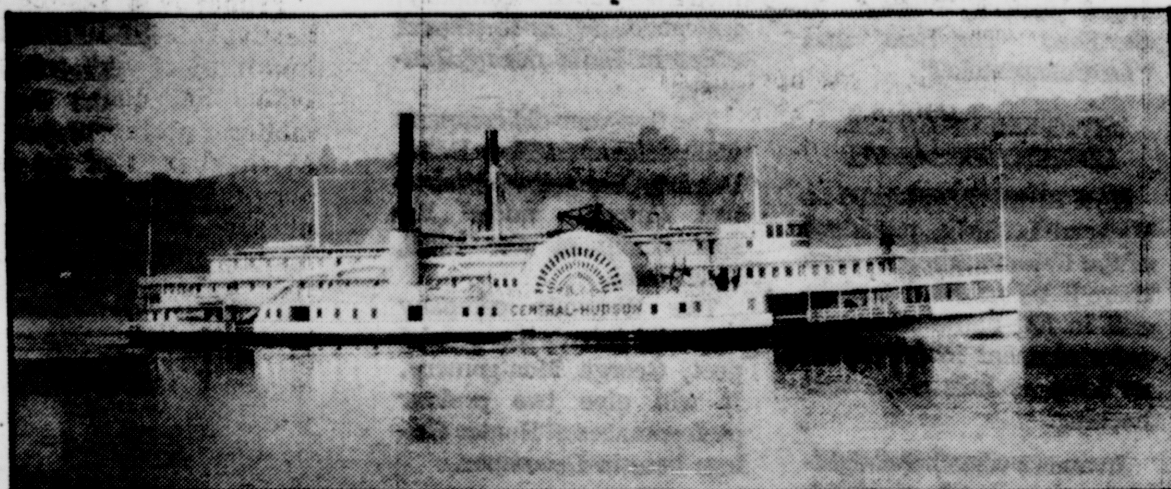

The captain of the "Decker" observed, "If they had had a Central Hudson Line crew on the old "Baldwin" like Amos Cooper and Abram Brooks, the accident would never have happened. Look at the hundreds of times those two men took her around there in years past without anything happening."

Finally, Merritt, Chapman and Scott, the marine salvagers, had to be hired to free the "Central Hudson." After getting her afloat, it was found she was so badly strained, the old steamer would have to be retired. She was towed to Newburgh where she lay for nearly six months. On Nov. 15, 1911, the "Central Hudson," or as she was better remembered as the "James W. Baldwin," was towed to the old steamboat graveyard at Pert Amboy, N.J. and broken up.

During her long career, the steamboat was commanded by a long line of well known Hudson River captains. The list included Captains Jacob H. Tremper, Jacob H. Tremper, Jr., Reuben H. Decker, Weston L. Dennis, Arthur Palmer, Zack Rossa and F. L. Simpson.

For decades after she was gone, the old "James W. Baldwin" was remembered by steamboatmen and spoken of kindly—as the old side wheeler that after running between Kingston and New York for 50 years did not want to go off on a new route with a new crew.

Area TV Writer's Yule Show Again

Santa Claus as a very young man "is making a list and checking it twice," perhaps explaining the traditional sudden preponderance of nice children over naughty children each holiday season. He's watched by penguin friend, Waddles, who stars with him in "Santa Claus is Comin' to Town," written by Romeo Muller of High Falls and to be seen for the fourth time on ABC-TV. This year, it's set for an earlier date than ever—Friday, Nov. 30, 8-9 p.m., E.S.T. just a bit over a week after Thanksgiving. The musical dramatization of the story of Santa Claus features the voices of Fred Astaire, Mickey Rooney, Keenan Wynn, Robie Lester and the Westminster Children's Choir. In "Animagic," the film took over a year to make at a cost of a half million dollars.

OPERA OPENS AT THE NATIONAL

BOSTON (AP) — Associate Artists Opera, which employs young singers and musicians from New England, opens its fourth season with Mozart's "Cosi fan tutte."

It will be the first time that theatrical scenery and costumes have appeared on the stage of the National Theater in more than 40 years. Once it was Boston's largest vaudeville palace, then it had occasional movies.

Now it is part of the Boston Center for the Arts and it has undergone extensive renovations. The Associate Artists Opera will make the National Theater its permanent home.

Other operas in the season will be "Amahl and the Night Visitors," "Riders to the Sea," "The Bear" and "La Cenerentola."

SWIG KEEPS HOTEL NIGHTCLUBS OPEN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Richard L. Swig, president of the Fairmont hotels, says there'll be no final curtain call in big name nightclub entertainment in his hotels as long as he's alive and booking.

In an era when hotel nightclub after hotel nightclub has gone to featuring lesser-known performers or shut down, the Fairmont hotels in San Francisco, Dallas and New Orleans still present top names. Aside from those, the only hotels outside Las Vegas regularly featuring big names are the Waldorf Astoria in New York and the Palmer House in Chicago.

Swig is even expanding; next city — Atlanta.

BARTOK FESTIVAL AT STONY BROOK

STONY BROOK, N.Y. (AP) — The First International Bela Bartok Festival, featuring choral works, ballet, symphony and chamber music of the famous Hungarian composer, will be held at the State University of New York here.

Bartok came to the United States in 1940 and remained until his death in 1945.

According to Lewis Lussardi, executive director of the university's Center for Contemporary Arts and Letters, Bartok's music forms a bridge between the centuries-long tradition of folk music and the new rhythm and tonality structures of the 20th century.

WAGONER DANCERS TO TOUR IN INDIA

NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Wagoner and Dancers, a modern dance company, will make a tour to several cities in India during January.

The five-year-old company will perform in New Delhi, Bombay, Bangalore, Madras and Calcutta under the sponsorship of the USIS, New Delhi.

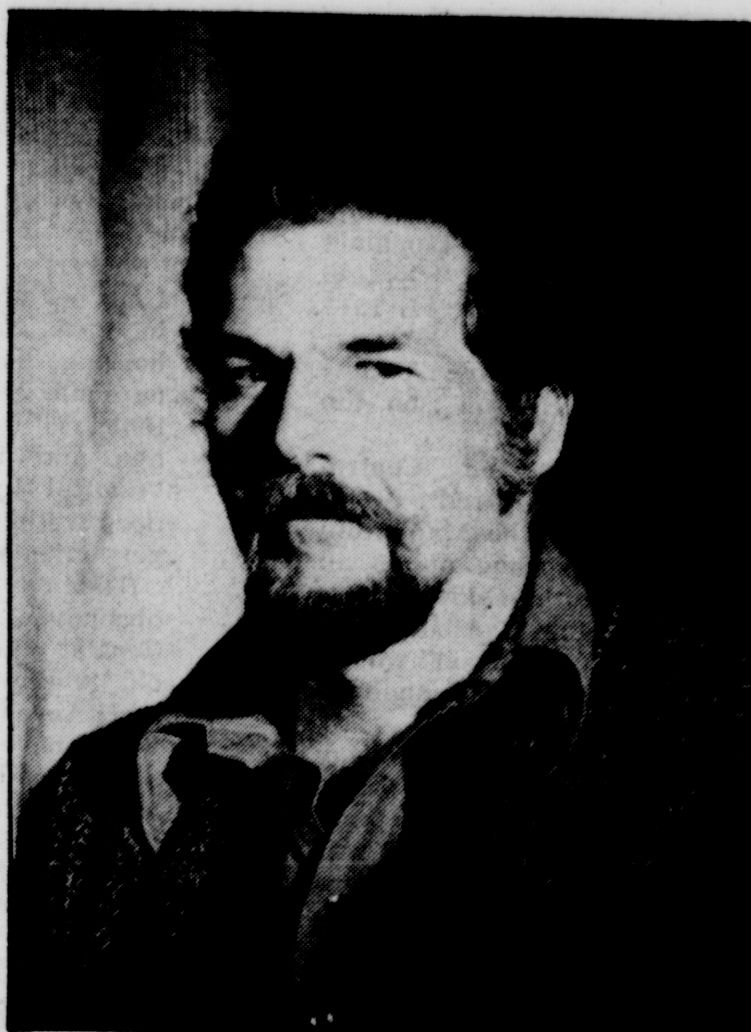

The Wagoner company consists of six dancers and a poet, George Montgomery. It will give two pretour performances at Hunter College here in December.

KENNEDY CENTER PUBLISHES MAGAZINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts has published "Quarto," 58 pages devoted to the arts.

There are 15 articles written by famous critics and writers about the arts.

If financially successful, other issues will be published and it may become available by subscription.

Chet London, remembered for his fine performance in the Performing Arts of Woodstock's production of "Major Barbara," returns to PAW's stage as a member of the cast of the group's next offering, two one-act plays by Poland's Slawomir Mrozek. (Kenn White photo)

Charm and Humor In PAW's Plays

Performing Arts of Woodstock is preparing two one-act plays by Poland's leading modern playwright, Slawomir Mrozek, for production in early December. The plays, "Out at Sea" and "Enchanted Night," represent the exciting satire of Mrozek at his imaginative best.

Mrozek's first full length play, Tango, rocked European capitals in 1965. In 1968 its New York production received critical praise. His new play, Vatzlav, (1970) fulfilled the expectations of critics that here indeed a major dramatic voice was establishing itself. Mrozek's work is marked with sharp political and social comment and wild humor in which perfect logic is rigorously applied to illogical ends. Though touching many areas of human dreams and fears, Mrozek is especially concerned with the madness through which man subjects himself to oppressive authority.

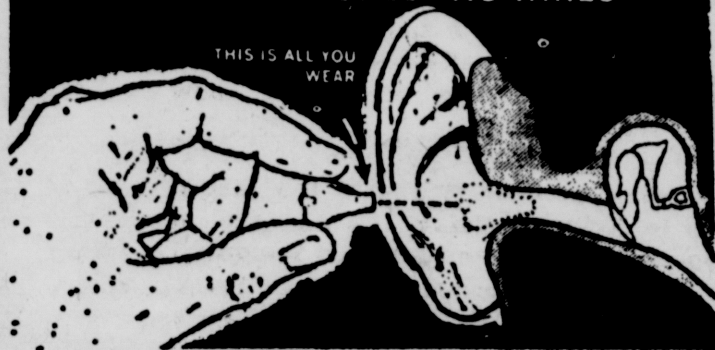

The two plays selected for PAW's production offer charm and insane humor along with thought-provoking ideas. "Enchanted Night" portrays two businessmen sharing not only a hotel room but, curiously, a dream as well. Who is dreaming and who is dreamt? The pursuit of that question leads to others more alarming. "Out at Sea" shows us three shipwrecked men whose last scrap of food is only a fond memory. The solution of their food problem leads, by the most civilized paths of democracy and justice, to an inescapable comic yet frightening solution.

The two plays are directed by Steve Callahan, whose production for PAW of Under Milk Wood won top honors at the recent regional drama festival. The cast for the Mrozek plays include Donna Albright, Frank Alexander, Gerry Berke, Chet London, Joe O'Shaughnessy, and Larry Shufeldt. Watch for the opening Dec. 1 at the Woodstock Town Hall. For reservations call 679-2114 and 679-6885.

A Mug of Glug Featured Today

If you've never had a mug of glug, you can savor one today by driving down to the Nordic Star cross country ski shop in Rosendale. Owner Rune Karlson is tossing a glug party with all the Swedish trimmings this afternoon, Sunday, Nov. 25, beginning at 2 p.m. — and his original old country recipe for the spicy, aromatic, tummy-warming concoction should please everyone.

The event offers and opportunity to enjoy Swedish hospitality, admire artist Paul Wemp's winter scene wall painting at Nordic Star, and learn everything you've always wanted to know about cross-country skiing.

If you seek out Karlson, he'll be the first to tell you that cross-country skiing is one of the fastest growing sports in America today. It's also one of the oldest sports in existence; was an important means of transportation in pre-mechanized days.

More than ever today, it's being enjoyed as a family sport by those increasingly concerned about physical fitness . . . and by those who prefer a sport without time limitations that can be enjoyed anywhere in snow season.

Big backyards and public recreation areas alike make cross-country skiing easy to learn. It's safer and less expensive than skiing the downhill slopes, and no previous racing experience is necessary.

If you've been thinking about equipping the family for cross-country touring, drop by Rosendale's Nordic Star today and tip a sip of glug while browsing through the boots, pole and bindings.

You'll find sizes to fit the whole family, receive advice on techniques and waxing and, quite possibly, become a convert to that hottest of hot beverages known as glug.

Members of the Stockade Committee board come from all over Ulster County, represent many areas of career interest, and a diversity of age groups. Three local members, posed here beside historic bell (L-R) are: Robert Cocoran, assistant superintendent for elementary curriculum in the Kingston Schools; Mrs. Thelma Schwab, supervisor of social studies in Kingston Schools for grades 7-12; and Michael Kirk, Kingston teen-ager, who's heading a youth volunteer program to train young people as museum aides, craft instructors and tour guides.

Taking Its Theme From Lincoln, Stockade Committee Will Rally Ulster County's Young People To Pride in Our Rich Heritage

What does a six-foot nail file have in common with a four-foot hinge and a spool of thread 10 inches high? They help put "little people" in perspective for "The Borrowers," the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" drama special to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Friday, Dec. 14 (8:30-10 p.m. NYT).

The tiny persons are, in reality: Eddie Albert and Tammy Grimes, who co-star with Dame Judith Anderson in the play, based on the book by Mary Norton. Albert and Miss Grimes are Pod and Homily Clock, six-inch parents of a 12-year-old daughter, Arrietty (Karen Pearson), who appears to be 4 1/4 inches high. The family lives beneath the floorboards of a Victorian house occupied by Aunt Sophy (Dame Judith) and Pod "borrows" the necessities of life from the house.

While the images of the small and normal-size people were combined electronically into one picture, the sets and props had to be built to scale for the tall and the short of "The Borrowers." The responsibility for this fell to art director Bill Zaharuk.

He said: "I prepared 36 pages of blueprints for this show. We had to construct sets and props in normal dimensions, in miniature (to represent the normal view of the little people's abode) and larger than life (to show how the little people would see a room or the things they 'borrow' from Aunt Sophy). This has been one of the most complicated projects I've ever run across in my 17 years in TV."

Zaharuk said the scale he used was one inch to the foot. "All of the items I designed or which were created by Elizabeth Matta, our associate art director, were based on authentic designs. We wanted everything to look as real as possible."

Among the props created by Zaharuk for use by Albert and Miss Grimes are:

— A simulated 12-foot-high "wooden wall" with a huge knothole.

— An air duct grill which is 14 feet wide.

A two-foot by six-foot bound diary. "This represents a Victorian diary which normally fits into the palm of a normal person's hand," Zaharuk said.

A postage stamp 18 inches high.

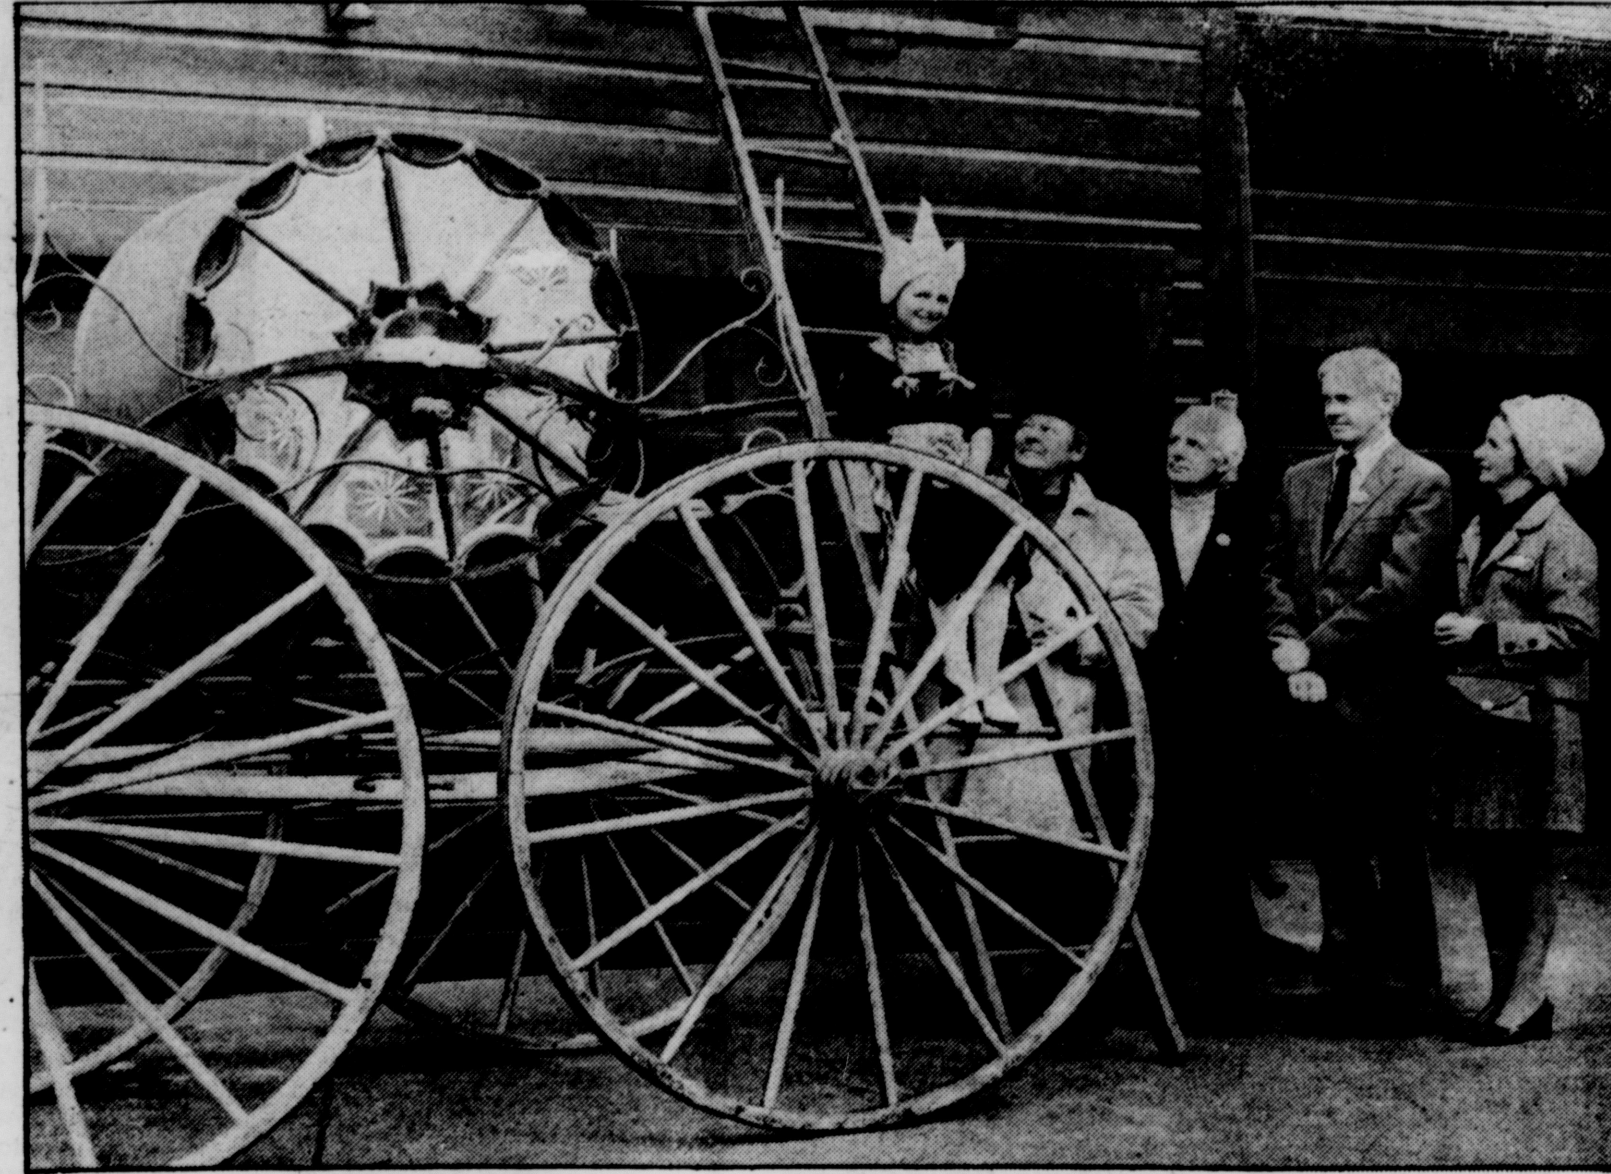

Red bricks (actually made of styrofoam) which are eight feet high and three feet thick.

A stairway with step risers seven feet high and treads 12 feet deep.

Zaharuk said: "There are many, many other things we had to make — oversized playing cards, a large safety pin, a fish hook 12 times the usual size; a large match box, a replica of an old fashioned pill box." He said the bulk of the sets and props were created at the Toronto, Canada, studios where the special was taped.

The script by Jay Presson Allen called for exteriors involving the little people. Said Zaharuk: "We used a special camera, with a periscopic lens, to film Karen Pearson running through the grass. The lens created the impression that she really was the tiny daughter of the clock family. We were lucky to find an old Victorian house, perfect for our outdoor filming needs, in a town called Whitby, 20 miles from Toronto.

"We worked seven weeks, seven days a week, for the most part, creating the props. And now we don't need them anymore. That's show business."

Repeating Tempo's cover with additions—that admirable, ancient fire engine again (a priceless museum piece highly coveted by the soon-to-open Young People's Museum)—and (L-R) Miss Emily Darrow in Dutch costume; artist John Pike, whose murals will add much to the museum and whose specially designed Kingston stockade area map for young children will be a tour boon; Kingston Senate House curator Herbert Cutler, Stockade Committee board member; architect George Hutton, who'll draw up renovation plans to convert the barn on Senate House grounds to the Young People's Museum; and Mrs. James Myers, board chairman of the Stockade Committee.

EDUCATING THE EDUCATORS—Principals of Kingston's intermediate and junior high schools pause in front of Old Dutch Church on walking tour of the city's stockade area. Guiding the tour recently was Mrs. James Myers (in hat), board chairman of the Stockade Committee. As a corporation, the committee's objective is to foster, preserve and perpetuate in area youth, the geographic, historic, cultural and socio-economic development of Ulster County. A new children's stockade tour script, recently revised, will be tested on intermediate and junior high students this fall and next spring; and the "kick-off" tour with Kingston principals was aimed at eliciting their support for the project and generating enthusiasm for the committee's future plans. (This photo by Freeman photographer Bob Haines; all others, including Tempo's cover, by Charles Bryson)

Old Sturbridge Village lost out on getting this pink wedding gown of long ago and these turn of the century cut-outs when Mrs. Mary Caughey (R) decided to donate them to the Young People's Museum here instead. Mrs. Caughey is also a Stockade Committee board member, as is Mrs. Harri Janssen (L).

Mrs. John Murphy (L) and Mrs. Maurice Brown have been hard at work in recent weeks on an historical coloring book of Ulster County to delight youngsters of all ages. The talented artistic team displays a page from the book here, written by Mrs. Murphy and illustrated by Mrs. Brown.

Close-up of coloring book page illustrates how Yankee Doodle came about. British army felt contemptuous of and superior to provincial troops aiding them; gave them no rank. Britisher Dr. Shackburgh composed the tune when the odd-looking provincials joined the British army on the east side of the Hudson.

Poetry Reading Two-Hour Event

Distinguished poet-editor Frederick Morgan will give a poetry reading at Mount Saint Mary College in Newburgh Thursday, Nov. 29 at 7:30 p.m. in Whittaker Hall.

Morgan is the editor of The Hudson Review, which he co-founded in 1948.

He is also the author of a well-received volume of poetry, A Book of Change, published last year by Charles Scribner and sons.

The two-hour reading will feature Morgan's highly personal verse, which he describes as "the result of a combination of crises in my own life."

Born in New York City in 1922, Frederick Morgan attended St. Bernard's School in New York and St. Paul's School in New Hampshire. He graduated A.B. magna cum laude from Princeton University in 1943.

Landscapes And Portraits

Twenty-five oil paintings by Newburgh artist Mildred Leach are on display in Curtin Memorial Library at Mount Saint Mary College, Newburgh, through Dec. 1.

Landscapes and portraits are featured in the display, which marks the second showing of Mrs. Leach's work at Mount Saint Mary College.

The artist has exhibited her work at McQuade Foundation in New Windsor, and the spring Artists' Exhibit at Mount Saint Mary College.

Mrs. Leach has studied painting for the past two years under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Scoville of Goshen.

Curtin Memorial Library hours are Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.; Thursday, 8 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday 12:30 to 5 p.m. and 6 to 9 p.m.

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Comedian Joe Mauro's monologue had everything holdin' both sides at Ahavath Israel's 37th annual Thanksgiving Stage Show and Ball a week ago Saturday. Those who'd seen him before at The Nevele knew what to expect. He delivers ethnic jokes at a pace that's faster-than-a-speeding-bullet. Fact is, Mauro may be the one to re-educate Ulster County residents on the advantages of bein' able to laugh at oneself. We say "Ulster County" 'cause, lucky for us, Mauro has relatives here and entertains in the area often.

A pat on the back goes to Dr. Murray Greene who came up with the idea for a cabaret-style set-up . . . a decided improvement. Mrs. Irving Scher was floating on air. She'd just had a call from Mexico that she was a grandmother once more. And doin' a great job of keepin' up with Howard Rust and his tunes were Bernadette and Harry Wiands, Frank and Julie Simpson, the Marvin Millens, the Henry Singers, Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Singer, the Ephraim Propps, etcetera, etcetera, etcetera.

Spotted an exceptionally good looking couple at the corner of the bar in Governor's Tavern one recent Saturday night. The man looked vaguely familiar; both were engrossed in conversation with Harry LeFever. Suddenly it came to us. Disregard the graying hair, the mustache, the goatee, it was film star Robert Hutton and his attractive English wife. Seems they were here to visit his mother who still resides in Kingston. Bartender Charlie Greene knows him well; they attended KHS together.

If West Coast residents can come east then East Coast couples can go west. Right? Right. And that's just what happened.

Seems Bob and Joan Simek of Hillside Acres were in Carmel, Cal., on their way to Las Vegas when they bumped into Joyce and Van Porter of Kingston who were coming from Lake Tahoe. They met crossing the street and after the first wave of surprise were off stood in a huddle admiring Bob's new suit. Bob and Van, golfing buddies, agree: "Tis a small world."

Hard to tell how many nibblers and sippers attended the Wine and Cheese Tasting party last Sunday at Holiday Inn. Guests came and went steadily for two hours at the eighth annual benefit staged by Ulster County Council of the Hudson Vally Philharmonic. Enough to say the room was jammed with HVP benefactors . . . or wine and cheese connoisseurs . . . or both.

At any rate, sampling treats from France, Germany, Portugal, Italy, were Harry duBois Frey, Jessie Wolfersteig, Verna and Claude Gible, the Maurice Goldbergs, Mr. and Mrs. C. Lester Legg with young Edmond and Inger, the Norman Rafalowskys, Mr. and Mrs. C. Lincoln Christensen, the Rev. David Bronson.

All in all, for Burgundy-buffs, it was an experience in superlatives . . . and for limburger-lovers, it was worth every calorie.

Everything from angels and dolls to lamps and unusual ashtrays can be found at the Colossal Shop on Washington Avenue. Open 'bout three months, the store caters to conversation-piece shoppers. The secret is ingenuity: it's all in knowin' what to do with what you have. In other words, if someone gifts you with a rack to hold The Koran and you don't happen to be a Mohammedan, you use the holder in the kitchen to brace your cookbook.

As for the conservative-minded, there's a nightlight with two-watt, bulb that burns 'bout 10 hours a day for one week. Electricity cost? Would you believe ONE CENT!

County Players Auditioning

The County Players will hold open auditions for their February production of Edward Albee's "Everything In The Garden" today and Monday, Nov. 25 and 25, at 7:30 p.m. at the Wappinger Junior High School on Remsen Avenue. John T. Sloper is directing.

The play calls for five couples in the 30 to 40 age bracket; one woman and one man in their late 50s and a 15 year old boy. Players in lesser roles will be asked to understudy leads and all roles will have standbys, who will have their own rehearsals. Technical people are also needed.

An ironic examination of suburbia, the play has humor, suspense and a biting satire. Advance personal copies are available from the director, who suggests reading the play before auditioning.

A Big Selling Book; A First Place Pace

There's cause for dual celebration these November days around the Robert Jacobson homestead in Kripplebush. Pat Jacobson's well-received book ("A Horse Around the House," co-authored with Marcia Hayes of Tillson and published by Crown) is celebrating its first anniversary by entering its fourth big printing; is being hailed as "the Dr. Spock of horse care books." And this month, too, Pat Jacobson and her 14-year-old daughter, Jacqueline (shown here), competing against 30 teams in the Rombat Hunt at Clinton Corners, rode to a first place victory in the modified hunter pace, a gruelling four-mile cross country gallop over fences in dense woods. Four of author-riding instructor Jacobson's pupils also placed well in the Rombat Hunt. Competing among the 89 teams entered and competing for the first time, Mark Zaccheo and Dave Carlen, both 16, took third place, and Michell Mason and Diane Schoonmaker, both 14, rode home with sixth place honors. ## Gingerbread Village Has 30 Houses

The Garrison Art Center will hold its annual Holiday sale of unusual handcrafted toys and gifts Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 1 and 2, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. And it'll be well worth a drive down river to Garrison for this colorful and unique event of local and Appalachia flavor.

The work of many of the artists and craftsmen who participated in an August Fair there will be on sale. Handcrafted toys and gifts from the Berea College Student Industries in Kentucky and from the West Virginia Mountain Craftsmen will also be available.

A special feature of the weekend will be a Gingerbread House Village to defy the imagination! Over thirty houses and related structures are currently being created in kitchens throughout the county.

Tree ornaments, home-made food, jewelry, belts, leather work, stitchery, pottery, batik, weaving, photographs, prints, drawings, posters, sculpture, knitting, crocheting, wood carving, wooden toys, stuffed animals, puppets, a variety of stocking toys, enamel work, apple dolls, decorated eggs, macrame, dried floral arrangements, plants, stained glass — a fantastic array of work carefully chosen for its fine workmanship and creativity has been assembled to make your holiday shopping a truly happy and festive event.

For further details or directions on how to reach the Center, call the Answering Service (914-737-2168) and leave your name and phone number. A GAC Representative will call you back and answer all your questions.

New Exhibition At Mombaccus Art Center

Judith Steinhauser's gum dichromate and cyanotype prints are the new exhibition at the Mombaccus Art Center. The revival of these early processes is part of the avant-garde movement in photography, offering more expression and subtlety to the use of color than the standard photographic color materials. The antique processes used with her ironic contemporary imagery stimulate the sense of their juxtaposition.

Ms. Steinhauser, previously a professor of photography at the Rochester Institute of Technology, is currently living in Columbia, South Carolina and teaching at the university there. She recently was included in "New Photographics, 73," a group show at Central Washington State University.

The show will run from now to December 16th Saturdays and Sundays from 1-5 p.m. The Mombaccus Art Center is located at Bee Hive and City Hall Roads, off Queens' Highway from Route 209, between Accord and Kerhonkson.

Historic Silent Movies Archives

Canada's Public Archives in the national capital, Ottawa, has acquired over the years a remarkable collection of old movies going all the way back to one taken in 1898 — a hockey game between two railroad teams in Montreal.

In 1909, a Gladys Mary Smith of Toronto had a screen test which led to her becoming "America's Sweetheart" a few years later under the name of Mary Pickford. She didn't even know that her first test was still in existence, and she was charmed when Archives film collector William Galloway flew to Hollywood to show it to her.

Other memorable screen gems include auto tycoon Henry Ford posing with his wife in 1904; the fire that engulfed the Canadian Parliament Buildings in 1916; former Canadian prime minister Lester Pearson (1963-1968) playing hockey in England for Oxford University against Cambridge; the first forward pass thrown in Canadian football.

Film buffs with old footage to sell or horse-trade will be made welcome by Mr. Galloway in Ottawa.

No Series TV For Pidgeon

SEPTUAGENARIAN WALTER PIDGEON SAYS DOING TV IS FOR YOUNGSTERS

Walter Pidgeon, tall and handsome at 76, puffed on a cigarette as he sat watching the frenetic activity around him on the set.

"You couldn't pay me enough to do a television series," said the veteran of some 85 films.

"For one thing the hours are ungodly. They wanted me here for make-up at 7:30 in the morning! I thought they were kidding. That meant I had to get up at 6.

"Making films was more civilized. I used to get to work at a quarter to nine and leave that evening at 6."

The courtly Pidgeon is making a rare TV appearance as a guest star in "Fear is a Free Throw," the premiere episode of the NBC Television Network's "The Snoop Sisters," Dec. 5 (8:30-10 p.m. NYT, in color) on the "NBC Wednesday Mystery Movie."

Helen Hayes and Mildred Natwick star in the series as a pair of sisters with an irresistible urge to become involved in solving murders.

Pidgeon came to Hollywood from Canada in 1925 to appear in silent films. His rich voice (he was once a singer) made the transition to talkies easy for him.

Walter spent 21 years under contract at MGM where he made many of his memorable films, including the Oscar winning "Mrs. Miniver" in 1942 with Greer Garson.

"Greer and I made eight films together but 'Mrs. Miniver' is by far the one we're both best known for. No matter where I go, people talk more about that film than any other I made.

"It's funny but a lot of people still think Greer and I are married. We got along famously, though, and we still see each other occasionally."

Pidgeon spends most of his time now reading and gardening at his Bel Air, Calif., home.

"I like to make about one film a year," he said. "But when you get to be my age there aren't too many roles.

"I'm not keen on doing much TV. Television is for youngsters."

This brought a smile from Helen Hayes, who was seated nearby. She recently turned 73.

TEAMED UP—Walter Pidgeon, veteran of some 85 films, makes a rare television appearance as a guest star in "Fear is a Free Throw," the premiere colorcast of NBC-TV's "The Snoop Sisters," starring Helen Hayes, on "NBC Wednesday Mystery Movie" Dec. 5 from 8:30 to 10 p.m. Mildred Natwick co-stars in "The Snoop Sisters."

LANDMARK—The famous Disney Castle will be recreated on stage at Saugerties High School for the Dec. 2 Christmas Ballet.

Yule Ballet In Saugerties

Plans are presently in high gear for the Saugerties Jaycees Christmas Ballet. This year's extravaganza, to be staged Sunday, Dec. 2, at 3 p.m. at Saugerties High School Auditorium, is one of the most colorful ever.

Estelle and Alphonso, of Poughkeepsie, are staging the event entitled "A Musical Salute to Walt Disney." The best remembered scenes from Walt Disney's musicals will be recreated on stage by the dancing troupe. Included in the presentation will be the Roof Scene from "Mary Poppins," the Clock Scene from "Pinocchio," scenes from "Snow White" and "Cinderella," a Nativity Scene, the Waltz from "The Nutcracker Suite," and the famous Disney Castle. All of the scenes will be set to Christmas music, to enhance the holiday atmosphere.

An enjoyable and memorable afternoon is in store for young and old alike. Tickets for the event will soon be available, and those planning to attend should be prepared to purchase tickets well in advance, as a large turnout is expected.

So, mark December 2 on your calendar as the date the Jaycees will be presenting the social event of the Christmas season. Watch for further details, and the announcement of the start of ticket sales, soon.

True Story of St. Nicholas Slated At Old Dutch Church

Carrying on a tradition that was begun many years ago, the Old Dutch Church will once again bring the true story of Saint Nicholas and his small friend, Black Peter, to the residents of the Kingston area on Wednesday evening, Dec. 5 at 7 p.m.

In the churchyard, at the corner of Wall and Main Streets, a typical Dutch family scene will be depicted. Characters in full Dutch costume will be making preparations for the Saint's visit. The story of the real "Santa Claus" will be told to the children.

Members of the congregation, the church choirs, as well as the Handbell choirs will combine their talents to bring this classic to life. So that all viewing the scene will be able to enjoy the festivities, the story will be amplified from the church grounds. Choirs will sing traditional carols, and the Handbell choirs will play music especially selected for the holiday season.

Why Not Cultivate Some Little Green Friends?

With the recent increased interest in ecology and planting, houseplants have become more popular than ever.

Some people look upon plants as little living friends. Just like real friends, they like and need attention.

Watering

Overwatering is one of the biggest problems in the proper care of plants. Feel the top of the soil. If the top one half inch feels dry, it's time to water. The water should be at room temperature.

Potting and Soil

Many experts prefer clay pots, but you can use plastic ones. Plants in plastic pots need less water. The bottom of any pot should have a hole for drainage. Cover bottom with gravel and then soil. Leave about three fourths of an inch from the top of the soil to the top of the pot.

You can buy potting soil at some dime stores or at any garden center. You can mix your own by mixing one-third garden dirt, one-third peat moss and one-third sand or perlite.

Peat moss is a mixture of decayed plants, such as moss and ferns. Perlite is a manufactured product that may be used in place of sand. It helps drainage.

Fertilizer

Ask Mom or Dad to mix water with soluble fertilizer. Use it on your plant about every three weeks. Don't use it until the plant has been in the new pot for at least a month and a half. Otherwise, it might damage the roots.

Place

Each plant has its own special sunlight needs. Keep them out of drafts. It's often a good idea to put them in the kitchen where the humidity is highest. (Humidity is the amount of water in the air.) It's also a good idea to group plants together.

DEBNAM

SANSEVIERIA
'SNAKE PLANT'

Snake plants are the easiest to grow in any warm temperature.

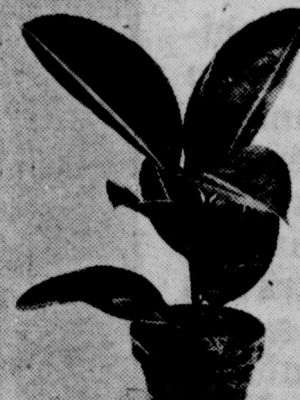

PHILODENDRON
'HEARTLEAF PLANT'

Heartleaf plants grow very well in warm temperatures (65°F). Wash leaves once a month with soap and water. Do not get soap on the soil.

'PEPPER FACE'

Pepper Face plants grow best in bright light. They will rot if overwatered, so be extra careful.

FICUS
'RUBBER PLANT'

Rubber plants grow best in warm, moist places. Wipe leaves often with a wet cloth.

AGLAONEMA
'CHINESE EVERGREEN'

Chinese evergreens will grow for years in the dark parts of a room. They need little care.

The specific names are printed on the labels placed in front of the flower plant.

Animal of the Week: The Tigon

A tigon is a very rare animal. There are only four in the world. The tigon is an animal whose father was a tiger and whose mother was a lion.

Tanya is a tigon who lives in Sarasota, Florida. She travels around the country in a specially built bus. She puts on shows for children. She is 12 years old and weighs 550 pounds.

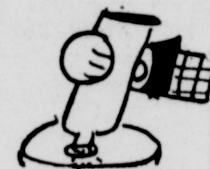

Tanya gets the best of care. She eats two dozen eggs and fifteen pounds of beef a day. Someone must be with her around the clock. She is also given two soap and water baths a day.

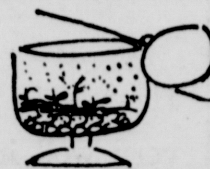

4. If necessary, use tweezers or sticks tied together to make tweezers to put plants in place.

7. Place it where the light is bright, but avoid direct sunlight.

5. Spray plants lightly with water. Mom's clothes sprinkler makes a good plant sprinkler.

8. Don't overwater. Water only if plants begin to droop. If the inside of the terrarium becomes fogged, open the cover slightly and let in some air.

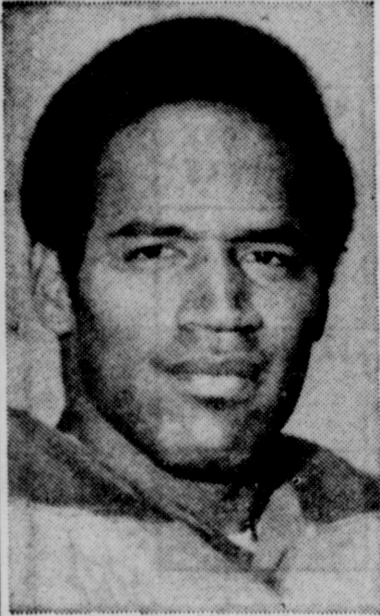

6. Cover the container with a sheet of glass or piece of plastic film. If using a bottle, put on the top.

9. In the fall, summer or spring, you can get plants from the woods. In winter, you can plant miniature ivy, African violets or ferns.

Super Sport: O. J. Simpson

His name is Orenthel James Simpson, but most people call him O. J. Others know him as "Orange Juice" Simpson. Regardless of what they call him, the Buffalo Bills' veteran is one of the best running backs in professional football. In '72, his fourth year in the pros, O. J. gained 1,251 yards to lead the league. Before joining the pros, Simpson was a Heisman Trophy winner and All-American at Southern Cal. He grew up in a rough section of San Francisco and admittedly could have gotten into trouble if football had not entered his life. O. J., who is married and has a family, has a home in the Bel Air section of California. He is also interested in working with young people.

Mini Do: How to Root Plants

Here's how you can use a cutting from a growing plant to start another plant.

1. Cut off a stem containing four or five leaves.
2. Put the cutting in a pot containing wet perlite. (You can root some plants by putting them in water.)
3. Cover the pot with a plastic bag. Use sticks stuck in the soil to hold up the bag and keep it from touching the plant.
4. About once a week, take off the bag and test the cutting by pulling it gently. When it resists a gentle pull, its roots have begun to grow.

Happy Holidays!

Here are some of the favorite flowers that are sent at Christmas time:

The Poinsettia

Dr. Joe Robert Poinsett brought the first poinsettias to this country from Mexico in 1828. There is an old story about a small child who did not have an offering to take to church on Christmas morning. He picked a weed and laid it on the altar. As it lay there, it turned into a beautiful, star-shaped flower.

If your family gets a poinsettia for Christmas, here are some pointers about its care.

Poinsettia Care

1. Place in the bright part of a room.
2. Water when soil surface is dry.
3. You can transplant it outside when risk of frost is over.
4. Ideal temperatures are 72°F during daytime, 65°F at night.

Azaleas Are Popular Christmas Plants

You will see many azaleas at Christmas, too. They come in many colors, but red and white are especially popular at this time of year.

The Begonia

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
by HAL FOSTER

Our Story: LATOUR'S ARMY ARRIVES, SURROUNDS THE CASTLE, AND SETS UP CAMP. AS THE CASTLE HAS BUT ONE ENTRANCE, THEY SET TO WORK ON A DITCH AND BREASTWORK TO PREVENT ANY SORTIE IN FORCE. DEVOLNAY WATCHES IN ANGRY IMPOTENCE.

SIR ARN OFFERS A SUGGESTION: "TONIGHT, AN ATTACK IN FORCE CAN CARRY THE HALF-FINISHED BREASTWORK AND WE CAN SWEEP INTO THE SLEEPING CAMP WITH FIRE AND SWORD. EACH DAY'S DELAY WILL SEE US GROW WEAKER FROM SICKNESS. STRIKE NOW!"

THE HIGH WALLS OF THE COURTYARD PREVENT THE CIRCULATION OF AIR. THE STENCH FROM THE MASS OF CATTLE AND HUMANITY IS UNBEARABLE. SICKNESS APPEARS, AND WILL ASSUREDLY SPREAD AS DAYS GO BY. DEVOLNAY VACILLATES.

OFTEN HE PLANS TO STAKE ALL ON A SUDDEN CHARGE ON THE ENEMY CAMP, AND AS OFTEN CHANGES HIS MIND. FOR HE FEELS SAFE BEHIND THE STRONG STONE WALLS OF HIS CASTLE. WHILE HE HESITATES DISEASE SPREADS, WATER GROWS SCARCE.

"IF ONLY MY BROTHER KNEW OF OUR FLIGHT, HE WOULD SEND HELP!" CRIES DEVOLNAY, DESPERATELY. "TELL ME WHERE TO FIND HIM AND PAUL AND I WILL CARRY YOUR MESSAGE," ARN SUGGESTS.

IN THE DARK OF NIGHT, ARN AND PAUL SLIP OVER THE PARAPET AND ARE LOWERED INTO THE BLACK VOID BELOW.

BUT ESCAPE IS DELAYED FOR NOT FIFTY FEET AWAY A SENTRY PACES HIS BEAT. "THINK OF SOMETHING, QUICK!" BEGS PAUL. "FOR DAWN WILL COME IN A FEW HOURS."
